Let courts have Watergate, Nixon says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Proclaiming anew he was not involved in the Watergate scandal, President Nixon has appealed to the nation to let the courts decide the guilt or innocence of individuals involved.

"The time has come to turn Watergate over to the courts where the questions of guilty or innocence belong", Nixon said. "The time has come for the rest of us to get on with the urgent business of the nation."

Nixon accepted full responsibility for the actions of his aides "because the abuses occurred during my administration and in the campaign for my re-election." He also defended his decision not to turn over presidential tape recordings to the special Watergate prosecutor or Senate Committee.

But he said the Senate Watergate committee had failed to disclose "the slightest evidence...that I had any knowledge of the planning for the Watergate break-in."

Nixon's nationwide television and radio speech and accompanying statement defended his efforts to learn the truth about Watergate—the facts of which the President said, he did not learn until March 21 this year.

He concluded with a plea to "not stay so mired in Watergate that we fail to respond to challenges of surpassing importance to America and the world."

Nixon's long-awaited statement did not offer rebuttal Watergate questions. "It has not been my intention to attempt any such comprehensive and detailed response," Nixon explained.

Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., commented that the president's address "did not add anything to his other speeches that would tend to divert suspicion from him." But Goldwater said he supports the President in his appeal for Americans to recognize dangers to the country and the world.

George Bush, chairman of the Republican National Committee, called the speech "credible and very reasonable." He said he is convinced the American people want the country freed "from the Watergate obsession."

His counterpart, Robert Strauss of the Democratic National Committee, said the President "neither added nor subtracted anything from where we were before he went on the air."

Nixon reaffirmed the stand his lawyers have taken in federal court—that by releasing tape recordings made of conversations in his office and on his telephone "the confidentiality of the office of the President would always be suspect.

"That is why I shall continue to oppose efforts which would set a precedent that would cripple all future presidents by inhibiting conversations between them and those they look to for advice," he said.

Sen. Daniel K. Inouye, D-Hawaii, a member of the Senate committee, said he was disappointed with the statement and bothered by the President's remarks that the committee was absorbed in implicating Nixon.

"I believe the contrary to be true," Inouye said. "Never have we as a panel or as individuals ever suggested that the President was aware of or involved in the break-in."

Nixon deplored the abuses in the 1972 campaign, but said a few overzealous people should not be permitted "to tar the reputation of the millions of dedicated Americans who fought hard but clean for the candidates of their choice in 1972."

He pledged to do all he could to ensure one of the results of Watergate "is a new level of political decency and integrity in America."

Nixon said from the time of the break-in "I pressed repeatedly to know the facts and particularly whether

Agnew charges presented

Grand jury probes kickbacks

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — A special grand jury was expected to start hearing testimony today on allegations that Vice President Spiro T. Agnew was involved in a bribery and kickback scheme.

Meanwhile, the Justice Department confirmed Wednesday that Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson met with Agnew privately to discuss the status of the investigation.

The meeting took place Aug. 6, according to department spokesman Horace Webb.

The overall investigation began last December, but did not involve Agnew until this spring. Subpoenaed records date back through Agnew's term as Baltimore county executive and governor of Maryland.

The New York Times reported in Thursday editions that Richardson told Agnew that prosecutors have statements from more than 20 Maryland businessmen who say they gave cash to Agnew associates in return for state contracts.

Citing unnamed sources, the Times also said Richardson told Agnew:

—That three Agnew aides have told prosecutors they turned over some of the payments to the former Maryland governor. The three were identified as Lester Matz and Jerome Wolff, now Baltimore engineering consultants, and Allen I. Green, described by the Times a former close friend of the vice president.

—Green told prosecutors he gave kickbacks to Agnew about five times a year until 1969, less often after Agnew became vice president. Green was identified as president of a Towson, Md., engineering firm.

Webb said "The attorney general met with the vice president on Monday, Aug. 6. The purpose of the meeting was to supplement the information contained in the letter the vice president received from the United States attorney with a general picture of the status of the investigation."

Up to now the grand jury has concentrated on investigating officials in Baltimore County, where Agnew made his political start more than a decade ago, and of engineering firms doing substantial business with the county and the state.

7 indicted in massacre

WASHINGTON (AP) — Seven Philadelphia men have been indicted in the mass-murder here last January of five children and two adult members of a Hanafi Moslem sect.

The 23-count indictment handed down Wednesday by a District of Columbia grand jury accused each of the seven with premeditated murder, felony murder, armed robbery, assault with intent to kill and armed burglary.

An eighth person also was named in the indictment as having participated in the execution-style slayings, but he has since died, police said.

The murders took place last Jan. 18 at a Hanafi Moslem headquarters in a residential section of northwest Washington. Police said four children, including a two-week old infant, were drowned and a fifth shot to death. Two adult members of the group were also shot to death and two others wounded.

The indictment accuses the men of hatching the murder scheme four days earlier in Philadelphia, and then driving to Washington armed with pistols and sawed-off shotguns.

Main target of the conspiracy, said the indictment, was Hamaas Khaalis, leader of the group and the father of three of the slain children. He was not at the residence when the eight men arrived, said the indictment.

Petroleum regulations delayed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Phase 4 regulations for the oil industry still are not complete, and the price freeze on oil possibly will have to be extended a second time, Cost of Living Council sources say.

Although the price freeze was lifted from the rest of the economy Monday, it was extended an extra week for petroleum, until Aug. 19, because the new regulations weren't ready last week as scheduled.

A council spokesman said it was virtually certain the regulations would not be ready today. He said the council is hoping they can be released Friday, although there was doubt even of this date.

Even if the regulations are ready Friday, it still would give the petroleum industry—from oil refiners to gasoline retailers—less than three days to prepare to put them into effect in time for the freeze to be lifted Monday.

"Obviously it's going to be tight," said a council spokesman Wednesday when asked if it would be possible for the industry to move that fast over the weekend. It wasn't clear what was holding up the oil regulations.

Authority over price increases in the oil industry, meanwhile, was placed Wednesday in a new office of Price Stabilization, headed by Bert M. Concklin.

The office will be responsible for decisions on important price increase requests during the Phase 4 anti-inflation program from major firms in manufacturing, services, non-food wholesale and retail trade, and the oil industry.

Concklin's office also will be responsible for making recommendations on requests from entire sectors of industry for exemption from the Phase 4 controls.

In addition to the oil regulations, the council still had not decided its policy on public disclosure of proposals from major firms for price increases.

Although major firms began Monday giving notice to the government of their intention to increase prices in 30 days, there is yet to be a coordinated policy for compiling and releasing the information.

In other economic developments:

—The government reported the nation had a surplus in its balance of payments during the second quarter of the year of $463 million, the first surplus in financial transactions with other countries in 3½ years.

—Administration sources said the government is studying whether to clamp export controls on wheat and other grains in a move to preserve domestic supplies in the face of increasing foreign demand that may be driving up prices.

—Secretary of Commerce Frederick B. Dent said the country must follow the standards of Phase 4 before it can return to a free-market economy.

Nixon gives Congress voice in shaping Indochina policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has signaled that he finally was conceding Congress equal power in setting policy for Indochina, administration officials say.

The acknowledgement, Nixon's first direct concession on the issue, came in a statement on Cambodia issued Wednesday by the White House.

It said "It should be clearly understood in Hanoi that the President will work with Congress in order to take the appropriate action if North Vietnam mounts an offensive which jeopardizes the stability in Indochina."

The shift in Nixon's attitude toward congressional involvement actually was more important than the warning to Hanoi, the officials said.

They repeated that the United States is virtually helpless in influencing events in Indochina following an order by Congress that ended U.S. bombing of Cambodia as of Wednesday.

The same law prevents the reintroduction of any American combat role in Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia, which means Nixon holds no leverage in preventing Hanoi or its allies from acting.

It is understood that Nixon did not embrace Congress as a partner in future Indochina decisions because of a change of heart over his role or responsibility.

Instead, the President is said to be attempting to put Congress in a position where it can be blamed for any future aggressiveness by North Vietnam and for any failure in preventing further Communist victories.

This theme was first stated as the administration fought various attempts in Congress to limit its power in fighting the Vietnam war.

Now, Congress is on notice that action opposing the fall of Cambodia, which is considered likely, or a major new move by North Vietnam against South Vietnam or in Laos, will require action by Capitol Hill.

If, as the administration now expects, Congress refuses to give Nixon power to strike back or provide more direct aid to Saigon or other friendly Southeast Asian nations, then Nixon can say he had warned of such dire consequences.

In other words, Congress had sabotaged the Indochina peace Nixon had so carefully arranged on the basis of U.S. strength.

Officials pointed to a North Vietnamese attack in Laos, the first such offensive action there since a cease-fire went into effect four months ago.

This wouldn't have happened if Hanoi hadn't been convinced of Nixon's helplessness because of congressional restraints, the officials said.

Prison guards walk off jobs

LUCASVILLE, Ohio (AP)— About 70 guards at the Southern Ohio Correctional Facility protested the suspension of a co-worker Wednesday by walking off the job.

A spokesman for the correction officers said the guard was told to work by himself in a cellblock of 80 inmates. He said the guard was suspended when he refused to release the prisoners from the block.

Prison Supt. W. J. Whealon said the officer was overseeing 11 honor inmates.

John Linta, a spokesman for the Ohio Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation, said the protest was unauthorized because the guards failed to follow the proper grievance procedures. He said the guards are members of Teamsters Union Local 413.

Citizen reaction to Nixon speech proves mixed

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It was quiet in the large house at the Knox dairy farm in Weare, N.H. The President was on television talking about Watergate.

R. Leslie Knox, 53, watched the color set in the corner of the living room from the couch, getting up once to get a can of beer.

His wife Barbara, 51, sat in a nearby chair equally silent. Their daughter Jean, 9, fell asleep in her mother's lap toward the end of the speech.

Their son Paul, 22, and his fiancee Martha Griswold, 19, who lives on a small farm in the town, were there. Paul sat next to his dad; Martha in a chair next to Mrs. Knox.

The hired hand, Frank Flis, 18, was there, and Dick Smith, 55, a neighbor from nearby Contoocook wandered in later.

As the Knoxes gathered around the set in New Hampshire, among other Americans tuned in were those in a bar in Steelton, Pa., in an expensive home in San Francisco and a middle class house outside Chicago. A congressional aide watched in Washington. Some Salt Lake City businessmen viewed the address from a private club.

"I think at first I was probably sympathetic to Nixon," said Leslie, a burly man who was born in Montreal. "I think there are very few people who could be hung out on a clothesline like that and be questioned about every little thing.

"I'm wondering how well anyone would do. I'm sure I wouldn't do very well myself.

"There's a lot of things that go on this farm that I don't know about," continued Leslie, who says he and his wife are Republicans who voted for Nixon in 1972.

Across the country, in the expensive Presidio Heights section of San Francisco, lawyer William K. Coblentz, 50, watched the speech in his three-story, brown shingle home.

"I thought it would be a finely calibrated combination of pre-emptive omission and protective apology and that's exactly what it was," said Coblentz., a liberal Democrat who donated money to the McGovern campaign. "It was a well-orchestrated speech. Listening to it, I think I have become more of a cynic than ever before."

In the luxurious Doral Beach Hotel in Miami Beach, Fla., Zack Smith, there for an insurance convention, said before Nixon spoke: "You've got to trust your President like you believe in God." After watching the speech in his carpeted hotel room, Smith, 27, a bachelor from Asheville, N.C., said in his slow southern drawl: "I believe 'im. I know he's a damn politician, but I believe him. I got to."

In another chandeliered room in the Doral, site of the Republican National Convention Headquarters in 1972, Joan and Dick Tannenbaum, both 27 and in Miami Beach for a vacation, watched the same speech.

"He'd kill his own mother for a postage stamp," groaned Joan as Nixon reiterated his refusal to release the Watergate tapes. "If he's innocent, he doesn't have to make speeches."

"This man is either responsible or irresponsible," said Smith, 50, a Democrat who did not vote for Nixon. "They're not my words, I read them somewhere. But that sums it up."

The owner of the bar, Peter Colello, 62, was more economy-minded. "I voted for the guy but never again," Collello, a Republican councilman, said. "I was paying $1.45 a pound for capaccoli (Italian lunch meat). Now I'm paying $2.47. He's too damned busy trying to alibi himself to do the country any good."

Gilligan task force revisits Lucasville

LUCASVILLE, Ohio (AP) — The Governor's Task Force on Correction was to revisit the Southern Ohio Correctional Facility today to investigate conditions following the shooting deaths of two guards at the prison last month.

Task force members were to discuss prison problems with guards, chaplains and members of the medical staff. Last week, five members spent 3½ hours talking with inmates who complained of harsh security measures after the shootings.

Officials at the facility said a guard walkout that began Wednesday would not affect today's tour.

Meanwhile, inmate Wayne L. Raney, 23, of Montgomery County, was sentenced to a second term of life imprisonment Wednesday for the shooting death of guard Arthur Sprouse July 24.

Raney pleaded guilty to a first-degree murder charge before a three-judge panel in Scioto County Common Pleas Court.

He is serving another life term for first-degree murder. The second guard was shot by a sharp-shooter trying to hit Raney.

Meanwhile, a separate panel acting as consultants to the Ohio Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation, called Lucasville "a prime example of an institution located in the wrong place, and far too large."

The four-member Cuyahoga County Corrections Panel described the $32.5 million facility as "a new, expensive, clean monument to every traditional mistake in outmoded correctional thinking."

The panel was asked by the state to serve in an advisory and consultative relationship to the corrections department when it was created in July 1972.

The panel issued its findings Aug. 1 and the report was issued Wednesday, based on a July 1972-August 1973 study.

The statement said there is a strong need for a long range facilities plan that will move Ohio from a small number of large institutions in rural areas to smaller diversified facilities in urban areas.

"It is recognized that present physical facilities are far too large and are typical of the kinds of traditional institutions that have proven to be ineffective nationwide," the report said.

The Lucasville prison in Scioto County now houses more than 1,000 inmates with a capacity for 1,500.

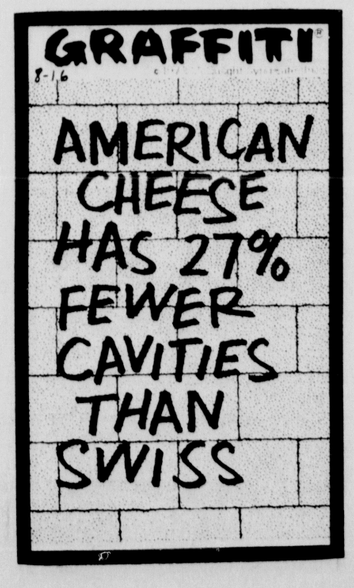

More than 70 guards walked off their jobs Wednesday after a co-worker was suspended for not following an order. The guards said the working conditions at the prison are unsafe.

Dr. Joseph R. Palmer, deputy director of corrections, said Wednesday the department interprets the report as "strong support for the department and its direction and philosophy."

He emphasized the report's recommendation that additional minority groups be recruited from minority groups to match the prison populations.

Ohio ACLU blocks school aid law

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The American Civil Liberties Union of Ohio has blocked for the third time in two years implementation of a state parochial aid program supported by Gov. John J. Gilligan and the legislature.

"Once again we're back in it," said ACLU Director Benson Wolman Wednesday after he obtained a federal court order freezing $81 million in an auxiliary services plan for parochial schools.

U.S. District Court Judge Joseph Kinneary issued the temporary restraining order one hour after Gilligan signed the two-year appropriation for elementary and secondary parochial schools.

Gilligan received the bill Tuesday after legislative leaders signed it. The appropriation would provide health care and secular education services, such as medical examinations, counseling, remedial reading and audio-visual aids.

The ACLU has successfully prevented implementation of two other forms of parochial aid in Ohio. Last October, the U.S. Supreme Court by a vote of 8-1 upheld a lower court ruling overturning a tuition reimbursement plan. In June, the high court took the same action on a tax credit plan for parents of parochial school students.

At the signing of current measure, Gilligan, a Roman Catholic, said the auxiliary services plan is "the logical and constitutional way to achieve our stated goal of keeping Ohio's private schools strong and healthy.

"Passage of this legislation indicated that the General Assembly shares my view that we cannot allow our private schools to be crippled financially."

Kinneary said his order will remain in effect until he convenes a three-judge federal court to consider the ACLU's constitutional challenge of the new plan.

Wolman said the hearing is not expected for more than two weeks.

He said, "I am sure this case will end up in the Supreme Court. If they (the state) lose, they will take it. If we lose, we will take it. There is little doubt about that."

Israel ignores condemnation by U.N. in guerrilla fight

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israel warned the world today that despite condemnation from the U.N. Security Council, it will not let the rules of international law stand in the way of its hunt for Palestinian guerrilla leaders.

"We will still get those that advocate the liquidation of Israel and those who continue to engage in murder," Israel's chief of staff, Lt. Gen. David Elazar, said at a military ceremony.

"There is no way to get to them within international law, but we have the right of existence and the right of self-defense."

He added that "international law is not enforced against the terrorists." And he warned that the world can expect more operations like the interception last Friday of a Lebanese airliner the Israelis thought was carrying four guerrilla leaders.

The plane was diverted to an Israeli airfield, held for two hours and then released when it was found that the wanted men were not aboard.

The United States and the other 14 members of the Security Council voted unanimously Wednesday to condemn the Israeli action. Israel's ambassador to the United Nations, Yosef Tekoah, rejected the condemnation, terming it "the customary onesided text that this organ has been producing in the Middle East situation." He said it showed the world body "is unable to cope with international terrorism in general and with Arab terrorism in particular."

The censure resolution was a compromise introduced by Britain and France following three days of debate and negotiations. Egypt, Iraq, the Soviet Union, Sudan, Indonesia, India, Yugoslavia and China all favored a stronger resolution, ranging from harsher condemnation of Israel to urging all countries to withhold aid from the Jewish state. But anything tougher could have drawn a veto from the United States, Israel's strongest backer.

Born in Fayette County, Mrs. Cleary lived most of her life in the Atlanta and Clarksburg communities. She was a member of the Clarksburg United Methodist Church and the Nathanial Massie Chapter of the DAR, Chillicothe.

Slagle asks court block to election

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— State Sen. Gene Slagle, D-26 Galion, Wednesday asked the U.S. District Court to protect his legislative seat until the end of the six-year term in 1976.

Slagle filed the suit to challenge action taken by the Ohio Senate in June. The upper chamber invalidated Slagle's election victory over Republican incumbent Robin Turner of Marion and said a new election should be held this November.

Slagle upset Turner by 155 votes in the district made up of all of Senace and Crawford counties and parts of Marion, Sandusky, Richland, Huron, Delaware and Wyandot counties.

—Declare him qualified and entitled to hold his seat until Dec. 31, 1976.

—Stop Secretary of State Ted W. Brown from enforcing the Senate resolution.

—Order Brown not to conduct elections in the 26th district for the seat this November. Brown has already directed the Richland County Board of Elections to hold an election this year.

Slagle contended in his suit that the Senate resolution and Brown's action violates his constitutional rights.

William A. Lavelle, state Democratic party chief, said the party will support Slagle in the fight.

"Gene Slagle won his Senate seat fairly and squarely," he said.

Cambodian fighting ebbs

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — Small-scale fighting was reported today on three sides of Phnom Penh. But the Cambodian government said it could detect no sign of a new offensive shaping up against the city despite the U.S. bombing halt.

Col. Am Rong, chief spokesman for the Cambodian military command, said refugees from areas held by the insurgents reported they were still trying to make up heavy losses suffered in the final weeks of the American air blitz.

"They are regrouping and resupplying, and it could be one or two months before they are ready for a big push," he said.

The government reported the recapture of Kompong Kantuot, a district town 11 miles southeast of Phnom Penh, and the clearing of Route 38, which runs around the outside of the city's southern defense perimeter.

A communique said the center of Kompong Kantuot and the nearby village of Kompong Tuol were reoccupied at noon Wednesday, an hour and a quarter after the American bombing stopped. It said the insurgents pulled back and there was little resistance.

Fighting was reported also at Set Bo, 13 miles south of Phnom Penh, and at Prey Baing, 20 miles to the northeast. But there were no big attacks on government positions reported.

The Cambodian command believes that the Communist-led insurgents are unable to take prompt advantage of the end of the American bombing because their primitive logistics force them to make lengthy preparations for any big offensive.

Am Rong said the government also believes the insurgents may be having trouble finding recruits to fill their ranks. He claimed 10 more defectors came over to the government north of Phnom Penh and reported the peasants are increasingly unhappy with attempts by the rebels to impose communal farming methods.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A large high pressure area was dominating Ohio's weather today, bringing sunny skies and temperatures in the 80s.

Some cloudiness was expected in the western part of the state tonight as a weak low pressure trough approaches. Forecasters said skies would remain clear in the eastern counties tonight.

Temperatures tonight were expected to drop into the 60s and upper 50s.

Thundershowers are possible in western Ohio Friday afternoon, when temperatures around the state again are expected to reach the mid-80s.

There will be a chance of showers Saturday, followed by fair weather Sunday and Monday. Highs will be in the 80s through the weekend and lows will be in the 60s.

Lebanese jet forced down

TEL AVIV (AP) — A Lebanese jetliner was diverted today to Israel's Lod International Airport under escort of two Israeli jet fighters, Israeli officials said.

The Middle East Airlines Boeing 707 was diverted on a flight from Libya to Lebanon, according to an airline spokesman in Beirut.

An Beirut airport informant said 110 passengers were on the plane.

It could not be immediately determined whether it was hijacked by a passenger or forced down by Israeli jets.

However, Israeli state radio said the plane was hijacked by two unidentified persons aboard the jetliner as it flew over the island of Cyprus.

Watergate speech

there was any involvement by anyone at the White House."

He said he depended on Justice Department and FBI investigations and assigned White House counsel, John W. Dean III, to monitor those investigations.

But through the summer of 1972, Nixon said, he was told no White House members were involved.

"I trusted the agencies conducting the investigations," Nixon said. "I did not believe the newspaper accounts that suggested a cover-up. I was convinced that there was no cover-up, because I was convinced that no one had anything to cover up."

Nixon only obliquely referred to former acting FBI Director L. Patrick Gray III's assertion that he told the President on July 6 last year that "people on your staff are trying to mortally wound you by using the CIA and FBI..." to cover up the probe.

Nixon said his own investigation was prompted because "I learned of some of the activities upon which charges of cover-up are now based."

He said he was told of fundraising for the Watergate defendants, but not that the money was to buy silence. Nixon added that, he was told a member of his staff had talked to one of the defendants about clemency "but not that offers of clemency had been made."

And he said he learned about blackmail attempts by E. Howard Hunt, demanding $120,000, "as the price of not talking about other activities, unrelated to Watergate, in which he had engaged."

The President said the allegations were in general terms and not supported by details or evidence.

The statement conflicts with Dean's testimony, who said he was specific and told Nixon in March that the damands might reach $1 million. Dean said the President said that should be no problem.

Rep. Barry Goldwater Jr., R-Calif., son of the 1964 GOP presidential nominee, also commented:

"On the one hand he asks for the trust of the American people, but he doesn't trust them enough to let them hear the tapes."

Most of the principals in the affair declined to comment on the President's renewed denials of personal involvement. Special prosecutor Archibald Cox and some members of the Senate Watergate committee also would not say anything.

White House spokesmen said calls jamming the presidential switchboard immediately after the speech ran as much as six-to-one in favor at times.

One favorable reaction came from a source quite close to the President—the First Lady. "The President spoke from the heart and it went to the hearts of the American people," Mrs. Nixon said.

Bill Roy, D-Kan., commented: "Two things surprised me: the utter lack of anything new in the speech, and his asking the people to trust Nixon and associates to prevent those things done previously by Nixon and associates. That dumbfounded me."

Philadelphia Mayor Frank Rizzo said, "I wish to commend the President for his courage . . . I agree that the Watergate issue should be resolved in the courts . . . Let us close ranks behind him and the great office he holds."

Sen. Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass., said, "The President did not answer these serious charges with any specifics. We wanted facts, he gave us rhetoric. That the President could or would equate the cries and protests for quality, justice and peace of the 1960's — openly manifested — with the sordid and surreptious Watergate violations of law surpasses my understanding."

"His message was the voice of reason which went a long way toward putting the whole situation in better perspective," Reagan said, endorsing Nixon's suggestion that the forum now be shifted to the courts.

Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., the man Nixon beat in 1972, rejected that view and Sen. Edmund S. Mukie, D-Maine, a contender for the 1972 Democratic presidential nomination, said:

"I regret to say I was not impressed. He has not satisfied me on the question of how the President could have been totally ignorant until April of this year of activities he so roundly condemns.

"Moreover," Muskie said, "the suggestion that the investigation of these activities is more to be deplored than the activities themselves is a little hard to swallow."

Senate Watergate Committee Chairman Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., said he would have no immediate comment as did some other committee members.

Vice chairman Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., said the President's comments, "along with any future statements," will be given every consideration when the committee writes its report.

One person who didn't like the speech was Frank King, Ohio AFL-CIO president.

"What he take us for?' King asked. "A bunch of dumb rummies? To think that a President of the United States would think the American people so gullible as to believe what he said tonight."

Gen. Bradley condition serious

LOS ANGELES (AP) — General of the Army Omar N. Bradley, the nation's only five-star general, underwent emergency surgery early today for insertion of a sieve-like device to prevent recurrent blood clots from migrating to his lungs.

The general's wife Kitty said in a statement after the operation: "The general has survived surgery. His condition is serious, but the prognosis is very hopeful."

"Heparin injections have helped dissolve the clots but have failed to prevent recurrent attacks," a hospital spokeswoman said.

When Bradley was admitted to the hospital, doctors said his blood clots apparently were caused by an operation on a football injury he suffered at West Point nearly 60 years ago.

Bradley commanded the American troops which landed on the beaches at Normandy, France, on D-Day, June 6, 1944, and fought on to victory over Nazi Germany. After the war he served as the first chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

A native of Clark, Mo., he has been in semi-retirement from the Army since 1953. He stepped down last month as chairman of the board of Bulova Watch Co.

Vincent Price sued for divorce

The divorce petition on Wednesday said the horror film star and his wife had been separated since Jan. 15. They were married Sept. 30, 1949, in Tijuana, Mexico.

Mrs. Price asked custody of their daughter Mary, 11, and child support. The petition said disposal of the couple's community property had been settled by prior agreement.

Singer Joan Baez wins divorce

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. (AP) — Folk singer Joan Baez and her husband David Harris have gotten a divorce after five years of marriage. They had been separated for some time.

Miss Baez, 32, and Harris, 28, were married shortly before he was sent to prison in 1968 for draft evasion.

Applications are being taken for social security program

The Chillicothe social security office can now take applications for supplemental security income payments, a Federal program scheduled to start in 1974 that will establish an income floor for people in financial need who are 65 or over, or blind, or disabled, according to Harry Bieber, social security district manager. People already getting state old age assistance, or state aid because they are blind or disabled, do not have to apply, he said. They will be getting more information later this year about how the program will help them.

"The first monthly payments under the Federal program will be made in January 1974," Bieber said. "Until then, state and local public assistance offices will continue to make payments in the usual way." People not getting public assistance now who think they may be eligible for the new Federal payments should call or write social security to find out if they should apply.

"Federal supplemental security income payments will be made by the Social Security Administration," Bieber said. "But the program will be financed by Federal general revenues — not by the social security contributions from workers and employers. It's not the same as social security."

The aim of the new program is to provide supplemental payments in cases of need so that people 65 or over, or blind, or disabled will have a basic cash income of at least $130 a month for one person and $195 a month for a couple. "This doesn't mean that every eligible person or couple will be getting that much from the Federal Government every month," Bieber said. "The amount of the Federal payment any person gets will depend on how much other income he has."

Eligibility for Federal payments will depend not only on the amount of income people have but on the value of their assets. "A home of reasonable value will not be counted as an asset," Bieber said. "Personal effects and household goods won't count in most cases. Insurance policies or a car may not affect eligibility either, but it will depend on their value."

Certain income also will be disregarded in deciding on an application for supplemental security income. The first $20 a month of income generally won't affect the Federal payment at all, and, in addition, people who are working part time should know that the first $65 a month of earnings won't be included in counting their income and only half of the rest of their additional earnings will be counted.

Apart from earnings, other income above the first $20 a month generally will reduce the Federal payment. "This includes social security checks, veterans payments, workman's compensation, pensions, annuities, and gifts," Bieber said. "And if you live in someone else's household, your basic Federal payment will be reduced by one-third before other income that may affect your payment is deducted."

People who need more information to decide whether they might be eligible for the federal payments should call social security at 775-4950, or write to the office at 606 Central Center, Chillicothe, he said. "Or a friend or relative can make the call if the person in need isn't able to," he said. "Even though payments cannot start until January 1974, we can start to take application now so we can process them ahead of time and avoid delays that might occur if there's a rush of applications right at the end of the year," Bieber said.

Democrats set telethon

Fayette County residents will be able to show their support for the two-party system through their participation in the second annual Democratic National Telethon, "America Goes Public," to be seen on the NBC network Sept. 15, Fayette County Democratic Chairman Milbourne Barney announced today.

"The telethon, sponsored by the national, state and county Democratic party organizations, will give Democrats on the local level of politics a chance to prove we are serious about financial reform of the political process," Barney said.

"The most important thing is the committment of the individual citizen, through his small contribution, to buy back the political system from the big contributors," commented Barney.

Money reaised in the telethon effort, both in pretelethon activities and the night of the show, will be split 50-50 between the national and state Democratic party organizations.

"The state's half of the proceeeds will in turn be split with county Democratic party organizations that cooperate by promoting the telethon," Barney said.

The five and one-half hour program will be seen from 7 p.m. to 1 a.m., with 30 minutes out for news, on WLW-C, channel 4. It will be the longest prime time entertainment special in television history, and will draw an estimated 30 million viewers across the country. The Ohio audience is estimated at 2,700,000.

The first political telethon, which took place last summer, netted $4 million, which went to defray part of the Democratic National committee's standing debt. Nearly 400,000 persons gave an average of $10 each.

WCH Chamber sets activities

The Community Education Advisory Committee will hold a 7:30 p.m. work session today in the Chamber of Commerce office, with Chairman Kaye Bartlett presiding.

New membership rosters and materials for the Aug. 24th Teacher-Get-Acquainted Day session are being prepared by the Chamber staff this week.

Chamber President Fred Domenico reports that Chamber membership has now reached the 435 member mark. This is up considerably over last year's total of 350. Domenico said the initial goal of 450 members can become a reality.

There are eight standard time zones in the United States.

Two women are fined for thefts

Two women were found guilty of shoplifting charges when they appeared in Municipal Court Wednesday afternoon before Judge John Case.

Dorothy L. Warner, 47, Rt. 3, and Dorothy E. Green, 59, Wilmington, were both fined $25 and costs on the charges file by Buckeye Mart security guard Flora White.

Mrs. Green, arrested Friday, pleaded no contest to taking a pin and a necklace valued at $4, and Mrs. Warner, arrested Saturday, pleaded guilty to stealing miscellaneous sewing items valued at $4.91.

Shirley L. Stethem, 50, of 738 Washington Ave., was found guilty of a check fraud compalint filed by Ray Daniels and was fined $10 and costs. She was also ordered to pay Daniels for the $10 insufficient funds check.

An assault by threatening complaint against Grace R. Parrett, 82, of 627 Willard St., was dismissed at the request of the prosecuting witness Ruth McQuitty, of 625 Willard St. Mrs. Parrett had pleaded innocent to the charge.

Jerry P. Hamby, of 621 Fourth St., forfeited a $50 bond when he failed to appear on a police charge of disturbing the peace. Hamby was arrested early Tuesday after creating a disturbance in the 400 block of Earl Avenue.

Shoplifting charge filed

An 18-year-old Fayette County youth was arrested by police after he allegedly shoplifted a set of stereo headphones from the Buckeye Mart store Wednesday evening.

Police said Karl B. Braun, 18, Rt. 1, was arrested on a warrant filed by Flora White, security guard at the store.

According to Mrs. White, Braun concealed the headphones in a pair of pants in the clothing department and left the store. He later returned and took the headphones from the pants then left the store again.

Braun, scheduled to appear in Municipal Court Thursday afternoon, is free on $200 bond.

Police also reported another indecent exposure incident that occurred in the city Wednesday afternoon. Officers said the incident is still under investigation.

requirements should be established for entrance into the system with expanded training opportunities and potentials for growth," the report said.

"Staff are prone to see inmates as militant, hostile, dangerous, subversive, revolutionary and not amenable to change," the panel stated.

The report also outlined administrative policies of which it approves, but says institution personnel see as making their jobs more difficult.

These include removing censorship of inmates' mail and publications and increased inmate participation, such as the establishment of advisory councils, inmate unions, more opportunities for inmates to utilize legal processes.

In its conclusion, the report said it is optimistic about the future of corrections in Ohio.

The panel cited the corrections department for "its demonstrated sincerity and courage in the area of program implementation, and its desire to humanize every aspect of its institutions."

The panel members included Myrl Alexander, formerly an Ohio probation officer and new professor emeritus in criminal justice at Southern Illinois University; E. Preston Sharp, general secretary of the American Correctional Association; Wesley A. Pomeroy, a fellow of the Council on Drug Abuse in Washington, D.C.; and Serapie R. Zalba, recently chairman of the Department of Social Services, Cleveland State University and currently president of Zalba Hirsch Associates, Inc.

Publisher meets with writer

Laddie B. Warren, president of the Unographic Co., book publishers of Evansville, Ind., spent several hours with B.E. Kelley recently, conferring with him about his book "Down Through the Golden Years," which is to be published by the company late this year.

He praised the unusual material contained in the book and predicted a heavy demand for it, stating that he had never published a book containing as many different subjects as the one being prepared by Kelley. The book is to contain around 900 pages with top binding.

While here, Warren was the luncheon guest of Mr. and Mrs. Kelley.

It has been announced that the Ohio State Historical Society has ordered a copy of the book and pledged assistance in selling the volume.

Opinion And Comment

The Agnew affair

The humiliating agony of the Republican party continues as Vice President Agnew becomes the target of a federal criminal investigation. It does not follow that this latest development is a legitimate cause of Democratic rejoicing.

Two considerations are pertinent in this respect. One is that the possibility of the vice president's involvement in political payoffs, like the possibility of the President's guilty knowledge in the Watergate affair, is the stuff of national tragedy. These are matters far too serious, potentially far too subversive of our institutions, to warrant partisan glee.

Another essential point to be made is that Vice President Agnew, as much as the humblest man in the nation, enjoys the right to be considered innocent until proven guilty. The whole thrust of our judicial tradition rules out any conclusion that because accusations have been made against the vice president he must perforce be guilty in some measure.

Nor can any such deduction properly be drawn from Agnew's refusal to make pertinent financial records available at once to federal prosecutors. As he has noted, his office poses constitutional questions — specifically, questions as to whether executive privilege applies which should be considered.

It does not appear to us that executive privilege is involved. That doctrine, springing from the concept of the spearation of powers, would seem to apply only to the chief executive — and possibly not even to him, where criminal malfeasance is charged. Still, any arguments brought to bear on this question by the vice president's counsel deserve a hearing.

Our hope is that this process will be quickly concluded. If Agnew has nothing to hide, as he has emphatically said, he has everything to gain — and so do the American people — by a speedy resolution of this matter.

Criminal Justice report

The National Advisory Commission of Criminal Justice Standards and Goals has made two basic recommendations which may occasion widespread surprise but are nevertheless sound. The first is that the states outlaw the manufacture, sale and possession of handguns for private use — that is, use by other than police and the military. The second is that the states review their laws as to so-called victimless crimes — gambling, pornography, marijuana use and possession, prostitution, private sexual acts between consenting adults — and at very least not impose jail penalties.

These are highly controversial recommendations. One must bear in mind, however, that they are not the product of a bunch of anti-establishment radicals; on the contrary, they are advanced by a high-level commission formed about two years ago by the Nixon administration and financed by a federal grant. The members of this commission include governors and former governors, judges, mayors, police officials and various authorities on criminal justice.

This eminently responsible group has brought in an exhaustive report based on a thorough study of crime and of the question how state and local governments can effectively deal with it. The report is, as Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson has observed, a "document of uncommon importance."

Some of the report's observations about guns and our gun-oriented society are of particular interest. "Removing the handgun from American society will not eliminate crime and violence," it wisely acknowledges, "but documentation shows there is a strong correlation between the number of privately owned handguns and the corresponding use of guns in crimes of violence."

Statistics clearly bear this out. In comparable countries where gun ownership is rare, murder rates are far lower than those in the United States. We concur in the Commission's view that "private use and possession of handguns infringes on the right of the American public to be free from violence and death caused by the use of handguns."

This report cannot be quickly dealt with; it presents a wide range of recommendations, each of which must be considered on its merits. Its enlightened and forward-looking tone suggests that much of what is proposed ought to be incorporated into state laws with minimal delay.

THESE DAYS . . . by John Chamberlain

Muskie never consulted the chemists

When Sen. Edmund Muskie of Maine went all out for his Clean Air Act, he did so without consulting any knowledgeable chemists or economists.

The result of his non-deliberations meant that we have adopted legislation that attempts to apply the standards appropriate to Los Angeles to sections of the country that have no need for the types of control that are "musts" for big cities with atmospheric "inversion" problems.

More and more the Muskie law promises to be incredibly wasteful of our oil resources. The requirements for exhaust emission controls promise to put an expensive gadgetry inside the automobile hood that will burn up some 10 billion extra barrels of oil for the 1975-85 decade, an amount that is about equal to a quarter of the nation's proved oil reserves including those of the North Slope of Alaska.

THE "RIPPLE EFFECTS" of such waste must constitute an ecological disaster. For one thing, it will deprive the utilities of oil that might better be used for electrical light and power purposes, thus forcing a greater dependence on nuclear plants with their inevitable poisonous waste disposal problems. For another, it will add to our important requirements.

Since most of the oil from the Middle East and Venezuela is "sour" crude, which creates high sulfur problems, consumers are bound to bring pressure for a relaxation of sulfur control standards just to protect themselves against fuel shortages.

The meat axe approach to the clean air problem could have been avoided if our senators had only been willing to listen to more chemists and fewer lawyers. Cars emitting carbon monoxide in the Colorado mountains or the plains of North Dakota are harmless, ecologically speaking. The carbon monoxide dissipates and breaks down into non-noxious chemical form within a matter of hours.

Nature itself has been throwing carbon monoxide into the atmosphere for aeons; the amount of carbon monoxide deriving from swamplands and forests in 10 times the quantity that comes from motor vehicle exhausts. Within a given year, the grass cuttings from a 40-by-40-foot lawn will give off more polluting gas than the lawn owner's automobile.

And the belching from cattle would require attention from Sen. Muskie if he were to apply the same emission standards that he has applied to Detroit engines. A sensible Clean Air Act would have applied different standards to different population areas, treating Montana in one way and the California freeways in another.

CURRENTLY, the U.S. produces 9.3 million barrels of crude oil each day within its own geographical confines. It has a refinery capacity of 13 million barrels. Its consumption needs come to 17 million barrels, and these needs are bound to increase at a faster clip than new refinery construction even if the more frenzied ecologists were to cease their propaganda against adding to our refining capacity.

The figures dictate the importation of 8,000 barrels a day from abroad, with 4,000,000 barrels coming in refined product form.

The trouble with such dependence is twofold. For one thing, foreign crude has its high sulfur content. Secondly, the refineries in West Europe and Japan do not produce gasoline that meets U.S. Clean Air specifications.

Furthermore, where U.S. refineries will use more than 45 per cent of their capacity in producing gasoline, West European and Japanese refineries limit their gasoline production to 15 per cent of capacity. Foreigners see no reason to shift their production to help the U.S., for they can sell their gasoline and oil products in cargo quantities at the Rotterdam docks at a higher price than the oil companies in the U.S. charge for trucked gasoline at American service stations.

IN A STATEMENT before the Air and Water Pollution Subcommittee of the Senate Public Works Committee, President John K. McKinley of Texaco remarked that his company had spent some $200 million on refinery capacity that will enable it to meet the projected 1974 Clean Air requirements for low-lead gasoline. For the sake of the oil and automobile industries as a whole, however, Mr. McKinley warned that the U.S. would be better off if it were to avoid temporary dependence on costly catalytic converters during the period needed by Detroit to develop a better engine.

Catalytic technology in its current development is incredibly wasteful both of refinery capacity and the capital needed to add to our energy resources.

Mr. McKinley suggests a two-car strategy, one type car for Southern California and other critical areas, and another type for marketing in the rest of the nation. But our legislators will have to emulate Sen. James Buckley of New York and hire a few chemists instead of lawyers to advise them if we are ever to bring any common sense to bear on our linked transportation and environmental problems.

Today In History

-By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Thursday, Aug. 16, the 228th day of 1973. There are 137 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1896, gold was discovered on Bonanza Creek in Alaska, setting off the Klondike gold rush.

On this date—

In 1777, in the American Revolution, the battle of Bennington, Vt., ended in an American victory over a Hessian force under the British.

In 1861, President Abraham Lincoln prohibited the states of the Union from trading with the seceding states of the Confederacy.

In 1914, the British Expeditionary Force landed in France in World War I.

Thought for today: The vocation of every man and woman is to serve other people — Leo Tolstoy, Russian novelist and philosopher 1828-1910.

Hal Boyle . . . Jumping to conclusions

NEW YORK (AP) — Jumping to conclusions:

The deadest art in America is the art of listening. You can hardly hire anybody, even a psychiatrist, to listen to anymore. Everybody wants to be heard; when everyone talks at once, who is left to listen? What we need is a National Clam-Up Day during which everyone, from child to centenarian, would shut up and enjoy himself — and perhaps listen to the echoes of some of the wise things said but unheard yesterday.

About the worst thing you can tell a woman is that she snores. No woman will admit she does. But it is a feminine delusion that only men snore. The medical fact is that men and women snore about equally, that is, in actual numbers. But in quality of performance, the snoring of women is far inferior to that of men. No woman could ever match the depth of wheezy raspings, bottomless gurgles, stentorian sighs, cacophonous snorts, and snorous roars of a fat, middle-aged man sleeping off a huge dinner of pig knuckles, sauerkraut and beer.

The biggest problem in the average business office is what to do with a homely girl who can't spell either — but who is too nice to fire.

About the most useless thing on earth is a picturesque post card from someone you dislike who could afford to go to a better vacation resort than you went to.

No matter how much smarter you are than the other fellow, you are always willing to listen to his advice on two subjects — how to cure the hiccups and how to get rid of a cold.

Most men go to their graves secretly convinced, no matter how many other goodies life showered on them, that somehow or other they never managed to get their fair share of sex. And they wonder who did get it.

God never made a canyon, man never dug a well, as deep and empty as the drained faces of tired people you see any day in a New York City subway. They look as eroded and changeless as an abandoned farm, fixed by time in hopelessness. Nothing shows more dramatically what is wrong with civilization than this expression on subway faces.

Heaven might get more recruits if one of its attractions was more often pointed out: it is the one place left where you can go and get away from inflation. You can also escape death and taxes there.

Department is given watercraft powers

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Department of Natural Resources has been given broader authority to curb boating accidents on the state's lakes and rivers.

Gov. John J. Gilligan signed legislation giving the department's watercraft division law enforcement powers and allowing development of educational boating programs.

There were about 130,000 Indians living in the California region of the United States when it was discovered by the Spanish in 1542.

Dear Abby:

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Avoid a scene with a gentle swan song

DEAR ABBY: At my age, I should be giving advice, not asking for it, but I just don't know how to handle this.

My husband passed away two years ago of a terminal illness. While he was sick, his best friend Charlie (a divorced man) was wonderful to both of us, and he promised my husband he would "look after" me.

After my husband's death Charlie helped me in my grief and loneliness, and I transferred the love I had for my husband to him. He's pushing for marriage, but I just don't trust him. I have become suspicious, jealous, and resentful of Charlie. He says he loves me, but he is very often "unreachable," which upsets me. I have caught him in several lies, for which he always has explanations, but I am not convinced.

Every time I try to tell him I want to hold off marrying him, he gets a terrible attack of something. (Asthma or the shingles.) I am so afraid he will die, and I'll be responsible for it.

How can I get out of marrying him without making him sick?

IN A BIND

DEAR IN: Avoid a scene. Gently ease Charlie out of your life. See others and drop him gradually without telling him it's his swan song. It's your neck or his.

DEAR ABBY: I need help soon. My son is engaged to be married. I met his bride-to-be only once. She is a beautiful, rich society girl. I hear they are having a big church wedding. There will be judges, congressmen, governors and all kind of high-class people there. Abby, I have never been to a wedding like this let alone been IN one.

This is way out of my class. I wish I could say I have a headache at the last minute and ditch the whole thing. I don't know what to wear, and I won't know how to act or what to say. I'm afraid I'll be a hick from the sticks and I'll embarrass my poor son.

I do janitor work in an office building at night, and I just won't fit in with these people.

How can I either learn fast or get out of it?

GROOM'S MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Be yourself, and you'll do just fine. Ask your son to find out what kind of gown the bride's mother is wearing, and wear one that will go well with hers. (Perhaps your son and his fiancee can help you purchase the dress and accessories.) You need not feel inadequate or embarrassed. After all, you are contributing something to the wedding that is of the utmost importance: The groom!

DEAR ABBY: BUGGED IN THE BRONX, a secretary complained because her husband called her at work several times daily to talk about nothing. She said she cuts him short, saying she's busy, but he calls right back to finish a long, boring story.

You advised her to keep cutting him shorter and shorter until he gets the message.

It won't work. Here's my advice: Tell him: "No calls at work unless the house is on fire or somebody drops dead." When he continues to call, as he will, do this: "Goodby," and hang up on him before he has a chance to say anything else. When he calls back and says : "You hung up on me," you say: "I know it," and hang up on him again. Nothing else will work.

BEEN THROUGH IT

DEAR BEEN: If that's not "cutting him shorter and shorter until he gets the message" – what is?

3 found guilty in shooting case

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — An eight-man, four-woman U.S. District Court jury deliberated slightly more than two hours Wednesday before finding three men guilty in connection with the shooting of Philip J. Graziani, former assistant state attorney general.

Claude W. Truslow, 29, Bernard Lee Brumfield, 31, both of Charleston, and George Thomas Davidson Jr., 36, of Lebanon, Ohio, were found guilty of conspiracy and obstruction of justice in connection with the April 1972 wounding of Graziani.

Graziani was seriously wounded outside his Charleston home just one month before he was scheduled to testify for the government in a bribery-conspiracy trial. On trial were former West Virginia Atty. Gen. C. Donald Robertson, his brother Dana and James F. Haught, former state director of the Federal Housing Administration. They pleaded guilty and are currently serving federal prison terms.

Oldsters busy climbing Adirondacks

KEENE VALLEY, N.Y. (AP) — From the summit of 4,098-foot Cascade Mountain, Harry Gamble's eyes took in a 50-mile view of the Adirondacks in northern New York. He admired the crystalline lakes, the thick forests and especially the mountains.

"Yeah, Harry," said Glenn Fish, his husky, deeply tanned friend.

"Back to '21, I mean," Gamble added, recalling the year he climbed his first peak.

Gamble, who will be 74 in August, and Fish, 63, belong to the Adirondack 46ers, a mountain climbing club. The only requirement for membership is to hike up all 46 Adirondack peaks judged by an 1897 survey to be 4,000 feet or higher.

They achieved that goal together in July 1969, after both had retired. For Fish, a former certified public accountant in New York City who now lives along the Hudson River in Riparius, the feat took less than three years. He then became president of the 46ers, a post he left last May.

Gamble took a little longer. He climbed 5,344-foot Mt. Marcy, New York State's highest peak, in 1921, the same year he arrived in Pottersville. Nearly 50 years later, after he had turned over his hardware store to his son, he reached his 46th peak.

Now the inseparable companions climb for the fun of it and in all seasons — despite snowstorms, blackflies, the encroachments of age and the fretting of Gamble's wife. "She's the darndest worrier," he says.

"I figure golf is for old men," Gamble says. "Doesn't seem very tiring to me, walking around and hitting a ball." Fish gave up golf after he moved north because, he says, he couldn't find anyone to play 36 holes a day.

Since the two began hiking together in 1968, Fish has been urging Gamble to pause during the ascents and savor the "woods experience." But on the day they climbed Cascade last month with Fish's 32-year-old nephew and two other hikers, Harry moved at his usual speed. Skipping over mud and fallen trees, dodging boulders and humming "Red River Valley," he arrived at the summit a half-hour before Fish. Only Fish's nephew kept up with him.

Your Income Tax

EDITOR'S NOTE: This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Q. In June, my home was damaged by flood. I would have gotten a better tax advantage by deducting my casualty loss on the return I filed in April. Do I have to wait to claim this loss on my 1973 return?

A. If, in 1973, your area was declared a disaster area by the President, and, as a result of that disaster, you suffered a casualty loss, you have the option of deducting the loss on your 1972 federal income tax return or waiting until next year.

If you have already filed your return for the prior year, file Form 1040X, which is specifically designed to expedite your refund. For details on how to do it, see IRS Publication 547, "Tax Information on Disasters, Casualty Losses, and Thefts." Send a postcard to your local IRS office for a free copy.

Q. I've earned more than $10,000 so far this year. Shouldn't my employer stop withholding Social Security tax from my pay?

A. The maximum wage base for social security tax withholding in 1973 is $10,800. This equals $631.80 in Social Security tax. After this point, your employer should not be withholding Social Security tax. If he is still withholding this tax, see him to adjust this over-collection.

Any taxpayer who holds more than one job during the year and has more than $10,800 of his wages subject to social security tax can claim the excess tax withheld as a credit against his tax.

Q. I used money from my part-time job to buy new furniture for my bedroom. Will this have any effect on whether or not my parents can claim me as a dependent?

A. No. Capital expenditures for furniture and appliances are not included in total support. As long as your parents contribute more than one-half of your total support and meet all the other dependency tests, they can still claim you as a dependent.

Q. I increased the value of my home by installing central air conditioning. Can I get a deduction for what I spent?

A. No. This expense cannot be deducted, but it can be added to the cost basis of your home. This way, the cost of the air conditioning unit will be taken into account in the event you sell your home.

Child killed in Oklahoma thunderstorm

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Fair weather spread over most of the nation today following a night of widely scattered rainfall and lightning which led to the death of one Oklahoma child.

Thunderstorms were scattered from the central Plains and southern Plateau to the northern Mississippi Valley and along the Gulf Coast. Showers also dampened the northern and Middle Atlantic coast, where fog restricted visibility.

Providence, R.I., was swamped with more than 4 inches of rain during the past 24 hours. Duluth, Minn., basements were flooded Wednesday evening when 2.25 inches of rain poured into that city. Tulsa, Okla., measured 1.66 inches of rain about midnight.

Lightning set fire to a mobile home at Jay, Okla., near Tulsa, and to a house near Tahlequah and felled a tree killing one child.

Thunderstorms in parts of southern Arizona released heavy rains, filling normally dry creek beds. Strong gusty winds blew sand and dust over the region. Heavy showers caused some flooding in low areas of northwestern Texas.

A tornado damaged orange trees near Winter Haven, Fla., late Wednesday. Twisters also were sighted in the Dakotas, Nebraska and eastern Minnesota, but no personal injuries were reported.

Mrs. Kirk's Kitchen

By GLADYS KIRK

It's Fair Time Again!

This week I'll be working with two 4-H'ers who will be representing Fayette County in the 4-H activities at the Ohio State Fair on Aug. 23 and Aug. 31.

Two of our members, Debbie Duff and Nelta Baker are preparing their exhibit for the Home Furnishings Decorama on Thursday, Aug. 23. A professional home economist will be interviewing them on the techniques they used to refinish their wood furniture pieces. They will be in the first class at 8:30 a.m. on Aug. 23 in the Lausche Building. Do plan to stop by.

Six members are scheduled to participate in the 4-H Food and Nutrition Show on Friday, Aug. 31, in the Lausche Youth Building. Debbie Krupla will be judged on her "Food Preservation" project at 8:30 a.m. Later that morning at 9:45 a.m., Lisa Jackson and Melissa Mark will be answering questions on how to prepare and serve "Quick Meals". Dee Dee Lange and Mary Ann Wilson are scheduled for 11 a.m. for their "International Foods" project judging. Competing in "Breads" at 2:15 p.m. will be Lynne Rapp.

As in our own Nutrition Show at the Fayette County Fair, these girls will be scoring a group of other participants in their class as well as being judged by a professional person. The combination of these scores will determine the "Outstanding of the Day". After judging, the general public is welcome to talk to the girls about their projects. Interest many times results in free taste samples!

Visitors to the Lausche Youth Building at 9:30 a.m. that day will also find Fayette County 4-H'ers giving demonstrations. Christine Taylor, Kelly Hicks, Jo-Retta Brown, Debbie Duff, Debbie Cremeans, Cindy Baird and Terry Thompson will be giving their presentation to those who stop by to see the activities.

Fayette County's seven participants in the Style Revue have an extra long day at the Fair. After registration between 8:30 and 10:00 a.m. on Friday, Aug. 31, Marianne Arnold, Leslie Harrison, Terri Wissinger, Julie Frost, Jomi Warner, Loretta Braun, and Cindy Grover will be practicing modeling for the Style Show that afternoon at 3:30 p.m. in the Youth Center Auditorium. All participants are dressed at 12:30 p.m. for judging and modeling rehearsal. The participants are then divided into groups in which they score each other on fashion, grooming, posture, poise, construction, fit, design and personable qualities while a professional person also scores each group. Those named as "Outstanding of the day in each class will include the persons rated highest on each of the two lists, the number depending upon the size of the class.

Those of you who would like to see the girls model their outfits on Aug. 31 should be at the Youth Center Auditorium prompty at 3:10 p.m. when the doors are open to the public. In the 3:30 p.m. Style Revue that day Marianne Arnold will also be competing for the State Fashion Board and Julie Frost will be submitting forms to try for the National Dress Revue.

We hope to see many Fayette County people in the audience supporting our young people in these events.

Mrs. Smith honored

Mrs. Rachel Smith was guest of honor at a luncheon at the Terrace Lounge recently. A former employe of the Margaret Clark Oakfield Convalescent Center, she is now employed at Memorial Hospital as a licensed practical nurse. Hostesses for the luncheon were co-employes, aides and nurses.

Family dinner honors Mrs. Kimmey

A family get-together was held at Wilson School Sunday with a basket dinner at noon. The party was held in honor of Mrs. Bessie Kimmey of Staunton, and the afternoon was spent playing softball and other games.

Sharing the afternoon and dinner were Mrs. Vera Kimmey, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kimmey II and Roger, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kitchen and Terry, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kimmey, Ricky, Bobby and Stevie, Mrs. Shirley Gilmore and Brian, and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Gentry and Jason, all of Staunton;

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kimmey III of Burgin, Ky.; Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Miller of Frankfort; Joe Lux of New Holland; Mr. and Mrs. Jim Kimmey, Kelly and Karey, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Kitchen, Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Ely, Dee and Stephanie, Mr. and Mrs. Don Sever and Amy, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Starr and Linda, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Strouse and Charlene, and Mrs. Bessie Kimmey, all of Wahington. TOPS chapter plans party

Mrs. Richard Southworth was named "best loser and queen" for the week, and Mrs. Beryl Smith and Mrs. Emmett Campbell tied for officer of the week, when the OH TOPS chapter met Monday evening in Eastside School. There were 23 members who weighed in.

A family get-together is planned for 6:30 p.m. Aug. 21 at Washington Park, and all members are urged to attend. Names were given to be called this week, to encourage all to continue losing weight and to attend meetings. Volleyball will be the game of the week.

The quote for the week is "Begin today to be the size you want to be tomorrow."

Anyone interested in taking off pounds sensibly, is welcome to attend meetings held each Monday in Eastside School.

Creamer family has reunion

The 74th annual Creamer family reunion took place Sunday at the Spring Grove United Methodist Church. A basket dinner was held at noon and officers for the coming year are: Mrs. Ruth Buck president; Maynard Marine, vice president; Mrs. Medrith Creamer, treasurer; Mrs. Irene Harris, secretary; and Nelson Black, historian.

In the afternoon, all visited the old Creamer Cemetery.

It was decided by the group to meet again next year at the same place on the second Sunday in August.

AMERICAN FAMILY PLANNING

HAVE YOU WRITTEN A BOOK?

The field editor of a well-known New York subsidy publishing firm will be in Chillicothe in September. He will be interviewing local authors in a quest for finished manuscripts suitable for book publication. All subjects will be considered, including fiction and non-fiction, poetry, juveniles, religious books. etc.

If you have completed a book-length manuscript (or nearly so) on any subject, and would like a professional appraisal (without cost or obligation), please write immediately describing your work and stating which part of the day (a.m. or p.m.) you would prefer for an appointment. Please mention your phone number. You will promptly receive a confirmation for a definite time and place.

Authors with completed manuscripts unable to appear may send them directly to us for a free reading and evaluation. We will also be glad to hear from those whose literary works are still in progress. Please address:

Marriage vows exchanged in ceremony

Miss Gaye Lynn Flax, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack L. Flax, Miami Trace Rd., became the bride of Edwin Frank Thompson Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Thompson, Washington-Waterloo Rd., in a lovely summer wedding held in Grace United Methodist Church.

Rev. Allen Puffenberger and Rev. Gerald Wheat officiated at the double ring ceremony Aug. 4 before the altar enhanced with candelabra entwined with greenery and rose, aqua and tangerine ribbon. The altar vases were filled with white gladioli, vari-colored carnations, greenery and baby's breath. Ribbon and greenery also marked the family pews.

Garrell Leaure, organist presented a half-hour of wedding music.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiant in a gown of Irish lace and silk chiffon, designed and made by her mother. The empire bodice of lace featured a scoop neckline and short cap sleeves encrusted with seed pearls. The full chiffon skirt, over bridal satin, fell to a chapel length train. Appliques of lace and seed pearls adorned the skirt, which held a soft bustle bow at the back waistline. Hand beaded Alencon lace edged the neckline, sleeves and hemline of the gown. The bouffant veil of silk illusion was caught to a demi cap of Alencon lace and seed pearls. Her only jewelry was a small hand carved cameo pendant, a gift from her grandmother, the late Mrs. Rex Pittenger, who received it as a gift from her grandmother on her graduation day.

She carried a colonial bouquet of stephanotis, rosebuds, feathered carnations and baby's breath tied with a shower of white satin ribbons tied in love knots. Two linen handkerchiefs belonging to the bride and groom's grandmothers, were laced into the bouquet.

Miss Cindy Thompson, sister of the groom, was maid of honor. She wore a formal length gown of white batiste, with shadow stripes of small pink flowers. The square cut neckline and short puffed sleeves were edged in a narrow Irish lace of rosebuds. A wide sash of deep rose crepe encircled the waist and fell to the hemline. She wore a white sheer braid picture hat with a deep rose band, and a cluster of Irish rosebuds and feathered carnations.

Miss Nancy Campbell and Miss Kristi Cross of New Holland served as bridesmaids. They were attired identical to the maid of honor, Miss Campbell in aqua, and Miss Cross in tangerine.

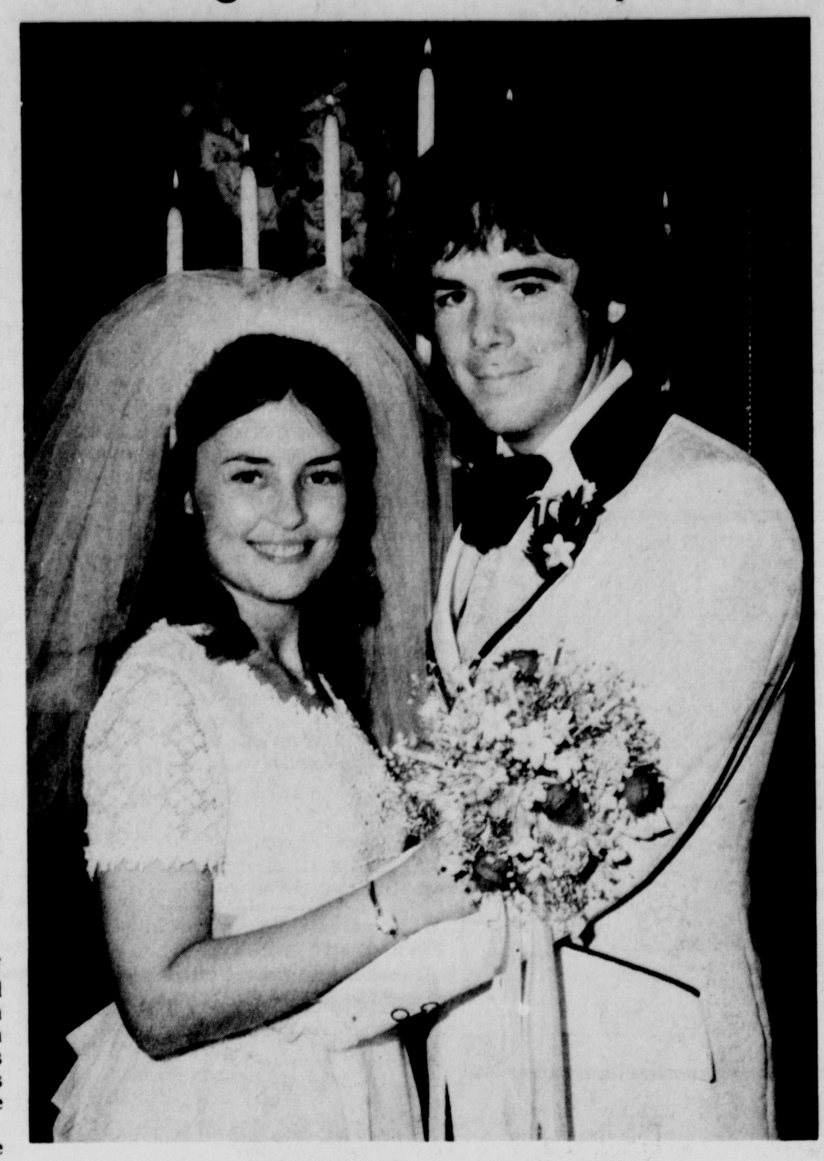

They all wore monogrammed bracelets, gifts of the bride, and carried white wicker baskets filled with feathered carnations and baby's breath, with ribbons in shades to match their gowns.

Jack Waddle served as best man. Douglas Stayrook of Columbus and Jack Flax II, brother of the bride, were groomsmen and Gary Armbrust, cousin of the groom, and Michael Inskeep were ushers.

Hostesses for the reception held in the church courtyard were Mrs. Kenneth Miller and Mrs. Damon Merritt, aunts of the bride, Mrs. Randall Miller, Mrs. Kenneth B. Miller of Dayton, Mrs. Michael Inskeep and Miss Sherri Woods. Mrs. Steve Shipley of Athens, was at the guest book.

The bride's table was centered with a three tiered wedding cake decorated with flowers of rose, aqua and tangerine, and topped with a cluster of carnations, Fuji mums and baby's breath. The base was encircled with greenery and flowers. Crystal candelabra and silver nut dishes complimented the table from which punch and hors-d-oeuvres were also served.

Mrs. Thompson is a graduate of Miami Trace High School, and was a spring graduate of Ohio State University with a bachelor of science in education. She has been employed by the Columbus City School system, as a special education teacher.

Mr. Thompson is also a graduate of MTHS and of OSU with a degree in business administration. He is employed by Huntington National Bank of Columbus, as a management trainee.

Upon their return from a wedding trip to Florida where they visited Disneyworld and other places of interest, they are at home to their friends at Lincoln Park West, Apt. 6, 4533 Linwood Lane N, Columbus.

Pike County reunion set

The annual Pike County reunion will be held Aug. 26 at Goshen Park, near Mechanicsburg. The meeting will be held at the No. 3 shelter house at the foot of the hill at the lower entrance.

A picnic basket dinner at noon and a business meeting at 2 p.m. will be featured. All residents and ex-residents of Pike County are invited.

Anniversary party is a surprise

A surprise gathering of relatives and friends honoring the 25th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. James Connell, 309 Buckeye Rd., was held in the country home of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Steve Huff at Madison Mills Sunday. The party was planned by the Huffs and the Connell's two sons, Pat and Brian. Another son, Richard, is serving with the US armed forces in Thailand.

The Huff home was decorated with purple, white and silver. A three tiered anniversary cake, baked and decorated by Mrs. Glenn McCoy, was topped by a bridal couple and decorated with purple violets. Crystal candelabra flanked the cake. Punch and nuts were served by Joe and Lu Brown, nieces of Mrs. Connell, Mrs. Sarah Brown, her sister, and Mrs. Paul Huff.

Mr. and Mrs. Connell received many lovely gifts.

TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — It's official now. Julia Child has bid adieu to public television and won't be back this fall with new episodes of her "French Chef" series. The shows you'll see will be reruns.

It's not that she lacks an underwriter for her popular cooking show. It's just that she wants to take a break after a decade of showing viewers how to whip up Gallic eats.

"There are people who would like to underwrite new shows, but Julia's been working for 10 years straight," says a spokeswoman at Boston's WGBH-TV, where "The French Chef" is produced.

"She has a house in France and she sort of wanted to take a sabbatical," the spokeswoman said, adding that there is a possibility Miss Child might do occasional cooking specials or start her series again. She said underwriters are interested in both prospects.

"But we can't do a thing about it until she comes back after Labor Day and we've talked to her about it," the spokeswoman said. "So, there won't be a new series of "French Chef" programs this fall.

"There might be a few specials if she likes the idea. If she decides to go back into daily production, there might be another series but it wouldn't be ready for this fall, obviously."

Miss Child, a pleasant matter-of-fact woman, began cooking on public television Feb. 11, 1963, Since then, she's done nearly 330 shows and written several best-selling cookbooks.

Her show was in danger of going off the air last September for lack of an underwriter, which in public TV is a sponsor who pays for cost of the show but isn't allowed to surround it with commercials.

Finally, the Polaroid Corp., which had underwritten the show for three previous years, decided to do it again for the 1972-73 season when no other support seemed imminent.

Walter Cronkite, the veteran reporter and anchorman of the CBS Evening News, has been missing from that weekday show since May 28. But he's not ill and hasn't been declared AWOL by the network.

A network spokesman says the five-year contract provides for a three-month vacation each year. That is indeed a good contract.

Ohio Libertarian Party asks for impeachment of Nixon

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Libertarian party has urged five Ohio congressmen to support impeachment of President Nixon, backing up its call with petitions from their home districts.

Kay Harroff, state party chairman, told the congressmen by letter that Nixon has "invoked the 'divine right of kings' in the name of 'executive privilege' and 'national security'" and that Congress "should decisively refuse any such sanction."

The petitions, signed by 282 persons in the Akron-Cleveland area, were circulated and mailed to congressmen prior to Nixon's Wednesday night nationally televised speech.

They were sent to Rep. Robert F. Drinan of Massachusetts, who recently introduced a bill in the House calling for impeachment, and to Reps. William E. Minshall, James V. Stanton, Louis Stokes, Charles A. Vanik and John F. Seiberling, all of Ohio.

The chairman said the Libertarian workers circulating the petitions found that only about 25 per cent of those contacted favored immediate impeachment. She said many wanted the Senate Watergate investigation to continue indefinitely.

She also said a number of persons "feared their signing would result in government wrath and harassment."

The petitions said that Nixon should be impeached because he "violated the constitution by usurping power, denying constitutional rights and subverting justice." They also said that "by his own admission, Nixon set up a secret police organization and authorized illegal entry and illegal spying by government agents against American citizens for political purposes."

And the petitions said that "Nixon has made his administration one of secrecy and isolation from the Congress and the American people."

The Libertarian party advocates individual rights and the absence of government interference with them.

Only hardship price boosts should be OKd, DiSalle says

SAVANNAH, Ga. (AP) — The director of the Economic Stabilization Commission under President Truman says that industry should have to prove a hardship before any price increases are granted.

Michael V. DiSalle, the director of the Economic Stabilization Commission in 1952, said Wednesday he believes all price increases should be reviewed by the agency.

DiSalle, a former governor of Ohio, said, "I think industry should have to prove it would create a hardship if the price increase is not granted."

He also criticized the scope and size of the Cost of Living Council, which he said were too small to manage the economy.

An agency of 600 people is not large enough, he said, to run a wage and price control program for 200 million people.

"The government should not be put in the position to go chasing price increases," he added. "A program of that kind cannot function."

DiSalle, visiting friends here, suggested in an interview that an agency should have enough people to process price increase applications from industries, to interpret regulations and to enforce its own decisions.

He said enforcement should not be in the hands of the Internal Revenue Service, which "has a big enough job of its own."

Compared with Nixon's program which has only one office in Washington, the Truman program had 71 district offices.

The smallness of the Nixon economic supervisory apparatus, DiSalle said, is to blame for the rising prices and other economic problems.

Tax rollback cash distributed by state

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The State Auditor's office has disbursed $61.3 million in property tax rollbacks to Ohio's 88 counties.

Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson said the rollback money was the result of tax settlements for the last half of 1971. The legislature authorized the 10 per cent rollback in December 1971

Pull body from river

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — The body of an unidentified man who had been shot, bound and weighted was pulled from the Ohio River Wednesday near Lawrenceburg, Ind.

An autopsy was to be conducted at the forensic medicine laboratory here.

The body was discovered by two water skiers and recovered by Kentucky State Police.

Sgt. Ray Wilson of the Boone County, Ky., police said the man had been shot at least once in the chest. His arms and legs were tied and a 25-pound anchor was attached to the body, Wilson said.

Authorities estimated the man had been dead three or four days.

Delay hearing on Burr Oak

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A hearing on a suit by operators of Burr Oak State Lodge to reopen the facility near Glouster has been delayed until at least Aug. 24 by the Ohio Supreme Court.

The high court took the action Wednesday on a request filed by Gov. John J. Gilligan and other state officials.

The hearing had been scheduled this week in Guernsey County Common Pleas Court in Cambridge.

Gilligan closed the lodge and state-operated cabins at Burr Oak State Park Aug. 3 following a series of bomb threats. The park grounds have remained open.

Galena man to head Churches of Christ

MILTON, Wis. (AP) — Ernest Bond of Galena, Ohio, will be installed Saturday as president of the 1974 conference of the National Council of Churches of Christ in the United States.

Alaska goes after income from north slope oil

By JOHN GREELY
Associated Press Writer

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — When Alaska's oil starts oozing to West Coast markets, perhaps sometime in 1977, the state expects a $500 million windfall in annual tax revenue.

The total could be as low as $200 million, depending on future oil prices and the outcome of secret negotiations between the state and industry over how to fix a value for North Slope oil and who should do it.

The talks between Gov. William A. Egan and the seven companies composing the Alyeska Pipeline Service Co. have been going on for about a year. They were initiated when the consortium filed suit against newly adopted state tax and regulatory laws.

At stake are huge sums of revenue for Alaska's 310,000 residents, who fully expect the trans-Alaska pipeline to be the first of several major projects for moving their vast oil and gas resources. Until the disputed laws were adopted, Alaska's oil royalties had been figured as a percentage of the wellhead value, or the refinery price less the cost of getting it to market. But, while the pipeline has been under court challenge for two years, inflation and environmental stipulations have more than tripled its original $1 billion cost.

Fearing zero state revenue, Egan sponsored and the legislature approved last year a $2.65 per barrel floor on North Slope wellhead prices. Above that level the state would reap a percentage tax, below it a flat cents-per-barrel assessment, thus guaranteeing flow into the state treasury.

By setting prices in the field, the state has attempted to tread ground traditionally held by the industry. And the oil companies resent it.

However, state economists predict — and the industry has yet to dispute it — that Alaskan oil will be selling for $4 or more a barrel by 1978, so the $2.65 wellhead floor may never be needed.

What has particularly piqued the industry is a law giving the state regulatory authority akin to that of the federal Interstate Commerce Commission.

Instead of operating under life of the field leases, the industry would be forced to renegotiate contracts every 25 years or less. The economic life of the pipeline is expected to be 35 years.

In addition, the act gives the state an option to buy up to 20 per cent of the pipeline, if the legislature approves, and sets out land rental charges geared to escalate as industry profits rise. The tax could mean an additional $275 million for the state during the life of the pipeline, according to state-industry estimates.

Passage of the laws was spurred by Eagan's assertions the state would be bankrupt by 1977 due to heavy deficit spending that has been eating into the $900 million that oil companies paid in 1969 for drilling rights on the North Slope.

Although the Prudhoe Bay pool from which the pipeline will flow contains an estimated 9.8 billion barrels of recoverable oil, the field is just a fraction of the area of the North Slope, where exploration is still in its infancy. Geologists believe more than 20 billion barrels can be pumped from the slope, with trillions of cubic feet of natural gas to follow.

Exploration also has just begun on the continental shelf of Alaska where huge unproved reserves may lie.

The economic benefits for the state's residents will be many, although theories abound whether they will come in a big boom or a little bang.

An industry-recommissioned study predicts 18,000 new jobs will be available during the three years of pipeline construction and that the population will grow by 40,000 people. Unemployment, however, is expected to increase due to the influx.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

"Reasonable Wear and Tear"

Because the rent for his apartment was high, Henderson figured he could do pretty much as he pleased with the elegant furnishings.

During his occupancy he broke two valuable lamps, lost a costly pitcher and a painting, and spattered the antique furniture with unremovable stains.

When the landlord demanded reimbursement for the damage, Henderson said he could not be held liable for "reasonable wear and tear."

But a court saw things the landlord's way and ordered Henderson to make good.

IF YOU ARE renting a house or an apartment, chances are that somewhere in your lease there is a clause about reasonable wear and tear. This puts commonsense limits on the use you can make of the premises. In other cases, courts have held it wrongful when

(1) a man chopped wood indoors, ripping the wallpaper, ssplintering the woodwork, and punching holes in the plaster;

(2) a woman let her bathtub overflow, causing extensive water damage; damage;

(3) a man, trying to chisel open a stuck window, gouged great holes in the sill;

(4) a couple permitted their pet poodle to soil the living room rug at will.

ON THE OTHER hand, the law recognizes that a certain amount of deterioration — scuffed floors, worn carpets, nicked chairs — can come from normal, everyday use.

Nor is the tenant usually liable for harm done by the elements. Accordingly, in another case, the weathering and weakening of porch railings and outside shutters were held not the tenant's responsibility.

As one judge put it:

"Reasonable wear and tear contemplates that deterioration will occur by reason of time and use despite ordinary care. A tenant is not required to renovate the premises at the expiration of his lease."

Japan gives economic aid to U.S.

By BARRY SHLACHTER
Associated Press Writer

TOKYO (AP) — Only a few years ago, Japan was receiving large dollops of American aid. Now Japan feels the United States can use some financial assistance itself.

In early August, Japan's Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka announced his government was granting $10 million to 10 U.S. universities. The money is earmarked for Japanese studies programs which have been hurt by decreasing funds from the U.S. government and private foundations.

Last September, the Mitsubishi industrial group of 26 companies donated $1 million to Harvard University. Not to be outdone, the rival Sumitomo group gave $2 million to Yale University and another $1 million to the Japan Society of New York this June.

Japan, now affluent and ranking third in the world in terms of gross national product, has suddenly turned philanthropic.

Japan was able to rebuild after World War II with generous American assistance. And the Japanese, ever mindful of favors done them, would claim they would like to repay what they consider a moral obligation or "giri."

"I think it has to do with our psychology," said Masaya Miyoshi, an official of the influential Keidanren — Federation of Economic Organizations. "We feel quite indebted to the United States. America helped us after the war and it still helps us today — with its nuclear umbrella for defense and raw materials for our industries.

"And so for past — and present — favors, we are giving America a sort of 'o-chugen' (midsummer) present," Miyoshi added.

Mitsubishi made its donations to Harvard after a recommendation by one of its professors, a Chinese law expert. The money will go to sponsor a teaching post for Japanese law at Harvard.

Aware of the Mitsubishi donation and approached itself by four Yale professors, Sumitomo decided to do its rival one better.

"The Yale professors came to us saying they needed money for its Japanese studies program as government and foundation grants were being reduced. And in view of the Mitsubishi gift, we decided to grant Yale $2 million — twice as much," said Shozo Hotta, the chairman of Sumitomo bank.

"Of course, a major consideration was that we Japanese haven't forgotten how America helped us immediately after the war."

Lookout house fire probed

The former 1950 gambling casino turned plush supper club and restaurant was destroyed by fire Tuesday.

Investigators Joe Wilhoite and Phil Hampton would not speculate about the cause. They said they intended today to interview employes and firemen.

"The amount of insurance and money involved are the factors here," said Hampton Wednesday.

He said that arson investigators are assigned to every fire where there is a large loss or a loss of life. There was no loss of life in the fire here.

George Jacoby, comptroller for the owners, Ohio Real Estate Investment Co., said the building was insured for $1.2 million, and $550,000 for the contents. The firm estimated the loss at $2.5 million.

The club was closed down July 15 for remodeling and had been scheduled to reopen Sept. 1.

Porter hears prison suit

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)— U.S. District Court Judge David S. Porter, with an admonishment to Ohio prison officials not to take any action against suing prisoners, has set a hearing in chambers Friday on a suit charging inhuman treatment at the Lucasville penitentiary.

Porter denied a temporary injunction to unseat three prison officials Wednesday. The suit was filed by the Ohio Prisoners Union on behalf of the 500 inmates at the prison.

Named as defendants were Ohio Gov. John J. Gilligan, Ohio Corrections Director Bennett Cooper, and prison Supt. W. J. Whealon and his associates James Schotten and and Jerry Foulk.

The suit asks the removal of the latter three for "misfeasance and malfeasance" and asks $250,000 in damages.

Judge Porter also ordered that male lawyers be permitted into the prison to interview their clients.

Vigilantes eye rustlers

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — Vigilante groups are springing up in an attempt to stop widespread livestock rustling across West Virginia, and innocent people may be affected, according to state Agriculture Commissioner Gus Douglass.

"Stealing, rustling and illegal slaughtering of livestock have caused the farmers to start taking justice into their own hands," he said in a statement. "I am very much afraid that some innocent party might be hurt by these groups."

The "alarming growth" in rustling stems from the short supply of meat in the state, the commissioner said.

Some of the stolen livestock has been slaughtered in the fields in unsanitary conditions, he warned, and inspections have been stepped up to ensure that commercially available meat is safe.

The rustling may also affect future supplies of beef, he noted, because some of the animals taken are breeding stock.

Ask injunction for air cleanup

GARY, Ind. (AP)—A federal suit against U.S. Steel Corp. seeks a mandatory injunction to force the giant steelmaker to comply with an Environmental Protection Agency order.

The suit filed Wednesday charges U.S. Steel with excessive particulate emissions from its Gary Works and the Universal Atlas Cement Plant.

"This is the first suit of its type in the country under the Clean Air Act and we will insist on compliance with our order," said Valdas V. Adankus, acting EPA regional director.

A spokesman for U.S. Steel said the order would not allow the company enough time to change over to a new steelmaking process with built-in pollution controls. He said it could result in the shutting down of two open hearth steelmaking furnaces.

Lake Erie going bad 100 years?

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—A two-year $500,000 study concludes that the offshore waters of Lake Erie have deteriorated steadily for more than 100 years. It adds that no significant improvement has occurred recently in either the offshore waters or lower Cuyahoga River.

The findings dispute recent reports that the lake and river have been getting much cleaner.

The study was directed by researchers with Cleveland's water quality program in cooperation with scientists at Cleveland State, John Carroll and Case Western Reserve universities. It was funded mainly by the U. S. Environmental Protection Agency.

Al B. Garlauskas, project director for the city's water quality program, said the findings indicate that cleanup plans to get the water quality back to that of 1900 may not be adequate. He explained that cleanup standards have been based on previous studies listing 1900 a year when Lake Erie was not polluted.

However, Garlauskas said water analysis records uncovered for the first time show that offshore lake waters were much cleaner in 1850 than 1900. This means that it may require much tighter standards than now proposed to get the water back to the unpolluted state, he added.

Garlauskas said the study will be valuable in planning water quality programs and for evaluating the success of cleanup efforts now under way by the City of Cleveland and some industries.

He said much of the study was put together by Denis Case, former project director for the city's water quality program. Case is now director of research for the Ohio Department of Natural Resources.

Major conclusions of the study include:

-Lake Erie waters are quite clean a mile offshore. Cleveland's contribution to the lake's pollution as a whole is minor but near the shore it is tremendous.

--Recent reports that the lake's quality is improving appear to be misleading, at least in the Cleveland area.

--There are several sections of badly polluted water and others of fair water quality along the lakefront. There is good quality immediately east and west of the city.

--The city's two public beaches, Edgewater and White City, are both within zones of poor water quality.

--Fish populations in area waters are "under stress from the degradation of the ecosystem." The Cuyahoga River is the worst area with only a few fish found in the lower reaches.

--A wide variety of fish exist but most are of relatively low food value.

Loren E. Noble,
Plaintiff, vs.
Charles Moore, et al.,
Defendants.

NO. CI-73-181
LEGAL NOTICE

TO: Charles Moore, Anne Myers, Sarah E. Waples, aka Sadie E. Waples, Ethel LaMarr Moore, Lora H. Moore, Forest F. Moore, Dean Moore, Elsie A. Moore and Carrie H. Hammond, the unknown heirs of Charles Moore, Anne Myers, Sarah E. Waples, aka Sadie E. Waples, Ethel LaMarr Moore, Lora H. Moore, Forest F. Moore, Dean Moore, Elsie A. Moore and Carrie H. Hammond, and the unknown heirs, assigns, devisees, legatees, executors and administrators of Edward Isaac Moore, deceased, all of whose address is unknown and cannot, with reasonable diligence, be ascertained.

You will take notice that Loren E. Noble, individually and as executor of the Walter P. Noble estate, commenced his civil action in the Court of Common Pleas of Fayette County, Ohio, in the above styled case to quiet title to the following described tracts of real estate.

TRACT ONE: Beginning at a rail road spike set in the center of White Oak Road, VMS 3701, Village of Bloomingburg, Fayette County, Ohio, Northeast corner to a 0.4041 acre tract belonging to Oscar R. Glass (Deed Book 102, page 630) and the northwest corner to a 1.83 acre tract (of which this is a part) conveyed to W. P. Noble by deed recorded October 29, 1964 in Deed Book 106, page 498, Fayette County Recorder's Office.

Thence S. 73 deg. 42' W along Noble's south line a distance of 143.88 feet to a 6 inch round wooden fence post in the east line of said Glass 0.4041 acre tract;

Thence N 20 deg. 12' W along said Glass 0.4041 acre tract a distance of 165.62 feet to the place of beginning, containing 0.567 acre and subject to all legal highways and easement of record.

TRACT TWO: Beginning at a point in the centerline of White Oak Road, V. M. S. 3701, Village of Bloomingburg, Fayette County, Ohio Northwest corner to a 10.83 acre tract belonging to Daniel L. and Pauline Hidy (Deed Book 109, Page 582) and Northeast corner to a 1.83 acre tract (of which this is a part) conveyed to W. P. Noble by deed recorded October 29, 1964 in Deed Book 106, Page 498; thence S 74 deg. 30 min. W along the centerline of White Oak Road a distance of 258.38 feet; to the place or true point of beginning;

Thence S 73 deg. - 42 min. W - along Noble's south line a distance of 82.01 feet to a point;

Thence N 15 deg. - 30 min. W - along a new line through Noble's a distance of 163.06 feet, to a point in the centerline of White Oak Road;

Thence N 74 deg. - 30 min. E - along the centerline of White Oak Road a distance of 82.00 feet to the true point of beginning;

Containing 13,328 square feet or 0.306 acres of land and subject to all legal highways - being a NEW DESCRIPTION as surveyed - August 1968 - by Richard Wm. Keiser, Registered Surveyor No. 5444;

TRACT THREE: Beginning at a point in the centerline of White Oak Road, V.M.S. 3701, Village of Bloomingburg, Fayette County, Ohio, northwest corner to a 10.83 acre tract belonging to Daniel L. and Pauline Hidy (Deed Book 109, page 582) and northeast corner to a 1.08 acre tract (second tract, of which this is a part) conveyed to Edward I. Moore by deed recorded July 11, 1921, in Deed Book 46, page 176; thence S. 74 deg. 30 min. W. along the centerline of White Oak Road, a distance of 132.38 feet to the true point of beginning, thence S. 15 deg. 30 min. The sum and substance of his complaint is that Walter P. Noble, deceased was seized in fee simple absolute title to TRACT ONE of the above described premises and that Loren E. Noble is seized in fee simple absolute title to TRACTS TWO, THREE, and FOUR of the above described premises and that they claim such title by adverse possession, by and through various named title holders, who have openly and notoriously claimed title to said real estate by adverse possession for a period of more than twenty-one years.

The plaintiff, Loren E. Noble, individually and as executor of the Walter P. Noble estate, further has alleged in his complaint that you, as defendants, have some claim or interest in the aforesaid real estate. You are hereby required to answer said complaint and set up your claim or forever be barred to what interest you may have in said real estate, on or before the 15th day of October, 1973.

LAST SURVIVOR — Eagle Creek Bridge, on Ohio 763 in Brown County, will soon be the only remaining wooden covered bridge on the state highway system. Ohio Transportaiion Director J. Phillip Richley has promised to keep the rebuilt bridge on the state system as a reminder "of our colorful past and inheritance."

Last covered 'state' bridge to get 'tender, loving care'

"Tender, loving care" will be given the last wooden, covered bridge on the state highway system, according to J. Phillip Richley, director of the Ohio Department of Transportation.

Richley said the Eagle Creek Bridge, on Ohio 763 in Brown County, will be given special care since it represents Ohio's rich heritage. The bridge will be retained as a part of the state highway system routing.

"The bridge represents a part of a past that all Ohioans share," said Richley. "We will continue to preserve it as a tribute to the state's colorful past and a reminder of our inhertance."

It will become the only wooden bridge on the state highway system when a new bridge is complete to replace the Gov. Kirker covered bridge on Ohio 136 in Adams County. The covered Kirker Bridge will remain as a historic landmark but will revert to the Adams County Commissioners and the county historical society.

The Eagle Creek bridge is known locally as the Bowman Bridge because the Bowman family had a general store nearby when the wood truss structure was originally built in 1872

"THE BOWMAN FAMILY took a great interest in the wooden bridge," said Richley. "Their store was located north of the covered structure and customers began to call it Bowman Bridge."

The rustic, one-lane bridge is surrounded by Sycamore trees and blends with the scenic, southern Ohio countryside. Rebuilt in 1952, the Douglas Fir bridge is 14 feet, 10 inches wide, spans 168 feet and has a 10-and-a-half-foot clearance.

Built on dry-laid limestone abutments, the bridge is listed in excellent condition by ODOT's Regional District Nine Office. Eagle Creek is the dividing line between two townships and the bridge connects Byrd Township on the north with Huntington Township on the south.

"While a one-lane, wooden bridge is not usually part of the modern highway system Ohio has developed, the Bowman Bridge is worth the special rating," said Richley. "The highway carries mainly local traffic and few trucks, so it can be retained on the system with little chance of hindering free-flowing traffic.

"This beautiful bridge will continue to be used daily much the same as our large, multi-lane structures. But those crossing this wooden structure will have a view into a part of our history which added to Ohio's greatness."

Phone talks seen moving off center

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The deadlocked negotiations between General Telephone Co. and striking Communications Workers of America have apparently moved off center, a company spokesman said.

Don Detweiler said union negotiators were expected to offer new contract proposals today in a session with the company and federal mediator Howard Hughes.

Union officials could not be reached for comment.

The company has remained firm on its proposal of a 7 per cent wage hike since the strike began July 16. The union has sought a pay boost of 10 per cent and job security in the negotiations.

Prior to Detweiler's statement Wednesday on the new union proposal, Hughes said no progress has been made in the talks.

Teams meet Sunday at OSU

Cincy, Browns to renew rivalry

CINCINNATI — The Cincinnati Bengals and the Cleveland Browns renew their "Battle of Ohio" at 2 p.m. Sunday in a pre-season pro football game at Ohio Stadium on the Ohio State University campus at Columbus.

A near capacity crowd is expected for the second meeting between the Bengals and Browns at Ohio Stadium. Last year Cincinnati nipped Cleveland 27-21 in a thriller.

THE BENGALS will enter the game on the heels of an impressive 45-21 victory over the Philadelphia Eagles last Saturday at Riverfront Stadium.

"We showed a lot of consistency and I was very impressed with a number of young players," said Paul Brown, general manager and head coach of the Bengals, who saw Cincinnati bounce back from an opening pre-season loss to Miami (14-13) to even their record at 1-1.

"For a young man who has played tight end and linebacker in college the last two years I would say he did a pretty good job out there," Brown said with a smile. "He's big and a pretty darn good armful for any tackler."

Brown will probably start Doug Dressler and Clark at the running back slots.

"If we start Doug and Charles it gives us a couple of big running backs and then enables us to bring Essex Johnson in off the bench and allows him to utilize his exceptional speed," Brown said.

The Browns, who suffered an opening pre-season loss to San Francisco, fought the Los Angeles Rams to a 21-21 tie last week.

CLEVELAND, coached by Nick Skorich, finished second in the American Football Conference's Central Division last year and won a "wild card" playoff berth.

The Browns are quarterbacked by Mike Phipps and his main receivers are veterans Fair Hooker and Frank Pitts and tight end Milt Morin. Veterans Leroy Kelly and Bo Scott and rookie Greg Pruitt, a second round draft choice from Oklahoma, are the top runners.

Cincinnati and Cleveland have met twice in the pre-season with the Bengals winning both games. The Browns hold a 5-1 edge in regular season play.

Billingham, Morgan spell Pirates doom

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Joe Morgan, do-it-all second baseman, and Jack Billingham, a pitcher who has caught up with his potential, spelled the difference in Cincinnati's 1-0 win over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Morgan rapped two singles, stole two bases and made two key defensive plays, in addition to scoring the decisive run in the final inning of the Wednesday night game.

Billingham, who tied a Cincinnati record with his seventh shutout of the year, made Morgan's run stand by outlasting Pirate starter Dock Ellis, even though both pitchers allowed six hits each. The game was scoreless until the Cincinnati ninth when Morgan singled, stole second and scored on a single by reliable Tony Perez.

"Morgan has got to be in the top five in all of baseball as far as value to a ball club," said Cincinnati Manager Sparky Anderson.

"He has great range in the field; he hits close to .300; and he steals 50 bases," Anderson added. "What else can you say about a guy who does all those things?"

Billingham, who pushed his record to 16-8, yielded a single to Richie Hebner to open the Pirate ninth. However, he retired Manny Sanguillen on an infield out, and pinchhitter Milt May hit into a double play to end the game.

Despite Billingham's effectiveness, Anderson ordered him to walk Pirate slugger Willie Stargell intentionally with two outs and nobody on base in the eighth inning.

The unusual move paid off when Richie Zisk grounded out, but Billingham acknowledged that he had misgivings.

"My wife's got a thing," he explained. "She tells me that when I intentionally walk someone they usually score, so when I walked Stargell I thought about my wife sitting home in Cincinnati."

A key factor in Billingham's shutout was the defensive work of Morgan at second.

He made a diving, one-handed catch of a line drive by Rennie Stennett in the eighth, and he robbed Stargell on a hard-hit grounder in the sixth.

"He goes when he wants to," Anderson said of Morgan. "He knows a heck of a lot more about base stealing than I do."

"They walked him to get to me," Perez said, "so I said I'd better get a hit."

Dodgers 7, Expos 2

Bill Buckner homered, doubled and singled, scored two runs and led Los Angeles over Montreal. Don Sutton and Jim Brewer combined to help the Dodgers maintain their 2½game lead over the Reds in the League's Western Division.

Kidron Merchants win softball championship

FINDLAY, Ohio (AP)—Cordell Boss tossed a no-hitter Wednesday night as the Kidron Merchants breezed past defending champion Columbus Ramada Inn 5-0 to capture the Ohio Fast Pitch Softball Tournament title.

Boss hurled seven hitless innings and received enough aid from the bat of third baseman Jake Miller. Miller blasted two solo home runs deep into the left field.

Sherman White ready for clash with Browns

WILMINGTON, Ohio (AP) — Sherman White, now recovered from knee surgery will play at offensive tackle Sunday for the Cincinnati Bengals in a pre-season game with the Cleveland Browns at Columbus, Ohio.

White, Cincinnati's first round draft choice last year from the University of California, donned full uniform Wednesday for his first full practice at the Bengals' camp.

Doubtful starts, who have suffered minor injuries, are guard Pat Matson, receiver Isaac Curtis, defensive linemen Bill Petersen and Ken Johnson and Dan Kratzler.

Full-scale contact Friday

County grid teams to don pads today

Fayette County's high school football teams donned practice jersies and pads for the first time today after whisking through Wednesday workouts.

The Ohio High School Athletic Association permits the high school gridders to wear pads following three of days of physical conditioning. But full-scale contact will not be allowed until Friday's drills, as per order of the OHSAA.

WEDNESDAY'S workouts were the first since practice officially opened on Monday that rain didn't appear at the local training camps.

The Washington C.H. coaching staff installed a new running series in addition to perfecting the passing attack. Pfeifer was espcially pleased with the passing performances of senior Alan Coppock, Jeff Brown and sophomore Randy Gardner and had praise for the receiving of seniors Larry Howell and Kevin Terry and sophomore Randy Sparkman.

The Blue Lion gridders also worked on the kicking game during Wednesday's drills, Pfeifer said all phases of the game were practiced with the exception of the onside kick, which became so popular during Washington C.H.'s campaign a year ago.

Three more Washington C.H. players completed the mandatory six-minute mile requirement Wednesday, leaving only six players to complete the task before the summer drills are completed. Forty-three Blue Lion players have already completed the running requirement.

In the Miami Trace camp, new head coach Fred Zechman's players are still confused over the new brand of football being installed. However, Zechman says the players should have the mistakes and minor bugs of the new offense and defense ironed out within the next few practice sessions.

Zechman pointed out that his players continue to miss their assignments, but the Capital University product has not panicked. He said the mental mistakes can be expected and in addition the accent is on youth in the Miami Trace camp.

FOUR PLAYERS are involved in a strong battle for two vacant inside linebacking positions. Zechman said Kevin Blair, Jim Pendegraft, Bill Brundage and Donald Dunton are all hoping for starting berths and have all impressed the new Panther boss in their quest.

Wednesday's practice session was the first this summer for Dunton, a 200-pound junior, who has been sidelined with a pulled thigh muscle.

Offensively, Zechman was impressed with the performances of senior fullback Doug Ford, a returning starter, and senior halfback Doug Baker, who is playing football for the first time since being injured during his sophomore year.

Washington C.H. and Miami Trace have nearly a week and half of the vigorous two-a-day practice sessions remaining before they plunge into their first interscholastic scrimmages of the summer.

The Blue Lions will travel to Kettering Fairmont West while the Panthers will struggle with Waverly. Both scrimmages are scheduled Saturday, Aug. 25.

Staffs, Titleists leap in golf race

The Tourneys held their lead in the Wednesday Night Golf League, but the Staffs and Titleists leaped in the standings following last night's action at the Washington Country Club.

Irvin Reeves shot a 47 and Ralph Hyer and Clyde Palmer gained four points each on the basis of forfeits as the Tourneys scored an 11½ to 8½ win over the Dots.

In other action, the Staffs, in fourth place last week, got a 39 from Everett Rudolph to post a 14-6 win over Maxfli, and the Titleists, in fifth place a week ago, got a 40 from substitute Sam Parrett to whip the Reds, 15-5.

THE RESULTS

TITLEISTS — Sam Parrett 40-4; Howard Mann 43-4; Ernie Stanforth 53-2; Lew Thomson 43-2; Burdette Johnson 49-3; Total 15.

U.S.-Soviet clash seen at games

MOSCOW (AP) — The recurring battle for sports supremacy between the United States and Russia was on again today as the seventh World University Games began.

The Americans have sent their largest contingent—well over 300 men and women—to compete in eight sports. Of these, many were swinging into action on the first full day of competition.

Kathy Schmidt, a 19-year-old six-footer from Long Beach, Calif., who has been chasing the women's world javelin record, looked like America's brightest hope in Lenin Stadium today.

Kathy's best throw is 208 feet, 1 inch, less than six feet short of the world mark.

The most spectacular track event of the day's program was the gruelling 10,000-meter run. Two Americans—Richard Bowerman of Indiana University and Charles maguire of Penn State—were trying to hold off the strong challenge of the East Europeans.

Gold medals were to be decided in these two events and in the men's shot put. The Americans had two shot putters—Dana La Duc of the University of Texas and Jesse Stuart of Western Kentucky University—in the field.

Other medals to be decided Thursday were in men's foil fencing and the women's team gymnastics in optional exercises.

Pin loops gird for new season

Tony Capuana, proprietor, said some of the leagues will open their season late this month, but most of the teams will open action Sept. 4. The junior bowling league will also open play in September.

There are a total of 14 bowling leagues at Bowland Lanes this fall, including six men's leagues, seven women's and a mixed couples loop.

Capuana said there are spots open in all of the 14 leagues and interested teams or individual bowlers can obtain more information by calling Bowland Lanes at 335-2580.

Tom Vrettos and Verna Williams, secretaries of the Washington C.H. bowling associations, urge all league officers to hold their annual organization meetings so that enough ABC materials can be ordered for the season.

Salt Walther leaves hospital for recuperation at home

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — David "Salt" Walther, a race car and hydroplane driver who nearly died in the Indianapolis 500, stepped into the sunshine for the first time in 2½ months Wednesday.

The 26-year-old Walther has recovered sufficiently to go home for recuperation, doctors at the University of Michigan Burn Center said. He left immediately for his home in Dayton, Ohio.

Walther suffered burns over 34 per cent of his body when his racer crashed in the first lap of the Indy 500 on May 28. His car hit the outside retaining wall, exploding into falmes and flipping down the track several times. The flames also injured several spectators.

He was transferred to the university burn center from an Indianapolis hospital. Doctors said Walther needed numerous skin grafts and underwent surgery to reconstruct his left hand.

Two other drivers, Swede Savage and Art Pollard, were involved in fatal crashes at the Indy track. Pollard was killed practicing for time trials, and Savage died several weeks ago from injuries suffered during the finish of the race May 30. A pit crewman also was killed when hit by a fire truck rushing to the scene of Walther's wreck.

In a recent interview with The Associated Press, Walther said the fingertips of both hands had been removed but "that won't stop me from racing cars or boats."

Walther said at that time he had been trying to determine the cause of his accident which occurred 10 seconds after the rain-delayed race got underway. However, he said he would not make any public statements for awhile.

Asked about the accident, Walther said:

"I don't think there's any doubt I'm lucky to be alive. I don't think anybody would dispute that."

Ohio perspective

Assembly passes fewer bills

By ROBERT E. MILLER
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — For a long time a lot of people have believed the adage that says, "When the legislature passes a law someone loses some freedom."

Believers may take some comfort from the downward trend in the number of bills passed by Ohio's general assemblies.

Output of bills has dropped the past two sessions. At the present rate it will be even lower when the 110th General Assembly closes shop in 1974.

Figures may mislead. The legislature has a knack for putting a lot of action into a single measure. Classic example was the state's $9.9 billion appropriations bill for 1973-1975. It was an all-time high, up from $8.1 billion in the last biennium, and a volume of new spending laws in itself.

The lawmakers use the device of an omnibus bill, a catchall that can rewrite pages of statutes.

Thus far this year, the legislature has sent about 170 bills to Gov. John J. Gilligan. Few vetoes are expected.

A total of 996 bills has been introduced in the House. The Senate received 403 for a 1973 total of 1,399. The legislature may receive more this year, and is certain to do so next year when the 110th General Assembly convenes in January for its second regular session.

The 109th General Assembly received a total of 1,842 bills, of which 360 were enacted into law. The 108th received 1,833 and 498 became law.

The high output during the 108th — 1969 and 1970 — may have been partly due to Republican domination of both houses while the executive branch was headed by GOP Gov. James Rhodes.

During the first two years of Democratic Gov. Gilligan's administration he had a legislature with both houses under Republican control. In the current session the House is controlled, 58-41, by the governor's party, but Republicans hold a 17-16 margin in the Senate.

In spite of the political makeup of the last two legislatures, there have been surprisingly few vetoes. Rhodes vetoed only one measure during the 108th. Gilligan rejected only four measures during 1971 and 1972 but let 10 bills become law without his signature.

The legislature has not overriden a gubernatorial veto in the current session, or in the last several sessions.

It takes a three-fifths vote — 60 in the House and 20 in the Senate — to override a veto, the kind of majority neither party can put together without help from the opposing side.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FRIDAY, AUG 17

ARIES
(March 21 to April 20)

TAURUS
(April 21 to May 21)

Planetary restrictions lift now and you have the "go ahead" sign to make important decisions, launch new projects, conclude pending agreements.

GEMINI
(May 22 to June 21)

Curb your natural inclination toward unconventionality. Indiscretion now could lead to trouble later.

CANCER
(June 22 to July 23)

Your imagination highly stimulated and, while you may not capitalize on new ideas immediately, they should prove happily productive in the future.

LEO
(July 24 to Aug. 23)

Sometimes your impulsiveness gets you into trouble but some spur-of-the-moment activities launched now could have surprisingly good results.

VIRGO
(Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)

Your judgment vindicated. A message from someone "in the know" will confirm your own beliefs and consequent decisions.

LIBRA
(Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)

A family problem? Don't close your eyes to it. Open and frank discussion will help clear things up.

SCORPIO
(Oct. 24 to Nov. 22)

A day in whch to stress prudence. Above all, avoid reckless and impulsive friends. They could get you intro trouble.

SAGITTARIUS
(Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)

Some restrictions where personal relationships are concerned. Don't try to force issues. Associates won't play along.

CAPRICORN
(Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)

Opportunities in a new field will interest you considerably. Study well — if only to grasp as an avocation.

AQUARIUS
(Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)

PISCES
(Feb. 20 to March 20)

Don't let your sympathies run away with you. There are some who would take advantage of your generosity.

YOU BORN TODAY are one of the most efficient and practical of all Leoites. You have an unusual sense of values, tremendous organizing ability and an outstanding gift of leadership. You would make an excellent executive and, if you do go into business, could well wind up as company president or general director of policy. If you choose another career, however, you'll probably still land on the top, through sheer force of will and determination, coupled with good management. Other outlets for your talents: the theater, the law, banking and building.

Abernathy back as SCLC leader

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—The Southern Christian Leadership Conference embarked on a program of reorganization today with a reluctant Rev. Ralph David Abernathy once again at the helm.

Abernathy, who announced his resignation July 9 as SCLC president, was swept back into office Wednesday and given a free hand to guide the civil rights organization by a unanimous vote of the SCLC board of directors.

The announcement of the rejection of Abernathy's resignation and his later acceptance of the presidency were greeted by cheers and applause from the 1,000 delegates attending the SCLC's 16th annual convention at St. John's Missinary Baptist Church here.

Abernathy, the successor to Martin Luther King Jr. as SCLC president, said he would serve for at least one more year and told delegates now is a "time for unity."

He hugged Vernon E. Jordan Jr., president of the National Urban League, who on behalf of the League pledged $1,000 to the financially troubled SCLC.

Among the SCLC directors who attended the meeting were Walt Bellamy, a former Indiana University All-American, now with Atlanta of the National Basketball Association.

Dr. Joseph B. Lowery, SCLC board chairman, said the decision to reject Abernathy's resignation was made "after we left ourselves open to the guidance of the Holy Spirit."

He said more full time staff will be hired for the national office, and five regional offices will be set up around the country to relieve Abernathy of many daily details of running the organization.

Indiana Gov. Otis R. Bowen welcomed the delegates and called for "a new human consensus for the progress of all mankind."

Zoners nix apartment plan; approve assembly operation

Plans for building a pair of 2½ story apartment buildings at the corner of Leesburg and McKinley Avenues were scotched Wednesday night by the Zoning Board of Appeals. The Board did clare the way for establishment of an assembly facility of West Oak Street.

Meeting in the city office building, the Board denied a request that restrictions placed on lots 61 and 62 of the Elmwood Addition be lifted, ending plans for the apartment buildings. Joseph C. Del Tedesco, Arlington, Va., had sought the variance.

Dan Wolford, Board secretary, said the request was denied because City Council only recently imposed restrictions referred to and the Board felt there was insufficient cause for lifting them.

Robert J. Lee and Hugh Patton, operators of Fayette Supply Co., were granted a variance to allow them to install a cardboard products assembly operation at 310 W. Oak St.

The Board, in approving the request, limited the facility to two work shifts, with now work to be done there after 11 p.m. It also said the plant will be limited to cardboard products.

Minor damage is reported in mishaps

Two minor traffic mishaps were investigated in the Washington C.H. area Wednesday by police and sheriff's departments.

Two dump trucks were involved in a slight mishap on Ohio 41 at the Sugar Creek Bridge, four miles south of Washington C.H., Wednesday morning. Officers said the trucks, driven by John W. Gosney. 20, of 608 High St., and Michael T. Murphy, 19, of 605 Albin Ave., sideswiped each other as they passed through the bridge in opposite directions.

Mirrors on the trucks were damaged.

Cars driven by Norma L. Null, 41, Washington C.H., and Jaquelin R. McCormick, 17, Rt. 2, were involved in a slight collision at the intersection of Market and Forest Streets at 2:15 p.m. Only minor damage was listed to both cars.

Heart specialist has 2nd stroke

BOSTON (AP) — Heart specialist Paul Dudley White is reported in fair condition at Massachusetts General Hospital where he is recovering from a minor stroke — his second in less than three months.

Spokesmen for Massachusetts General said that the87-year-olddoctor, who was stricken Monday, was alert and talking with hospital personnel on Wednesday.

White suffered a similar stroke in June and a heart attack two years ago. While hospitalized in June, he got out of bed to treat a patient who had traveled a long way to see him.

Richard Tregaskis dead

HONOLULU (AP) — Richard Tregaskis, 56, author and journalist best known for his World War II book "Guadalcanal Diary," died Wednesday, an apparent drowning victim at a Honolulu beach park. His other books included "Vietnam Diary" in 1963 and "China Bomb" in 1967.

Let courts have Watergate, Nixon says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Proclaiming anew he was not involved in the Watergate scandal, President Nixon has appealed to the nation to let the courts decide the guilt or innocence of individuals involved.

"The time has come to turn Watergate over to the courts where the questions of guilty or innocence belong", Nixon said. "The time has come for the rest of us to get on with the urgent business of the nation."

Nixon accepted full responsibility for the actions of his aides "because the abuses occurred during my administration and in the campaign for my re-election." He also defended his decision not to turn over presidential tape recordings to the special Watergate prosecutor or Senate Committee.

But he said the Senate Watergate committee had failed to disclose "the slightest evidence...that I had any knowledge of the planning for the Watergate break-in."

Nixon's nationwide television and radio speech and accompanying statement defended his efforts to learn the truth about Watergate—the facts of which the President said, he did not learn until March 21 this year.

He concluded with a plea to "not stay so mired in Watergate that we fail to respond to challenges of surpassing importance to America and the world."

Nixon's long-awaited statement did not offer rebuttal Watergate questions. "It has not been my intention to attempt any such comprehensive and detailed response," Nixon explained.

Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., commented that the president's address "did not add anything to his other speeches that would tend to divert suspicion from him." But Goldwater said he supports the President in his appeal for Americans to recognize dangers to the country and the world.

George Bush, chairman of the Republican National Committee, called the speech "credible and very reasonable." He said he is convinced the American people want the country freed "from the Watergate obsession."

His counterpart, Robert Strauss of the Democratic National Committee, said the President "neither added nor subtracted anything from where we were before he went on the air."

Nixon reaffirmed the stand his lawyers have taken in federal court—that by releasing tape recordings made of conversations in his office and on his telephone "the confidentiality of the office of the President would always be suspect.

"That is why I shall continue to oppose efforts which would set a precedent that would cripple all future presidents by inhibiting conversations between them and those they look to for advice," he said.

Sen. Daniel K. Inouye, D-Hawaii, a member of the Senate committee, said he was disappointed with the statement and bothered by the President's remarks that the committee was absorbed in implicating Nixon.

"I believe the contrary to be true," Inouye said. "Never have we as a panel or as individuals ever suggested that the President was aware of or involved in the break-in."

Nixon deplored the abuses in the 1972 campaign, but said a few overzealous people should not be permitted "to tar the reputation of the millions of dedicated Americans who fought hard but clean for the candidates of their choice in 1972."

He pledged to do all he could to ensure one of the results of Watergate "is a new level of political decency and integrity in America."

Nixon said from the time of the break-in "I pressed repeatedly to know the facts and particularly whether

Grand jury probes kickbacks

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — A special grand jury was expected to start hearing testimony today on allegations that Vice President Spiro T. Agnew was involved in a bribery and kickback scheme.

Meanwhile, the Justice Department confirmed Wednesday that Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson met with Agnew privately to discuss the status of the investigation.

The meeting took place Aug. 6, according to department spokesman Horace Webb.

The overall investigation began last December, but did not involve Agnew until this spring. Subpoenaed records date back through Agnew's term as Baltimore county executive and governor of Maryland.

The New York Times reported in Thursday editions that Richardson told Agnew that prosecutors have statements from more than 20 Maryland businessmen who say they gave cash to Agnew associates in return for state contracts.

Citing unnamed sources, the Times also said Richardson told Agnew:

—That three Agnew aides have told prosecutors they turned over some of the payments to the former Maryland governor. The three were identified as Lester Matz and Jerome Wolff, now Baltimore engineering consultants, and Allen I. Green, described by the Times a former close friend of the vice president.

—Green told prosecutors he gave kickbacks to Agnew about five times a year until 1969, less often after Agnew became vice president. Green was identified as president of a Towson, Md., engineering firm.

Webb said "The attorney general met with the vice president on Monday, Aug. 6. The purpose of the meeting was to supplement the information contained in the letter the vice president received from the United States attorney with a general picture of the status of the investigation."

Up to now the grand jury has concentrated on investigating officials in Baltimore County, where Agnew made his political start more than a decade ago, and of engineering firms doing substantial business with the county and the state.

Petroleum regulations delayed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Phase 4 regulations for the oil industry still are not complete, and the price freeze on oil possibly will have to be extended a second time, Cost of Living Council sources say.

Although the price freeze was lifted from the rest of the economy Monday, it was extended an extra week for petroleum, until Aug. 19, because the new regulations weren't ready last week as scheduled.

A council spokesman said it was virtually certain the regulations would not be ready today. He said the council is hoping they can be released Friday, although there was doubt even of this date.

Even if the regulations are ready Friday, it still would give the petroleum industry—from oil refiners to gasoline retailers—less than three days to prepare to put them into effect in time for the freeze to be lifted Monday.

"Obviously it's going to be tight," said a council spokesman Wednesday when asked if it would be possible for the industry to move that fast over the weekend. It wasn't clear what was holding up the oil regulations.

Authority over price increases in the oil industry, meanwhile, was placed Wednesday in a new office of Price Stabilization, headed by Bert M. Concklin.

The office will be responsible for decisions on important price increase requests during the Phase 4 anti-inflation program from major firms in manufacturing, services, non-food wholesale and retail trade, and the oil industry.

Concklin's office also will be responsible for making recommendations on requests from entire sectors of industry for exemption from the Phase 4 controls.

In addition to the oil regulations, the council still had not decided its policy on public disclosure of proposals from major firms for price increases.

Although major firms began Monday giving notice to the government of their intention to increase prices in 30 days, there is yet to be a coordinated policy for compiling and releasing the information.

In other economic developments:

—The government reported the nation had a surplus in its balance of payments during the second quarter of the year of $463 million, the first surplus in financial transactions with other countries in 3½ years.

—Administration sources said the government is studying whether to clamp export controls on wheat and other grains in a move to preserve domestic supplies in the face of increasing foreign demand that may be driving up prices.

—Secretary of Commerce Frederick B. Dent said the country must follow the standards of Phase 4 before it can return to a free-market economy.

Nixon gives Congress voice in shaping Indochina policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has signaled that he finally was conceding Congress equal power in setting policy for Indochina, administration officials say.

The acknowledgement, Nixon's first direct concession on the issue, came in a statement on Cambodia issued Wednesday by the White House.

It said "It should be clearly understood in Hanoi that the President will work with Congress in order to take the appropriate action if North Vietnam mounts an offensive which jeopardizes the stability in Indochina."

The shift in Nixon's attitude toward congressional involvement actually was more important than the warning to Hanoi, the officials said.

They repeated that the United States is virtually helpless in influencing events in Indochina following an order by Congress that ended U.S. bombing of Cambodia as of Wednesday.

The same law prevents the reintroduction of any American combat role in Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia, which means Nixon holds no leverage in preventing Hanoi or its allies from acting.

It is understood that Nixon did not embrace Congress as a partner in future Indochina decisions because of a change of heart over his role or responsibility.

Instead, the President is said to be attempting to put Congress in a position where it can be blamed for any future aggressiveness by North Vietnam and for any failure in preventing further Communist victories.

This theme was first stated as the administration fought various attempts in Congress to limit its power in fighting the Vietnam war.

Now, Congress is on notice that action opposing the fall of Cambodia, which is considered likely, or a major new move by North Vietnam against South Vietnam or in Laos, will require action by Capitol Hill.

If, as the administration now expects, Congress refuses to give Nixon power to strike back or provide more direct aid to Saigon or other friendly Southeast Asian nations, then Nixon can say he had warned of such dire consequences.

In other words, Congress had sabotaged the Indochina peace Nixon had so carefully arranged on the basis of U.S. strength.

Officials pointed to a North Vietnamese attack in Laos, the first such offensive action there since a cease-fire went into effect four months ago.

This wouldn't have happened if Hanoi hadn't been convinced of Nixon's helplessness because of congressional restraints, the officials said.

LUCASVILLE, Ohio (AP)— About 70 guards at the Southern Ohio Correctional Facility protested the suspension of a co-worker Wednesday by walking off the job.

A spokesman for the correction officers said the guard was told to work by himself in a cellblock of 80 inmates. He said the guard was suspended when he refused to release the prisoners from the block.

Prison Supt. W. J. Whealon said the officer was overseeing 11 honor inmates.

John Linta, a spokesman for the Ohio Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation, said the protest was unauthorized because the guards failed to follow the proper grievance procedures. He said the guards are members of Teamsters Union Local 413.

6 Americans die

MADRID (AP) — At least six Americans have been identified among the 86 persons killed in the crash earlier this week of a Spanish jet airliner, the U.S. Embassy said today.

7 indicted in massacre

WASHINGTON (AP) — Seven Philadelphia men have been indicted in the mass-murder here last January of five children and two adult members of a Hanafi Moslem sect.

The 23-count indictment handed down Wednesday by a District of Columbia grand jury accused each of the seven with premeditated murder, felony murder, armed robbery, assault with intent to kill and armed burglary.

An eighth person also was named in the indictment as having participated in the execution-style slayings, but he has since died, police said.

The murders took place last Jan. 18 at a Hanafi Moslem headquarters in a residential section of northwest Washington. Police said four children, including a two-week old infant, were drowned and a fifth shot to death. Two adult members of the group were also shot to death and two others wounded.

The indictment accuses the men of hatching the murder scheme four days earlier in Philadelphia, and then driving to Washington armed with pistols and sawed-off shotguns.

Main target of the conspiracy, said the indictment, was Hamaas Khaalis, leader of the group and the father of three of the slain children. He was not at the residence when the eight men arrived, said the indictment.

Gilligan task force revisits Lucasville

LUCASVILLE, Ohio (AP) — The Governor's Task Force on Correction was to revisit the Southern Ohio Correctional Facility today to investigate conditions following the shooting deaths of two guards at the prison last month.

Task force members were to discuss prison problems with guards, chaplains and members of the medical staff. Last week, five members spent 3½ hours talking with inmates who complained of harsh security measures after the shootings.

Officials at the facility said a guard walkout that began Wednesday would not affect today's tour.

Meanwhile, inmate Wayne L. Raney, 23, of Montgomery County, was sentenced to a second term of life imprisonment Wednesday for the shooting death of guard Arthur Sprouse July 24.

Raney pleaded guilty to a first-degree murder charge before a three-judge panel in Scioto County Common Pleas Court.

He is serving another life term for first-degree murder. The second guard was shot by a sharp-shooter trying to hit Raney.

Meanwhile, a separate panel acting as consultants to the Ohio Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation, called Lucasville "a prime example of an institution located in the wrong place, and far too large."

The four-member Cuyahoga County Corrections Panel described the $32.5 million facility as "a new, expensive, clean monument to every traditional mistake in outmoded correctional thinking."

The panel was asked by the state to serve in an advisory and consultative relationship to the corrections department when it was created in July 1972.

The panel issued its findings Aug. 1 and the report was issued Wednesday, based on a July 1972-August 1973 study.

The statement said there is a strong need for a long range facilities plan that will move Ohio from a small number of large institutions in rural areas to smaller diversified facilities in urban areas.

"It is recognized that present physical facilities are far too large and are typical of the kinds of traditional institutions that have proven to be ineffective nationwide," the report said.

The Lucasville prison in Scioto County now houses more than 1,000 inmates with a capacity for 1,500.

More than 70 guards walked off their jobs Wednesday after a co-worker was suspended for not following an order. The guards said the working conditions at the prison are unsafe.

Dr. Joseph R. Palmer, deputy director of corrections, said Wednesday the department interprets the report as "strong support for the department and its direction and philosophy."

He emphasized the report's recommendation that additional minority groups be recruited from minority groups to match the prison populations.

Citizen reaction to Nixon speech proves mixed

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It was quiet in the large house at the Knox dairy farm in Weare, N.H. The President was on television talking about Watergate.

R. Leslie Knox, 53, watched the color set in the corner of the living room from the couch, getting up once to get a can of beer.

His wife Barbara, 51, sat in a nearby chair equally silent. Their daughter Jean, 9, fell asleep in her mother's lap toward the end of the speech.

Their son Paul, 22, and his fiancee Martha Griswold, 19, who lives on a small farm in the town, were there. Paul sat next to his dad; Martha in a chair next to Mrs. Knox.

The hired hand, Frank Flis, 18, was there, and Dick Smith, 55, a neighbor from nearby Contoocook wandered in later.

As the Knoxes gathered around the set in New Hampshire, among other Americans tuned in were those in a bar in Steelton, Pa., in an expensive home in San Francisco and a middle class house outside Chicago. A congressional aide watched in Washington. Some Salt Lake City businessmen viewed the address from a private club.

"I think at first I was probably sympathetic to Nixon," said Leslie, a burly man who was born in Montreal. "I think there are very few people who could be hung out on a clothesline like that and be questioned about every little thing.

"I'm wondering how well anyone would do. I'm sure I wouldn't do very well myself.

"There's a lot of things that go on this farm that I don't know about," continued Leslie, who says he and his wife are Republicans who voted for Nixon in 1972.

Across the country, in the expensive Presidio Heights section of San Francisco, lawyer William K. Coblentz, 50, watched the speech in his three-story, brown shingle home.

"I thought it would be a finely calibrated combination of pre-emptive omission and protective apology and that's exactly what it was," said Coblentz., a liberal Democrat who donated money to the McGovern campaign. "It was a well-orchestrated speech. Listening to it, I think I have become more of a cynic than ever before."

In the luxurious Doral Beach Hotel in Miami Beach, Fla., Zack Smith, there for an insurance convention, said before Nixon spoke: "You've got to trust your President like you believe in God." After watching the speech in his carpeted hotel room, Smith, 27, a bachelor from Asheville, N.C., said in his slow southern drawl: "I believe 'im. I know he's a damn politician, but I believe him. I got to."

In another chandeliered room in the Doral, site of the Republican National Convention Headquarters in 1972, Joan and Dick Tannenbaum, both 27 and in Miami Beach for a vacation, watched the same speech.

"He'd kill his own mother for a postage stamp," groaned Joan as Nixon reiterated his refusal to release the Watergate tapes. "If he's innocent, he doesn't have to make speeches."

"This man is either responsible or irresponsible," said Smith, 50, a Democrat who did not vote for Nixon. "They're not my words, I read them somewhere. But that sums it up."

The owner of the bar, Peter Colello, 62, was more economy-minded. "I voted for the guy but never again," Collello, a Republican councilman, said. "I was paying $1.45 a pound for capaccoli (Italian lunch meat). Now I'm paying $2.47. He's too damned busy trying to alibi himself to do the country any good."

Ohio ACLU blocks school aid law

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The American Civil Liberties Union of Ohio has blocked for the third time in two years implementation of a state parochial aid program supported by Gov. John J. Gilligan and the legislature.

"Once again we're back in it," said ACLU Director Benson Wolman Wednesday after he obtained a federal court order freezing $81 million in an auxiliary services plan for parochial schools.

U.S. District Court Judge Joseph Kinneary issued the temporary restraining order one hour after Gilligan signed the two-year appropriation for elementary and secondary parochial schools.

Gilligan received the bill Tuesday after legislative leaders signed it. The appropriation would provide health care and secular education services, such as medical examinations, counseling, remedial reading and audio-visual aids.

The ACLU has successfully prevented implementation of two other forms of parochial aid in Ohio. Last October, the U.S. Supreme Court by a vote of 8-1 upheld a lower court ruling overturning a tuition reimbursement plan. In June, the high court took the same action on a tax credit plan for parents of parochial school students.

At the signing of current measure, Gilligan, a Roman Catholic, said the auxiliary services plan is "the logical and constitutional way to achieve our stated goal of keeping Ohio's private schools strong and healthy.

"Passage of this legislation indicated that the General Assembly shares my view that we cannot allow our private schools to be crippled financially."

Kinneary said his order will remain in effect until he convenes a three-judge federal court to consider the ACLU's constitutional challenge of the new plan.

Wolman said the hearing is not expected for more than two weeks.

He said, "I am sure this case will end up in the Supreme Court. If they (the state) lose, they will take it. If we lose, we will take it. There is little doubt about that."

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market prices rallied strongly near opening today, then led by the blue chips gave up some gains.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which earlier was up more than 7 points, at noon was up 3.01 at 877.18. It closed up more than 3 points Wednesday.

Advancing Big Board issues, which had been ahead more than 2 to 1, at noon had a 720-to-395 lead over decliners in slow trading after high volume near opening.

On the American Stock Exchange, the price-change index was up .02 at 22.99. The Amex volume leader was Syntex, down 5⅜ at 94¾.

The Big Board index of some 1,500 common stocks was down .03 at 54.86 after having been up earlier.

Israel ignores condemnation by U.N. in guerrilla fight

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israel warned the world today that despite condemnation from the U.N. Security Council, it will not let the rules of international law stand in the way of its hunt for Palestinian guerrilla leaders.

"We will still get those that advocate the liquidation of Israel and those who continue to engage in murder," Israel's chief of staff, Lt. Gen. David Elazar, said at a military ceremony.

"There is no way to get to them within international law, but we have the right of existence and the right of self-defense."

He added that "international law is not enforced against the terrorists." And he warned that the world can expect more operations like the interception last Friday of a Lebanese airliner the Israelis thought was carrying four guerrilla leaders.

The plane was diverted to an Israeli airfield, held for two hours and then released when it was found that the wanted men were not aboard.

The United States and the other 14 members of the Security Council voted unanimously Wednesday to condemn the Israeli action. Israel's ambassador to the United Nations, Yosef Tekoah, rejected the condemnation, terming it "the customary onesided text that this organ has been producing in the Middle East situation." He said it showed the world body "is unable to cope with international terrorism in general and with Arab terrorism in particular."

The censure resolution was a compromise introduced by Britain and France following three days of debate and negotiations. Egypt, Iraq, the Soviet Union, Sudan, Indonesia, India, Yugoslavia and China all favored a stronger resolution, ranging from harsher condemnation of Israel to urging all countries to withhold aid from the Jewish state. But anything tougher could have drawn a veto from the United States, Israel's strongest backer.

Born in Fayette County, Mrs. Cleary lived most of her life in the Atlanta and Clarksburg communities. She was a member of the Clarksburg United Methodist Church and the Nathanial Massie Chapter of the DAR, Chillicothe.

Slagle asks court block to election

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— State Sen. Gene Slagle, D-26 Galion, Wednesday asked the U.S. District Court to protect his legislative seat until the end of the six-year term in 1976.

Slagle filed the suit to challenge action taken by the Ohio Senate in June. The upper chamber invalidated Slagle's election victory over Republican incumbent Robin Turner of Marion and said a new election should be held this November.

Slagle upset Turner by 155 votes in the district made up of all of Senace and Crawford counties and parts of Marion, Sandusky, Richland, Huron, Delaware and Wyandot counties.

—Declare him qualified and entitled to hold his seat until Dec. 31, 1976.

—Stop Secretary of State Ted W. Brown from enforcing the Senate resolution.

—Order Brown not to conduct elections in the 26th district for the seat this November. Brown has already directed the Richland County Board of Elections to hold an election this year.

Slagle contended in his suit that the Senate resolution and Brown's action violates his constitutional rights.

William A. Lavelle, state Democratic party chief, said the party will support Slagle in the fight.

"Gene Slagle won his Senate seat fairly and squarely," he said.

Cambodian fighting ebbs

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — Small-scale fighting was reported today on three sides of Phnom Penh. But the Cambodian government said it could detect no sign of a new offensive shaping up against the city despite the U.S. bombing halt.

Col. Am Rong, chief spokesman for the Cambodian military command, said refugees from areas held by the insurgents reported they were still trying to make up heavy losses suffered in the final weeks of the American air blitz.

"They are regrouping and resupplying, and it could be one or two months before they are ready for a big push," he said.

The government reported the recapture of Kompong Kantuot, a district town 11 miles southeast of Phnom Penh, and the clearing of Route 38, which runs around the outside of the city's southern defense perimeter.

A communique said the center of Kompong Kantuot and the nearby village of Kompong Tuol were reoccupied at noon Wednesday, an hour and a quarter after the American bombing stopped. It said the insurgents pulled back and there was little resistance.

Fighting was reported also at Set Bo, 13 miles south of Phnom Penh, and at Prey Baing, 20 miles to the northeast. But there were no big attacks on government positions reported.

The Cambodian command believes that the Communist-led insurgents are unable to take prompt advantage of the end of the American bombing because their primitive logistics force them to make lengthy preparations for any big offensive.

Am Rong said the government also believes the insurgents may be having trouble finding recruits to fill their ranks. He claimed 10 more defectors came over to the government north of Phnom Penh and reported the peasants are increasingly unhappy with attempts by the rebels to impose communal farming methods.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A large high pressure area was dominating Ohio's weather today, bringing sunny skies and temperatures in the 80s.

Some cloudiness was expected in the western part of the state tonight as a weak low pressure trough approaches. Forecasters said skies would remain clear in the eastern counties tonight.

Temperatures tonight were expected to drop into the 60s and upper 50s.

Thundershowers are possible in western Ohio Friday afternoon, when temperatures around the state again are expected to reach the mid-80s.

There will be a chance of showers Saturday, followed by fair weather Sunday and Monday. Highs will be in the 80s through the weekend and lows will be in the 60s.

Gen. Bradley condition serious

LOS ANGELES (AP) — General of the Army Omar N. Bradley, the nation's only five-star general, underwent emergency surgery early today for insertion of a sieve-like device to prevent recurrent blood clots from migrating to his lungs.

The general's wife Kitty said in a statement after the operation: "The general has survived surgery. His condition is serious, but the prognosis is very hopeful."

"Heparin injections have helped dissolve the clots but have failed to prevent recurrent attacks," a hospital spokeswoman said.

When Bradley was admitted to the hospital, doctors said his blood clots apparently were caused by an operation on a football injury he suffered at West Point nearly 60 years ago.

Bradley commanded the American troops which landed on the beaches at Normandy, France, on D-Day, June 6, 1944, and fought on to victory over Nazi Germany. After the war he served as the first chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

A native of Clark, Mo., he has been in semi-retirement from the Army since 1953. He stepped down last month as chairman of the board of Bulova Watch Co.

Lebanese jet forced down

TEL AVIV (AP) — A Lebanese jetliner was diverted today to Israel's Lod International Airport under escort of two Israeli jet fighters, Israeli officials said.

The Middle East Airlines Boeing 707 was diverted on a flight from Libya to Lebanon, according to an airline spokesman in Beirut.

An Beirut airport informant said 110 passengers were on the plane.

It could not be immediately determined whether it was hijacked by a passenger or forced down by Israeli jets.

However, Israeli state radio said the plane was hijacked by two unidentified persons aboard the jetliner as it flew over the island of Cyprus.

there was any involvement by anyone at the White House."

He said he depended on Justice Department and FBI investigations and assigned White House counsel, John W. Dean III, to monitor those investigations.

But through the summer of 1972, Nixon said, he was told no White House members were involved.

"I trusted the agencies conducting the investigations," Nixon said. "I did not believe the newspaper accounts that suggested a cover-up. I was convinced that there was no cover-up, because I was convinced that no one had anything to cover up."

Nixon only obliquely referred to former acting FBI Director L. Patrick Gray III's assertion that he told the President on July 6 last year that "people on your staff are trying to mortally wound you by using the CIA and FBI..." to cover up the probe.

Nixon said his own investigation was prompted because "I learned of some of the activities upon which charges of cover-up are now based."

He said he was told of fundraising for the Watergate defendants, but not that the money was to buy silence. Nixon added that, he was told a member of his staff had talked to one of the defendants about clemency "but not that offers of clemency had been made."

And he said he learned about blackmail attempts by E. Howard Hunt, demanding $120,000, "as the price of not talking about other activities, unrelated to Watergate, in which he had engaged."

The President said the allegations were in general terms and not supported by details or evidence.

The statement conflicts with Dean's testimony, who said he was specific and told Nixon in March that the damands might reach $1 million. Dean said the President said that should be no problem.

Rep. Barry Goldwater Jr., R-Calif., son of the 1964 GOP presidential nominee, also commented:

"On the one hand he asks for the trust of the American people, but he doesn't trust them enough to let them hear the tapes."

Most of the principals in the affair declined to comment on the President's renewed denials of personal involvement. Special prosecutor Archibald Cox and some members of the Senate Watergate committee also would not say anything.

White House spokesmen said calls jamming the presidential switchboard immediately after the speech ran as much as six-to-one in favor at times.

One favorable reaction came from a source quite close to the President—the First Lady. "The President spoke from the heart and it went to the hearts of the American people," Mrs. Nixon said.

Bill Roy, D-Kan., commented: "Two things surprised me: the utter lack of anything new in the speech, and his asking the people to trust Nixon and associates to prevent those things done previously by Nixon and associates. That dumbfounded me."

Philadelphia Mayor Frank Rizzo said, "I wish to commend the President for his courage . . . I agree that the Watergate issue should be resolved in the courts . . . Let us close ranks behind him and the great office he holds."

Sen. Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass., said, "The President did not answer these serious charges with any specifics. We wanted facts, he gave us rhetoric. That the President could or would equate the cries and protests for quality, justice and peace of the 1960's — openly manifested — with the sordid and surreptious Watergate violations of law surpasses my understanding."

"His message was the voice of reason which went a long way toward putting the whole situation in better perspective," Reagan said, endorsing Nixon's suggestion that the forum now be shifted to the courts.

Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., the man Nixon beat in 1972, rejected that view and Sen. Edmund S. Mukie, D-Maine, a contender for the 1972 Democratic presidential nomination, said:

"I regret to say I was not impressed. He has not satisfied me on the question of how the President could have been totally ignorant until April of this year of activities he so roundly condemns.

"Moreover," Muskie said, "the suggestion that the investigation of these activities is more to be deplored than the activities themselves is a little hard to swallow."

Senate Watergate Committee Chairman Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., said he would have no immediate comment as did some other committee members.

Vice chairman Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., said the President's comments, "along with any future statements," will be given every consideration when the committee writes its report.

One person who didn't like the speech was Frank King, Ohio AFL-CIO president.

"What he take us for?' King asked. "A bunch of dumb rummies? To think that a President of the United States would think the American people so gullible as to believe what he said tonight."

Vincent Price sued for divorce

The divorce petition on Wednesday said the horror film star and his wife had been separated since Jan. 15. They were married Sept. 30, 1949, in Tijuana, Mexico.

Mrs. Price asked custody of their daughter Mary, 11, and child support. The petition said disposal of the couple's community property had been settled by prior agreement.

Singer Joan Baez wins divorce

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. (AP) — Folk singer Joan Baez and her husband David Harris have gotten a divorce after five years of marriage. They had been separated for some time.

Miss Baez, 32, and Harris, 28, were married shortly before he was sent to prison in 1968 for draft evasion.

Applications are being taken for social security program

The Chillicothe social security office can now take applications for supplemental security income payments, a Federal program scheduled to start in 1974 that will establish an income floor for people in financial need who are 65 or over, or blind, or disabled, according to Harry Bieber, social security district manager. People already getting state old age assistance, or state aid because they are blind or disabled, do not have to apply, he said. They will be getting more information later this year about how the program will help them.

"The first monthly payments under the Federal program will be made in January 1974," Bieber said. "Until then, state and local public assistance offices will continue to make payments in the usual way." People not getting public assistance now who think they may be eligible for the new Federal payments should call or write social security to find out if they should apply.

"Federal supplemental security income payments will be made by the Social Security Administration," Bieber said. "But the program will be financed by Federal general revenues — not by the social security contributions from workers and employers. It's not the same as social security."

The aim of the new program is to provide supplemental payments in cases of need so that people 65 or over, or blind, or disabled will have a basic cash income of at least $130 a month for one person and $195 a month for a couple. "This doesn't mean that every eligible person or couple will be getting that much from the Federal Government every month," Bieber said. "The amount of the Federal payment any person gets will depend on how much other income he has."

Eligibility for Federal payments will depend not only on the amount of income people have but on the value of their assets. "A home of reasonable value will not be counted as an asset," Bieber said. "Personal effects and household goods won't count in most cases. Insurance policies or a car may not affect eligibility either, but it will depend on their value."

Certain income also will be disregarded in deciding on an application for supplemental security income. The first $20 a month of income generally won't affect the Federal payment at all, and, in addition, people who are working part time should know that the first $65 a month of earnings won't be included in counting their income and only half of the rest of their additional earnings will be counted.

Apart from earnings, other income above the first $20 a month generally will reduce the Federal payment. "This includes social security checks, veterans payments, workman's compensation, pensions, annuities, and gifts," Bieber said. "And if you live in someone else's household, your basic Federal payment will be reduced by one-third before other income that may affect your payment is deducted."

People who need more information to decide whether they might be eligible for the federal payments should call social security at 775-4950, or write to the office at 606 Central Center, Chillicothe, he said. "Or a friend or relative can make the call if the person in need isn't able to," he said. "Even though payments cannot start until January 1974, we can start to take application now so we can process them ahead of time and avoid delays that might occur if there's a rush of applications right at the end of the year," Bieber said.

Two women are fined for thefts

Two women were found guilty of shoplifting charges when they appeared in Municipal Court Wednesday afternoon before Judge John Case.

Dorothy L. Warner, 47, Rt. 3, and Dorothy E. Green, 59, Wilmington, were both fined $25 and costs on the charges file by Buckeye Mart security guard Flora White.

Mrs. Green, arrested Friday, pleaded no contest to taking a pin and a necklace valued at $4, and Mrs. Warner, arrested Saturday, pleaded guilty to stealing miscellaneous sewing items valued at $4.91.

Shirley L. Stethem, 50, of 738 Washington Ave., was found guilty of a check fraud compalint filed by Ray Daniels and was fined $10 and costs. She was also ordered to pay Daniels for the $10 insufficient funds check.

An assault by threatening complaint against Grace R. Parrett, 82, of 627 Willard St., was dismissed at the request of the prosecuting witness Ruth McQuitty, of 625 Willard St. Mrs. Parrett had pleaded innocent to the charge.

Jerry P. Hamby, of 621 Fourth St., forfeited a $50 bond when he failed to appear on a police charge of disturbing the peace. Hamby was arrested early Tuesday after creating a disturbance in the 400 block of Earl Avenue.

requirements should be established for entrance into the system with expanded training opportunities and potentials for growth," the report said.

"Staff are prone to see inmates as militant, hostile, dangerous, subversive, revolutionary and not amenable to change," the panel stated.

The report also outlined administrative policies of which it approves, but says institution personnel see as making their jobs more difficult.

These include removing censorship of inmates' mail and publications and increased inmate participation, such as the establishment of advisory councils, inmate unions, more opportunities for inmates to utilize legal processes.

In its conclusion, the report said it is optimistic about the future of corrections in Ohio.

The panel cited the corrections department for "its demonstrated sincerity and courage in the area of program implementation, and its desire to humanize every aspect of its institutions."

The panel members included Myrl Alexander, formerly an Ohio probation officer and new professor emeritus in criminal justice at Southern Illinois University; E. Preston Sharp, general secretary of the American Correctional Association; Wesley A. Pomeroy, a fellow of the Council on Drug Abuse in Washington, D.C.; and Serapie R. Zalba, recently chairman of the Department of Social Services, Cleveland State University and currently president of Zalba Hirsch Associates, Inc.

Democrats set telethon

Fayette County residents will be able to show their support for the two-party system through their participation in the second annual Democratic National Telethon, "America Goes Public," to be seen on the NBC network Sept. 15, Fayette County Democratic Chairman Milbourne Barney announced today.

"The telethon, sponsored by the national, state and county Democratic party organizations, will give Democrats on the local level of politics a chance to prove we are serious about financial reform of the political process," Barney said.

"The most important thing is the committment of the individual citizen, through his small contribution, to buy back the political system from the big contributors," commented Barney.

Money reaised in the telethon effort, both in pretelethon activities and the night of the show, will be split 50-50 between the national and state Democratic party organizations.

"The state's half of the proceeeds will in turn be split with county Democratic party organizations that cooperate by promoting the telethon," Barney said.

The five and one-half hour program will be seen from 7 p.m. to 1 a.m., with 30 minutes out for news, on WLW-C, channel 4. It will be the longest prime time entertainment special in television history, and will draw an estimated 30 million viewers across the country. The Ohio audience is estimated at 2,700,000.

The first political telethon, which took place last summer, netted $4 million, which went to defray part of the Democratic National committee's standing debt. Nearly 400,000 persons gave an average of $10 each.

Shoplifting charge filed

An 18-year-old Fayette County youth was arrested by police after he allegedly shoplifted a set of stereo headphones from the Buckeye Mart store Wednesday evening.

Police said Karl B. Braun, 18, Rt. 1, was arrested on a warrant filed by Flora White, security guard at the store.

According to Mrs. White, Braun concealed the headphones in a pair of pants in the clothing department and left the store. He later returned and took the headphones from the pants then left the store again.

Braun, scheduled to appear in Municipal Court Thursday afternoon, is free on $200 bond.

Police also reported another indecent exposure incident that occurred in the city Wednesday afternoon. Officers said the incident is still under investigation.

Publisher meets with writer

Laddie B. Warren, president of the Unographic Co., book publishers of Evansville, Ind., spent several hours with B.E. Kelley recently, conferring with him about his book "Down Through the Golden Years," which is to be published by the company late this year.

He praised the unusual material contained in the book and predicted a heavy demand for it, stating that he had never published a book containing as many different subjects as the one being prepared by Kelley. The book is to contain around 900 pages with top binding.

While here, Warren was the luncheon guest of Mr. and Mrs. Kelley.

It has been announced that the Ohio State Historical Society has ordered a copy of the book and pledged assistance in selling the volume.

WCH Chamber sets activities

The Community Education Advisory Committee will hold a 7:30 p.m. work session today in the Chamber of Commerce office, with Chairman Kaye Bartlett presiding.

New membership rosters and materials for the Aug. 24th Teacher-Get-Acquainted Day session are being prepared by the Chamber staff this week.

Chamber President Fred Domenico reports that Chamber membership has now reached the 435 member mark. This is up considerably over last year's total of 350. Domenico said the initial goal of 450 members can become a reality.

There are eight standard time zones in the United States.

Opinion And Comment

The Agnew affair

The humiliating agony of the Republican party continues as Vice President Agnew becomes the target of a federal criminal investigation. It does not follow that this latest development is a legitimate cause of Democratic rejoicing.

Two considerations are pertinent in this respect. One is that the possibility of the vice president's involvement in political payoffs, like the possibility of the President's guilty knowledge in the Watergate affair, is the stuff of national tragedy. These are matters far too serious, potentially far too subversive of our institutions, to warrant partisan glee.

Another essential point to be made is that Vice President Agnew, as much as the humblest man in the nation, enjoys the right to be considered innocent until proven guilty. The whole thrust of our judicial tradition rules out any conclusion that because accusations have been made against the vice president he must perforce be guilty in some measure.

Nor can any such deduction properly be drawn from Agnew's refusal to make pertinent financial records available at once to federal prosecutors. As he has noted, his office poses constitutional questions — specifically, questions as to whether executive privilege applies which should be considered.

It does not appear to us that executive privilege is involved. That doctrine, springing from the concept of the spearation of powers, would seem to apply only to the chief executive — and possibly not even to him, where criminal malfeasance is charged. Still, any arguments brought to bear on this question by the vice president's counsel deserve a hearing.

Our hope is that this process will be quickly concluded. If Agnew has nothing to hide, as he has emphatically said, he has everything to gain — and so do the American people — by a speedy resolution of this matter.

Criminal Justice report

The National Advisory Commission of Criminal Justice Standards and Goals has made two basic recommendations which may occasion widespread surprise but are nevertheless sound. The first is that the states outlaw the manufacture, sale and possession of handguns for private use — that is, use by other than police and the military. The second is that the states review their laws as to so-called victimless crimes — gambling, pornography, marijuana use and possession, prostitution, private sexual acts between consenting adults — and at very least not impose jail penalties.

These are highly controversial recommendations. One must bear in mind, however, that they are not the product of a bunch of anti-establishment radicals; on the contrary, they are advanced by a high-level commission formed about two years ago by the Nixon administration and financed by a federal grant. The members of this commission include governors and former governors, judges, mayors, police officials and various authorities on criminal justice.

This eminently responsible group has brought in an exhaustive report based on a thorough study of crime and of the question how state and local governments can effectively deal with it. The report is, as Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson has observed, a "document of uncommon importance."

Some of the report's observations about guns and our gun-oriented society are of particular interest. "Removing the handgun from American society will not eliminate crime and violence," it wisely acknowledges, "but documentation shows there is a strong correlation between the number of privately owned handguns and the corresponding use of guns in crimes of violence."

Statistics clearly bear this out. In comparable countries where gun ownership is rare, murder rates are far lower than those in the United States. We concur in the Commission's view that "private use and possession of handguns infringes on the right of the American public to be free from violence and death caused by the use of handguns."

This report cannot be quickly dealt with; it presents a wide range of recommendations, each of which must be considered on its merits. Its enlightened and forward-looking tone suggests that much of what is proposed ought to be incorporated into state laws with minimal delay.

THESE DAYS . . . by John Chamberlain

Muskie never consulted the chemists

When Sen. Edmund Muskie of Maine went all out for his Clean Air Act, he did so without consulting any knowledgeable chemists or economists.

The result of his non-deliberations meant that we have adopted legislation that attempts to apply the standards appropriate to Los Angeles to sections of the country that have no need for the types of control that are "musts" for big cities with atmospheric "inversion" problems.

More and more the Muskie law promises to be incredibly wasteful of our oil resources. The requirements for exhaust emission controls promise to put an expensive gadgetry inside the automobile hood that will burn up some 10 billion extra barrels of oil for the 1975-85 decade, an amount that is about equal to a quarter of the nation's proved oil reserves including those of the North Slope of Alaska.

THE "RIPPLE EFFECTS" of such waste must constitute an ecological disaster. For one thing, it will deprive the utilities of oil that might better be used for electrical light and power purposes, thus forcing a greater dependence on nuclear plants with their inevitable poisonous waste disposal problems. For another, it will add to our important requirements.

Since most of the oil from the Middle East and Venezuela is "sour" crude, which creates high sulfur problems, consumers are bound to bring pressure for a relaxation of sulfur control standards just to protect themselves against fuel shortages.

The meat axe approach to the clean air problem could have been avoided if our senators had only been willing to listen to more chemists and fewer lawyers. Cars emitting carbon monoxide in the Colorado mountains or the plains of North Dakota are harmless, ecologically speaking. The carbon monoxide dissipates and breaks down into non-noxious chemical form within a matter of hours.

Nature itself has been throwing carbon monoxide into the atmosphere for aeons; the amount of carbon monoxide deriving from swamplands and forests in 10 times the quantity that comes from motor vehicle exhausts. Within a given year, the grass cuttings from a 40-by-40-foot lawn will give off more polluting gas than the lawn owner's automobile.

And the belching from cattle would require attention from Sen. Muskie if he were to apply the same emission standards that he has applied to Detroit engines. A sensible Clean Air Act would have applied different standards to different population areas, treating Montana in one way and the California freeways in another.

CURRENTLY, the U.S. produces 9.3 million barrels of crude oil each day within its own geographical confines. It has a refinery capacity of 13 million barrels. Its consumption needs come to 17 million barrels, and these needs are bound to increase at a faster clip than new refinery construction even if the more frenzied ecologists were to cease their propaganda against adding to our refining capacity.

The figures dictate the importation of 8,000 barrels a day from abroad, with 4,000,000 barrels coming in refined product form.

The trouble with such dependence is twofold. For one thing, foreign crude has its high sulfur content. Secondly, the refineries in West Europe and Japan do not produce gasoline that meets U.S. Clean Air specifications.

Furthermore, where U.S. refineries will use more than 45 per cent of their capacity in producing gasoline, West European and Japanese refineries limit their gasoline production to 15 per cent of capacity. Foreigners see no reason to shift their production to help the U.S., for they can sell their gasoline and oil products in cargo quantities at the Rotterdam docks at a higher price than the oil companies in the U.S. charge for trucked gasoline at American service stations.

IN A STATEMENT before the Air and Water Pollution Subcommittee of the Senate Public Works Committee, President John K. McKinley of Texaco remarked that his company had spent some $200 million on refinery capacity that will enable it to meet the projected 1974 Clean Air requirements for low-lead gasoline. For the sake of the oil and automobile industries as a whole, however, Mr. McKinley warned that the U.S. would be better off if it were to avoid temporary dependence on costly catalytic converters during the period needed by Detroit to develop a better engine.

Catalytic technology in its current development is incredibly wasteful both of refinery capacity and the capital needed to add to our energy resources.

Mr. McKinley suggests a two-car strategy, one type car for Southern California and other critical areas, and another type for marketing in the rest of the nation. But our legislators will have to emulate Sen. James Buckley of New York and hire a few chemists instead of lawyers to advise them if we are ever to bring any common sense to bear on our linked transportation and environmental problems.

Today In History

-By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1896, gold was discovered on Bonanza Creek in Alaska, setting off the Klondike gold rush.

On this date—

In 1777, in the American Revolution, the battle of Bennington, Vt., ended in an American victory over a Hessian force under the British.

In 1914, the British Expeditionary Force landed in France in World War I.

Thought for today: The vocation of every man and woman is to serve other people — Leo Tolstoy, Russian novelist and philosopher 1828-1910.

Hal Boyle . . . Jumping to conclusions

NEW YORK (AP) — Jumping to conclusions:

The deadest art in America is the art of listening. You can hardly hire anybody, even a psychiatrist, to listen to anymore. Everybody wants to be heard; when everyone talks at once, who is left to listen? What we need is a National Clam-Up Day during which everyone, from child to centenarian, would shut up and enjoy himself — and perhaps listen to the echoes of some of the wise things said but unheard yesterday.

About the worst thing you can tell a woman is that she snores. No woman will admit she does. But it is a feminine delusion that only men snore. The medical fact is that men and women snore about equally, that is, in actual numbers. But in quality of performance, the snoring of women is far inferior to that of men. No woman could ever match the depth of wheezy raspings, bottomless gurgles, stentorian sighs, cacophonous snorts, and snorous roars of a fat, middle-aged man sleeping off a huge dinner of pig knuckles, sauerkraut and beer.

The biggest problem in the average business office is what to do with a homely girl who can't spell either — but who is too nice to fire.

About the most useless thing on earth is a picturesque post card from someone you dislike who could afford to go to a better vacation resort than you went to.

No matter how much smarter you are than the other fellow, you are always willing to listen to his advice on two subjects — how to cure the hiccups and how to get rid of a cold.

Most men go to their graves secretly convinced, no matter how many other goodies life showered on them, that somehow or other they never managed to get their fair share of sex. And they wonder who did get it.

God never made a canyon, man never dug a well, as deep and empty as the drained faces of tired people you see any day in a New York City subway. They look as eroded and changeless as an abandoned farm, fixed by time in hopelessness. Nothing shows more dramatically what is wrong with civilization than this expression on subway faces.

Heaven might get more recruits if one of its attractions was more often pointed out: it is the one place left where you can go and get away from inflation. You can also escape death and taxes there.

Department is given watercraft powers

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Department of Natural Resources has been given broader authority to curb boating accidents on the state's lakes and rivers.

Gov. John J. Gilligan signed legislation giving the department's watercraft division law enforcement powers and allowing development of educational boating programs.

There were about 130,000 Indians living in the California region of the United States when it was discovered by the Spanish in 1542.

Dear Abby:

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: At my age, I should be giving advice, not asking for it, but I just don't know how to handle this.

My husband passed away two years ago of a terminal illness. While he was sick, his best friend Charlie (a divorced man) was wonderful to both of us, and he promised my husband he would "look after" me.

After my husband's death Charlie helped me in my grief and loneliness, and I transferred the love I had for my husband to him. He's pushing for marriage, but I just don't trust him. I have become suspicious, jealous, and resentful of Charlie. He says he loves me, but he is very often "unreachable," which upsets me. I have caught him in several lies, for which he always has explanations, but I am not convinced.

Every time I try to tell him I want to hold off marrying him, he gets a terrible attack of something. (Asthma or the shingles.) I am so afraid he will die, and I'll be responsible for it.

How can I get out of marrying him without making him sick?

IN A BIND

DEAR IN: Avoid a scene. Gently ease Charlie out of your life. See others and drop him gradually without telling him it's his swan song. It's your neck or his.

DEAR ABBY: I need help soon. My son is engaged to be married. I met his bride-to-be only once. She is a beautiful, rich society girl. I hear they are having a big church wedding. There will be judges, congressmen, governors and all kind of high-class people there. Abby, I have never been to a wedding like this let alone been IN one.

This is way out of my class. I wish I could say I have a headache at the last minute and ditch the whole thing. I don't know what to wear, and I won't know how to act or what to say. I'm afraid I'll be a hick from the sticks and I'll embarrass my poor son.

I do janitor work in an office building at night, and I just won't fit in with these people.

GROOM'S MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Be yourself, and you'll do just fine. Ask your son to find out what kind of gown the bride's mother is wearing, and wear one that will go well with hers. (Perhaps your son and his fiancee can help you purchase the dress and accessories.) You need not feel inadequate or embarrassed. After all, you are contributing something to the wedding that is of the utmost importance: The groom!

DEAR ABBY: BUGGED IN THE BRONX, a secretary complained because her husband called her at work several times daily to talk about nothing. She said she cuts him short, saying she's busy, but he calls right back to finish a long, boring story.

You advised her to keep cutting him shorter and shorter until he gets the message.

It won't work. Here's my advice: Tell him: "No calls at work unless the house is on fire or somebody drops dead." When he continues to call, as he will, do this: "Goodby," and hang up on him before he has a chance to say anything else. When he calls back and says: "You hung up on me," you say: "I know it," and hang up on him again. Nothing else will work.

BEEN THROUGH IT

DEAR BEEN: If that's not "cutting him shorter and shorter until he gets the message" – what is?

3 found guilty in shooting case

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — An eight-man, four-woman U.S. District Court jury deliberated slightly more than two hours Wednesday before finding three men guilty in connection with the shooting of Philip J. Graziani, former assistant state attorney general.

Claude W. Truslow, 29, Bernard Lee Brumfield, 31, both of Charleston, and George Thomas Davidson Jr., 36, of Lebanon, Ohio, were found guilty of conspiracy and obstruction of justice in connection with the April 1972 wounding of Graziani.

Graziani was seriously wounded outside his Charleston home just one month before he was scheduled to testify for the government in a bribery-conspiracy trial. On trial were former West Virginia Atty. Gen. C. Donald Robertson, his brother Dana and James F. Haught, former state director of the Federal Housing Administration. They pleaded guilty and are currently serving federal prison terms.

Oldsters busy climbing Adirondacks

KEENE VALLEY, N.Y. (AP) — From the summit of 4,098-foot Cascade Mountain, Harry Gamble's eyes took in a 50-mile view of the Adirondacks in northern New York. He admired the crystalline lakes, the thick forests and especially the mountains.

"Yeah, Harry," said Glenn Fish, his husky, deeply tanned friend.

"Back to '21, I mean," Gamble added, recalling the year he climbed his first peak.

Gamble, who will be 74 in August, and Fish, 63, belong to the Adirondack 46ers, a mountain climbing club. The only requirement for membership is to hike up all 46 Adirondack peaks judged by an 1897 survey to be 4,000 feet or higher.

They achieved that goal together in July 1969, after both had retired. For Fish, a former certified public accountant in New York City who now lives along the Hudson River in Riparius, the feat took less than three years. He then became president of the 46ers, a post he left last May.

Gamble took a little longer. He climbed 5,344-foot Mt. Marcy, New York State's highest peak, in 1921, the same year he arrived in Pottersville. Nearly 50 years later, after he had turned over his hardware store to his son, he reached his 46th peak.

Now the inseparable companions climb for the fun of it and in all seasons — despite snowstorms, blackflies, the encroachments of age and the fretting of Gamble's wife. "She's the darndest worrier," he says.

"I figure golf is for old men," Gamble says. "Doesn't seem very tiring to me, walking around and hitting a ball." Fish gave up golf after he moved north because, he says, he couldn't find anyone to play 36 holes a day.

Since the two began hiking together in 1968, Fish has been urging Gamble to pause during the ascents and savor the "woods experience." But on the day they climbed Cascade last month with Fish's 32-year-old nephew and two other hikers, Harry moved at his usual speed. Skipping over mud and fallen trees, dodging boulders and humming "Red River Valley," he arrived at the summit a half-hour before Fish. Only Fish's nephew kept up with him.

Your Income Tax

EDITOR'S NOTE: This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Q. In June, my home was damaged by flood. I would have gotten a better tax advantage by deducting my casualty loss on the return I filed in April. Do I have to wait to claim this loss on my 1973 return?

A. If, in 1973, your area was declared a disaster area by the President, and, as a result of that disaster, you suffered a casualty loss, you have the option of deducting the loss on your 1972 federal income tax return or waiting until next year.

If you have already filed your return for the prior year, file Form 1040X, which is specifically designed to expedite your refund. For details on how to do it, see IRS Publication 547, "Tax Information on Disasters, Casualty Losses, and Thefts." Send a postcard to your local IRS office for a free copy.

Q. I've earned more than $10,000 so far this year. Shouldn't my employer stop withholding Social Security tax from my pay?

A. The maximum wage base for social security tax withholding in 1973 is $10,800. This equals $631.80 in Social Security tax. After this point, your employer should not be withholding Social Security tax. If he is still withholding this tax, see him to adjust this over-collection.

Any taxpayer who holds more than one job during the year and has more than $10,800 of his wages subject to social security tax can claim the excess tax withheld as a credit against his tax.

Q. I used money from my part-time job to buy new furniture for my bedroom. Will this have any effect on whether or not my parents can claim me as a dependent?

A. No. Capital expenditures for furniture and appliances are not included in total support. As long as your parents contribute more than one-half of your total support and meet all the other dependency tests, they can still claim you as a dependent.

Q. I increased the value of my home by installing central air conditioning. Can I get a deduction for what I spent?

A. No. This expense cannot be deducted, but it can be added to the cost basis of your home. This way, the cost of the air conditioning unit will be taken into account in the event you sell your home.

Child killed in Oklahoma thunderstorm

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Fair weather spread over most of the nation today following a night of widely scattered rainfall and lightning which led to the death of one Oklahoma child.

Thunderstorms were scattered from the central Plains and southern Plateau to the northern Mississippi Valley and along the Gulf Coast. Showers also dampened the northern and Middle Atlantic coast, where fog restricted visibility.

Providence, R.I., was swamped with more than 4 inches of rain during the past 24 hours. Duluth, Minn., basements were flooded Wednesday evening when 2.25 inches of rain poured into that city. Tulsa, Okla., measured 1.66 inches of rain about midnight.

Lightning set fire to a mobile home at Jay, Okla., near Tulsa, and to a house near Tahlequah and felled a tree killing one child.

Thunderstorms in parts of southern Arizona released heavy rains, filling normally dry creek beds. Strong gusty winds blew sand and dust over the region. Heavy showers caused some flooding in low areas of northwestern Texas.

A tornado damaged orange trees near Winter Haven, Fla., late Wednesday. Twisters also were sighted in the Dakotas, Nebraska and eastern Minnesota, but no personal injuries were reported.

Mrs. Kirk's Kitchen

By GLADYS KIRK

It's Fair Time Again!

This week I'll be working with two 4-H'ers who will be representing Fayette County in the 4-H activities at the Ohio State Fair on Aug. 23 and Aug. 31.

Two of our members, Debbie Duff and Nelta Baker are preparing their exhibit for the Home Furnishings Decorama on Thursday, Aug. 23. A professional home economist will be interviewing them on the techniques they used to refinish their wood furniture pieces. They will be in the first class at 8:30 a.m. on Aug. 23 in the Lausche Building. Do plan to stop by.

Six members are scheduled to participate in the 4-H Food and Nutrition Show on Friday, Aug. 31, in the Lausche Youth Building. Debbie Krupla will be judged on her "Food Preservation" project at 8:30 a.m. Later that morning at 9:45 a.m., Lisa Jackson and Melissa Mark will be answering questions on how to prepare and serve "Quick Meals". Dee Dee Lange and Mary Ann Wilson are scheduled for 11 a.m. for their "International Foods" project judging. Competing in "Breads" at 2:15 p.m. will be Lynne Rapp.

As in our own Nutrition Show at the Fayette County Fair, these girls will be scoring a group of other participants in their class as well as being judged by a professional person. The combination of these scores will determine the "Outstanding of the Day". After judging, the general public is welcome to talk to the girls about their projects. Interest many times results in free taste samples!

Visitors to the Lausche Youth Building at 9:30 a.m. that day will also find Fayette County 4-H'ers giving demonstrations. Christine Taylor, Kelly Hicks, Jo-Retta Brown, Debbie Duff, Debbie Cremeans, Cindy Baird and Terry Thompson will be giving their presentation to those who stop by to see the activities.

Fayette County's seven participants in the Style Revue have an extra long day at the Fair. After registration between 8:30 and 10:00 a.m. on Friday, Aug. 31, Marianne Arnold, Leslie Harrison, Terri Wissinger, Julie Frost, Jomi Warner, Loretta Braun, and Cindy Grover will be practicing modeling for the Style Show that afternoon at 3:30 p.m. in the Youth Center Auditorium. All participants are dressed at 12:30 p.m. for judging and modeling rehearsal. The participants are then divided into groups in which they score each other on fashion, grooming, posture, poise, construction, fit, design and personable qualities while a professional person also scores each group. Those named as "Outstanding of the day in each class will include the persons rated highest on each of the two lists, the number depending upon the size of the class.

Those of you who would like to see the girls model their outfits on Aug. 31 should be at the Youth Center Auditorium prompty at 3:10 p.m. when the doors are open to the public. In the 3:30 p.m. Style Revue that day Marianne Arnold will also be competing for the State Fashion Board and Julie Frost will be submitting forms to try for the National Dress Revue.

We hope to see many Fayette County people in the audience supporting our young people in these events.

Mrs. Smith honored

Mrs. Rachel Smith was guest of honor at a luncheon at the Terrace Lounge recently. A former employe of the Margaret Clark Oakfield Convalescent Center, she is now employed at Memorial Hospital as a licensed practical nurse. Hostesses for the luncheon were co-employes, aides and nurses.

Family dinner honors Mrs. Kimmey

A family get-together was held at Wilson School Sunday with a basket dinner at noon. The party was held in honor of Mrs. Bessie Kimmey of Staunton, and the afternoon was spent playing softball and other games.

Sharing the afternoon and dinner were Mrs. Vera Kimmey, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kimmey II and Roger, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kitchen and Terry, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kimmey, Ricky, Bobby and Stevie, Mrs. Shirley Gilmore and Brian, and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Gentry and Jason, all of Staunton;

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kimmey III of Burgin, Ky.; Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Miller of Frankfort; Joe Lux of New Holland; Mr. and Mrs. Jim Kimmey, Kelly and Karey, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Kitchen, Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Ely, Dee and Stephanie, Mr. and Mrs. Don Sever and Amy, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Starr and Linda, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Strouse and Charlene, and Mrs. Bessie Kimmey, all of Wahington. TOPS chapter plans party

Mrs. Richard Southworth was named "best loser and queen" for the week, and Mrs. Beryl Smith and Mrs. Emmett Campbell tied for officer of the week, when the OH TOPS chapter met Monday evening in Eastside School. There were 23 members who weighed in.

A family get-together is planned for 6:30 p.m. Aug. 21 at Washington Park, and all members are urged to attend. Names were given to be called this week, to encourage all to continue losing weight and to attend meetings. Volleyball will be the game of the week.

The quote for the week is "Begin today to be the size you want to be tomorrow."

Creamer family has reunion

The 74th annual Creamer family reunion took place Sunday at the Spring Grove United Methodist Church. A basket dinner was held at noon and officers for the coming year are: Mrs. Ruth Buck president; Maynard Marine, vice president; Mrs. Medrith Creamer, treasurer; Mrs. Irene Harris, secretary; and Nelson Black, historian.

In the afternoon, all visited the old Creamer Cemetery.

It was decided by the group to meet again next year at the same place on the second Sunday in August.

HAVE YOU WRITTEN A BOOK?

The field editor of a well-known New York subsidy publishing firm will be in Chillicothe in September. He will be interviewing local authors in a quest for finished manuscripts suitable for book publication. All subjects will be considered, including fiction and non-fiction, poetry, juveniles, religious books. etc.

If you have completed a book-length manuscript (or nearly so) on any subject, and would like a professional appraisal (without cost or obligation), please write immediately describing your work and stating which part of the day (a.m. or p.m.) you would prefer for an appointment. Please mention your phone number. You will promptly receive a confirmation for a definite time and place.

Authors with completed manuscripts unable to appear may send them directly to us for a free reading and evaluation. We will also be glad to hear from those whose literary works are still in progress. Please address:

Miss Gaye Lynn Flax, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack L. Flax, Miami Trace Rd., became the bride of Edwin Frank Thompson Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Thompson, Washington-Waterloo Rd., in a lovely summer wedding held in Grace United Methodist Church.

Rev. Allen Puffenberger and Rev. Gerald Wheat officiated at the double ring ceremony Aug. 4 before the altar enhanced with candelabra entwined with greenery and rose, aqua and tangerine ribbon. The altar vases were filled with white gladioli, vari-colored carnations, greenery and baby's breath. Ribbon and greenery also marked the family pews.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiant in a gown of Irish lace and silk chiffon, designed and made by her mother. The empire bodice of lace featured a scoop neckline and short cap sleeves encrusted with seed pearls. The full chiffon skirt, over bridal satin, fell to a chapel length train. Appliques of lace and seed pearls adorned the skirt, which held a soft bustle bow at the back waistline. Hand beaded Alencon lace edged the neckline, sleeves and hemline of the gown. The bouffant veil of silk illusion was caught to a demi cap of Alencon lace and seed pearls. Her only jewelry was a small hand carved cameo pendant, a gift from her grandmother, the late Mrs. Rex Pittenger, who received it as a gift from her grandmother on her graduation day.

She carried a colonial bouquet of stephanotis, rosebuds, feathered carnations and baby's breath tied with a shower of white satin ribbons tied in love knots. Two linen handkerchiefs belonging to the bride and groom's grandmothers, were laced into the bouquet.

Miss Cindy Thompson, sister of the groom, was maid of honor. She wore a formal length gown of white batiste, with shadow stripes of small pink flowers. The square cut neckline and short puffed sleeves were edged in a narrow Irish lace of rosebuds. A wide sash of deep rose crepe encircled the waist and fell to the hemline. She wore a white sheer braid picture hat with a deep rose band, and a cluster of Irish rosebuds and feathered carnations.

Miss Nancy Campbell and Miss Kristi Cross of New Holland served as bridesmaids. They were attired identical to the maid of honor, Miss Campbell in aqua, and Miss Cross in tangerine.

Hostesses for the reception held in the church courtyard were Mrs. Kenneth Miller and Mrs. Damon Merritt, aunts of the bride, Mrs. Randall Miller, Mrs. Kenneth B. Miller of Dayton, Mrs. Michael Inskeep and Miss Sherri Woods. Mrs. Steve Shipley of Athens, was at the guest book.

The bride's table was centered with a three tiered wedding cake decorated with flowers of rose, aqua and tangerine, and topped with a cluster of carnations, Fuji mums and baby's breath. The base was encircled with greenery and flowers. Crystal candelabra and silver nut dishes complimented the table from which punch and hors-d-oeuvres were also served.

Mrs. Thompson is a graduate of Miami Trace High School, and was a spring graduate of Ohio State University with a bachelor of science in education. She has been employed by the Columbus City School system, as a special education teacher.

Mr. Thompson is also a graduate of MTHS and of OSU with a degree in business administration. He is employed by Huntington National Bank of Columbus, as a management trainee.

Upon their return from a wedding trip to Florida where they visited Disneyworld and other places of interest, they are at home to their friends at Lincoln Park West, Apt. 6, 4533 Linwood Lane N, Columbus.

Pike County reunion set

The annual Pike County reunion will be held Aug. 26 at Goshen Park, near Mechanicsburg. The meeting will be held at the No. 3 shelter house at the foot of the hill at the lower entrance.

A picnic basket dinner at noon and a business meeting at 2 p.m. will be featured. All residents and ex-residents of Pike County are invited.

Anniversary party is a surprise

A surprise gathering of relatives and friends honoring the 25th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. James Connell, 309 Buckeye Rd., was held in the country home of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Steve Huff at Madison Mills Sunday. The party was planned by the Huffs and the Connell's two sons, Pat and Brian. Another son, Richard, is serving with the US armed forces in Thailand.

The Huff home was decorated with purple, white and silver. A three tiered anniversary cake, baked and decorated by Mrs. Glenn McCoy, was topped by a bridal couple and decorated with purple violets. Crystal candelabra flanked the cake. Punch and nuts were served by Joe and Lu Brown, nieces of Mrs. Connell, Mrs. Sarah Brown, her sister, and Mrs. Paul Huff.

Mr. and Mrs. Connell received many lovely gifts.

Art show held at Fayette Bank

Miss Sue Lynd has on display some art work this week at the Fayette County Bank. She studied art at the Dayton Art Institute and did her academic work at Rio Grande College, Rio Grande, and the University of Dayton. Since graduation, she has studied weaving design and technique under Lucille Reed of Shreveport, La., and John Walling of Columbus. Her major as an undergraduate was design, however, most of her recent work has been in weaving.

In addition to teaching Art at Unioto School in Ross County and Northwood High in Shreveport, La., she has taught weaving to adult groups. She is presently employed as an Art teacher in the West Milton Schools.

TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — It's official now. Julia Child has bid adieu to public television and won't be back this fall with new episodes of her "French Chef" series. The shows you'll see will be reruns.

"There are people who would like to underwrite new shows, but Julia's been working for 10 years straight," says a spokeswoman at Boston's WGBH-TV, where "The French Chef" is produced.

"She has a house in France and she sort of wanted to take a sabbatical," the spokeswoman said, adding that there is a possibility Miss Child might do occasional cooking specials or start her series again. She said underwriters are interested in both prospects.

"But we can't do a thing about it until she comes back after Labor Day and we've talked to her about it," the spokeswoman said. "So, there won't be a new series of "French Chef" programs this fall.

"There might be a few specials if she likes the idea. If she decides to go back into daily production, there might be another series but it wouldn't be ready for this fall, obviously."

Miss Child, a pleasant matter-of-fact woman, began cooking on public television Feb. 11, 1963, Since then, she's done nearly 330 shows and written several best-selling cookbooks.

Her show was in danger of going off the air last September for lack of an underwriter, which in public TV is a sponsor who pays for cost of the show but isn't allowed to surround it with commercials.

Finally, the Polaroid Corp., which had underwritten the show for three previous years, decided to do it again for the 1972-73 season when no other support seemed imminent.

Walter Cronkite, the veteran reporter and anchorman of the CBS Evening News, has been missing from that weekday show since May 28. But he's not ill and hasn't been declared AWOL by the network.

Ohio Libertarian Party asks for impeachment of Nixon

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Libertarian party has urged five Ohio congressmen to support impeachment of President Nixon, backing up its call with petitions from their home districts.

Kay Harroff, state party chairman, told the congressmen by letter that Nixon has "invoked the 'divine right of kings' in the name of 'executive privilege' and 'national security'" and that Congress "should decisively refuse any such sanction."

The petitions, signed by 282 persons in the Akron-Cleveland area, were circulated and mailed to congressmen prior to Nixon's Wednesday night nationally televised speech.

They were sent to Rep. Robert F. Drinan of Massachusetts, who recently introduced a bill in the House calling for impeachment, and to Reps. William E. Minshall, James V. Stanton, Louis Stokes, Charles A. Vanik and John F. Seiberling, all of Ohio.

The chairman said the Libertarian workers circulating the petitions found that only about 25 per cent of those contacted favored immediate impeachment. She said many wanted the Senate Watergate investigation to continue indefinitely.

She also said a number of persons "feared their signing would result in government wrath and harassment."

The petitions said that Nixon should be impeached because he "violated the constitution by usurping power, denying constitutional rights and subverting justice." They also said that "by his own admission, Nixon set up a secret police organization and authorized illegal entry and illegal spying by government agents against American citizens for political purposes."

And the petitions said that "Nixon has made his administration one of secrecy and isolation from the Congress and the American people."

The Libertarian party advocates individual rights and the absence of government interference with them.

Only hardship price boosts should be OKd, DiSalle says

SAVANNAH, Ga. (AP) — The director of the Economic Stabilization Commission under President Truman says that industry should have to prove a hardship before any price increases are granted.

Michael V. DiSalle, the director of the Economic Stabilization Commission in 1952, said Wednesday he believes all price increases should be reviewed by the agency.

DiSalle, a former governor of Ohio, said, "I think industry should have to prove it would create a hardship if the price increase is not granted."

He also criticized the scope and size of the Cost of Living Council, which he said were too small to manage the economy.

An agency of 600 people is not large enough, he said, to run a wage and price control program for 200 million people.

"The government should not be put in the position to go chasing price increases," he added. "A program of that kind cannot function."

DiSalle, visiting friends here, suggested in an interview that an agency should have enough people to process price increase applications from industries, to interpret regulations and to enforce its own decisions.

He said enforcement should not be in the hands of the Internal Revenue Service, which "has a big enough job of its own."

Compared with Nixon's program which has only one office in Washington, the Truman program had 71 district offices.

The smallness of the Nixon economic supervisory apparratus, DiSalle said, is to blame for the rising prices and other economic problems.

Tax rollback cash distributed by state

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The State Auditor's office has disbursed $61.3 million in property tax rollbacks to Ohio's 88 counties.

Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson said the rollback money was the result of tax settlements for the last half of 1971. The legislature authorized the 10 per cent rollback in December 1971

Pull body from river

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — The body of an unidentified man who had been shot, bound and weighted was pulled from the Ohio River Wednesday near Lawrenceburg, Ind.

The body was discovered by two water skiers and recovered by Kentucky State Police.

Sgt. Ray Wilson of the Boone County, Ky., police said the man had been shot at least once in the chest. His arms and legs were tied and a 25-pound anchor was attached to the body, Wilson said.

Authorities estimated the man had been dead three or four days.

Delay hearing on Burr Oak

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A hearing on a suit by operators cf Burr Oak State Lodge to reopen the facility near Glouster has been delayed until at least Aug. 24 by the Ohio Supreme Court.

The high court took the action Wednesday on a request filed by Gov. John J. Gilligan and other state officials.

The hearing had been scheduled this week in Guernsey County Common Pleas Court in Cambridge.

Gilligan closed the lodge and state-operated cabins at Burr Oak State Park Aug. 3 following a series of bomb threats. The park grounds have remained open.

Galena man to head Churches of Christ

MILTON, Wis. (AP) — Ernest Bond of Galena, Ohio, will be installed Saturday as president of the 1974 conference of the National Council of Churches of Christ in the United States.

By JOHN GREELY
Associated Press Writer

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — When Alaska's oil starts oozing to West Coast markets, perhaps sometime in 1977, the state expects a $500 million windfall in annual tax revenue.

The total could be as low as $200 million, depending on future oil prices and the outcome of secret negotiations between the state and industry over how to fix a value for North Slope oil and who should do it.

The talks between Gov. William A. Egan and the seven companies composing the Alyeska Pipeline Service Co. have been going on for about a year. They were initiated when the consortium filed suit against newly adopted state tax and regulatory laws.

At stake are huge sums of revenue for Alaska's 310,000 residents, who fully expect the trans-Alaska pipeline to be the first of several major projects for moving their vast oil and gas resources. Until the disputed laws were adopted, Alaska's oil royalties had been figured as a percentage of the wellhead value, or the refinery price less the cost of getting it to market. But, while the pipeline has been under court challenge for two years, inflation and environmental stipulations have more than tripled its original $1 billion cost.

Fearing zero state revenue, Egan sponsored and the legislature approved last year a $2.65 per barrel floor on North Slope wellhead prices. Above that level the state would reap a percentage tax, below it a flat cents-per-barrel assessment, thus guaranteeing flow into the state treasury.

By setting prices in the field, the state has attempted to tread ground traditionally held by the industry. And the oil companies resent it.

However, state economists predict — and the industry has yet to dispute it — that Alaskan oil will be selling for $4 or more a barrel by 1978, so the $2.65 wellhead floor may never be needed.

What has particularly piqued the industry is a law giving the state regulatory authority akin to that of the federal Interstate Commerce Commission.

Instead of operating under life of the field leases, the industry would be forced to renegotiate contracts every 25 years or less. The economic life of the pipeline is expected to be 35 years.

In addition, the act gives the state an option to buy up to 20 per cent of the pipeline, if the legislature approves, and sets out land rental charges geared to escalate as industry profits rise. The tax could mean an additional $275 million for the state during the life of the pipeline, according to state-industry estimates.

Passage of the laws was spurred by Eagan's assertions the state would be bankrupt by 1977 due to heavy deficit spending that has been eating into the $900 million that oil companies paid in 1969 for drilling rights on the North Slope.

Although the Prudhoe Bay pool from which the pipeline will flow contains an estimated 9.8 billion barrels of recoverable oil, the field is just a fraction of the area of the North Slope, where exploration is still in its infancy. Geologists believe more than 20 billion barrels can be pumped from the slope, with trillions of cubic feet of natural gas to follow.

Exploration also has just begun on the continental shelf of Alaska where huge unproved reserves may lie.

The economic benefits for the state's residents will be many, although theories abound whether they will come in a big boom or a little bang.

An industry-recommissioned study predicts 18,000 new jobs will be available during the three years of pipeline construction and that the population will grow by 40,000 people. Unemployment, however, is expected to increase due to the influx.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

"Reasonable Wear and Tear"

Because the rent for his apartment was high, Henderson figured he could do pretty much as he pleased with the elegant furnishings.

During his occupancy he broke two valuable lamps, lost a costly pitcher and a painting, and spattered the antique furniture with unremovable stains.

When the landlord demanded reimbursement for the damage, Henderson said he could not be held liable for "reasonable wear and tear."

But a court saw things the landlord's way and ordered Henderson to make good.

IF YOU ARE renting a house or an apartment, chances are that somewhere in your lease there is a clause about reasonable wear and tear. This puts commonsense limits on the use you can make of the premises. In other cases, courts have held it wrongful when

(1) a man chopped wood indoors, ripping the wallpaper, ssplintering the woodwork, and punching holes in the plaster;

(2) a woman let her bathtub overflow, causing extensive water damage; damage;

(3) a man, trying to chisel open a stuck window, gouged great holes in the sill;

(4) a couple permitted their pet poodle to soil the living room rug at will.

ON THE OTHER hand, the law recognizes that a certain amount of deterioration — scuffed floors, worn carpets, nicked chairs — can come from normal, everyday use.

Nor is the tenant usually liable for harm done by the elements. Accordingly, in another case, the weathering and weakening of porch railings and outside shutters were held not the tenant's responsibility.

As one judge put it:

"Reasonable wear and tear contemplates that deterioration will occur by reason of time and use despite ordinary care. A tenant is not required to renovate the premises at the expiration of his lease."

Japan gives economic aid to U.S.

By BARRY SHLACHTER
Associated Press Writer

TOKYO (AP) — Only a few years ago, Japan was receiving large dollops of American aid. Now Japan feels the United States can use some financial assistance itself.

In early August, Japan's Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka announced his government was granting $10 million to 10 U.S. universities. The money is earmarked for Japanese studies programs which have been hurt by decreasing funds from the U.S. government and private foundations.

Last September, the Mitsubishi industrial group of 26 companies donated $1 million to Harvard University. Not to be outdone, the rival Sumitomo group gave $2 million to Yale University and another $1 million to the Japan Society of New York this June.

Japan, now affluent and ranking third in the world in terms of gross national product, has suddenly turned philanthropic.

Japan was able to rebuild after World War II with generous American assistance. And the Japanese, ever mindful of favors done them, would claim they would like to repay what they consider a moral obligation or "giri."

"I think it has to do with our psychology," said Masaya Miyoshi, an official of the influential Keidanren — Federation of Economic Organizations. "We feel quite indebted to the United States. America helped us after the war and it still helps us today — with its nuclear umbrella for defense and raw materials for our industries.

"And so for past — and present — favors, we are giving America a sort of 'o-chugen' (midsummer) present," Miyoshi added.

Mitsubishi made its donations to Harvard after a recommendation by one of its professors, a Chinese law expert. The money will go to sponsor a teaching post for Japanese law at Harvard.

Aware of the Mitsubishi donation and approached itself by four Yale professors, Sumitomo decided to do its rival one better.

"The Yale professors came to us saying they needed money for its Japanese studies program as government and foundation grants were being reduced. And in view of the Mitsubishi gift, we decided to grant Yale $2 million — twice as much," said Shozo Hotta, the chairman of Sumitomo bank.

"Of course, a major consideration was that we Japanese haven't forgotten how America helped us immediately after the war."

Lookout house fire probed

The former 1950 gambling casino turned plush supper club and restaurant was destroyed by fire Tuesday.

Investigators Joe Wilhoite and Phil Hampton would not speculate about the cause. They said they intended today to interview employes and firemen.

"The amount of insurance and money involved are the factors here," said Hampton Wednesday.

He said that arson investigators are assigned to every fire where there is a large loss or a loss of life. There was no loss of life in the fire here.

George Jacoby, comptroller for the owners, Ohio Real Estate Investment Co., said the building was insured for $1.2 million, and $550,000 for the contents. The firm estimated the loss at $2.5 million.

The club was closed down July 15 for remodeling and had been scheduled to reopen Sept. 1.

Porter hears prison suit

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)— U.S. District Court Judge David S. Porter, with an admonishment to Ohio prison officials not to take any action against suing prisoners, has set a hearing in chambers Friday on a suit charging inhuman treatment at the Lucasville penitentiary.

Porter denied a temporary injunction to unseat three prison officials Wednesday. The suit was filed by the Ohio Prisoners Union on behalf of the 500 inmates at the prison.

Named as defendants were Ohio Gov. John J. Gilligan, Ohio Corrections Director Bennett Cooper, and prison Supt. W. J. Whealon and his associates James Schotten and and Jerry Foulk.

The suit asks the removal of the latter three for "misfeasance and malfeasance" and asks $250,000 in damages.

Judge Porter also ordered that male lawyers be permitted into the prison to interview their clients.

Vigilantes eye rustlers

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — Vigilante groups are springing up in an attempt to stop widespread livestock rustling across West Virginia, and innocent people may be affected, according to state Agriculture Commissioner Gus Douglass.

"Stealing, rustling and illegal slaughtering of livestock have caused the farmers to start taking justice into their own hands," he said in a statement. "I am very much afraid that some innocent party might be hurt by these groups."

The "alarming growth" in rustling stems from the short supply of meat in the state, the commissioner said.

Some of the stolen livestock has been slaughtered in the fields in unsanitary conditions, he warned, and inspections have been stepped up to ensure that commercially available meat is safe.

The rustling may also affect future supplies of beef, he noted, because some of the animals taken are breeding stock.

Ask injunction for air cleanup

GARY, Ind. (AP)—A federal suit against U.S. Steel Corp. seeks a mandatory injunction to force the giant steelmaker to comply with an Environmental Protection Agency order.

"This is the first suit of its type in the country under the Clean Air Act and we will insist on compliance with our order," said Valdas V. Adamkus, acting EPA regional director.

A spokesman for U.S. Steel said the order would not allow the company enough time to change over to a new steelmaking process with built-in pollution controls. He said it could result in the shutting down of two open hearth steelmaking furnaces.

Lake Erie going bad 100 years?

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—A two-year $500,000 study concludes that the offshore waters of Lake Erie have deteriorated steadily for more than 100 years. It adds that no significant improvement has occurred recently in either the offshore waters or lower Cuyahoga River.

The findings dispute recent reports that the lake and river have been getting much cleaner.

The study was directed by researchers with Cleveland's water quality program in cooperation with scientists at Cleveland State, John Carroll and Case Western Reserve universities. It was funded mainly by the U. S. Environmental Protection Agency.

Al B. Garlauskas, project director for the city's water quality program, said the findings indicate that cleanup plans to get the water quality back to that of 1900 may not be adequate. He explained that cleanup standards have been based on previous studies listing 1900 a year when Lake Erie was not polluted.

However, Garlauskas said water analysis records uncovered for the first time show that offshore lake waters were much cleaner in 1850 than 1900. This means that it may require much tighter standards than now proposed to get the water back to the unpolluted state, he added.

Garlauskas said the study will be valuable in planning water quality programs and for evaluating the success of cleanup efforts now under way by the City of Cleveland and some industries.

He said much of the study was put together by Denis Case, former project director for the city's water quality program. Case is now director of research for the Ohio Department of Natural Resources.

Major conclusions of the study include:

-Lake Erie waters are quite clean a mile offshore. Cleveland's contribution to the lake's pollution as a whole is minor but near the shore it is tremendous.

--Recent reports that the lake's quality is improving appear to be misleading, at least in the Cleveland area.

--There are several sections of badly polluted water and others of fair water quality along the lakefront. There is good quality immediately east and west of the city.

--The city's two public beaches, Edgewater and White City, are both within zones of poor water quality.

--Fish populations in area waters are "under stress from the degradation of the ecosystem." The Cuyahoga River is the worst area with only a few fish found in the lower reaches.

--A wide variety of fish exist but most are of relatively low food value.

LAST SURVIVOR — Eagle Creek Bridge, on Ohio 763 in Brown County, will soon be the only remaining wooden covered bridge on the state highway system. Ohio Transportaiion Director J. Phillip Richley has promised to keep the rebuilt bridge on the state system as a reminder "of our colorful past and inheritance."

Last covered 'state' bridge to get 'tender, loving care'

"Tender, loving care" will be given the last wooden, covered bridge on the state highway system, according to J. Phillip Richley, director of the Ohio Department of Transportation.

Richley said the Eagle Creek Bridge, on Ohio 763 in Brown County, will be given special care since it represents Ohio's rich heritage. The bridge will be retained as a part of the state highway system routing.

"The bridge represents a part of a past that all Ohioans share," said Richley. "We will continue to preserve it as a tribute to the state's colorful past and a reminder of our inhertance."

It will become the only wooden bridge on the state highway system when a new bridge is complete to replace the Gov. Kirker covered bridge on Ohio 136 in Adams County. The covered Kirker Bridge will remain as a historic landmark but will revert to the Adams County Commissioners and the county historical society.

The Eagle Creek bridge is known locally as the Bowman Bridge because the Bowman family had a general store nearby when the wood truss structure was originally built in 1872

"THE BOWMAN FAMILY took a great interest in the wooden bridge," said Richley. "Their store was located north of the covered structure and customers began to call it Bowman Bridge."

The rustic, one-lane bridge is surrounded by Sycamore trees and blends with the scenic, southern Ohio countryside. Rebuilt in 1952, the Douglas Fir bridge is 14 feet, 10 inches wide, spans 168 feet and has a 10-and-a-half-foot clearance.

Built on dry-laid limestone abutments, the bridge is listed in excellent condition by ODOT's Regional District Nine Office. Eagle Creek is the dividing line between two townships and the bridge connects Byrd Township on the north with Huntington Township on the south.

"While a one-lane, wooden bridge is not usually part of the modern highway system Ohio has developed, the Bowman Bridge is worth the special rating," said Richley. "The highway carries mainly local traffic and few trucks, so it can be retained on the system with little chance of hindering free-flowing traffic.

"This beautiful bridge will continue to be used daily much the same as our large, multi-lane structures. But those crossing this wooden structure will have a view into a part of our history which added to Ohio's greatness."

Phone talks seen moving off center

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The deadlocked negotiations between General Telephone Co. and striking Communications Workers of America have apparently moved off center, a company spokesman said.

Don Detweiler said union negotiators were expected to offer new contract proposals today in a session with the company and federal mediator Howard Hughes.

Union officials could not be reached for comment.

The company has remained firm on its proposal of a 7 per cent wage hike since the strike began July 16. The union has sought a pay boost of 10 per cent and job security in the negotiations.

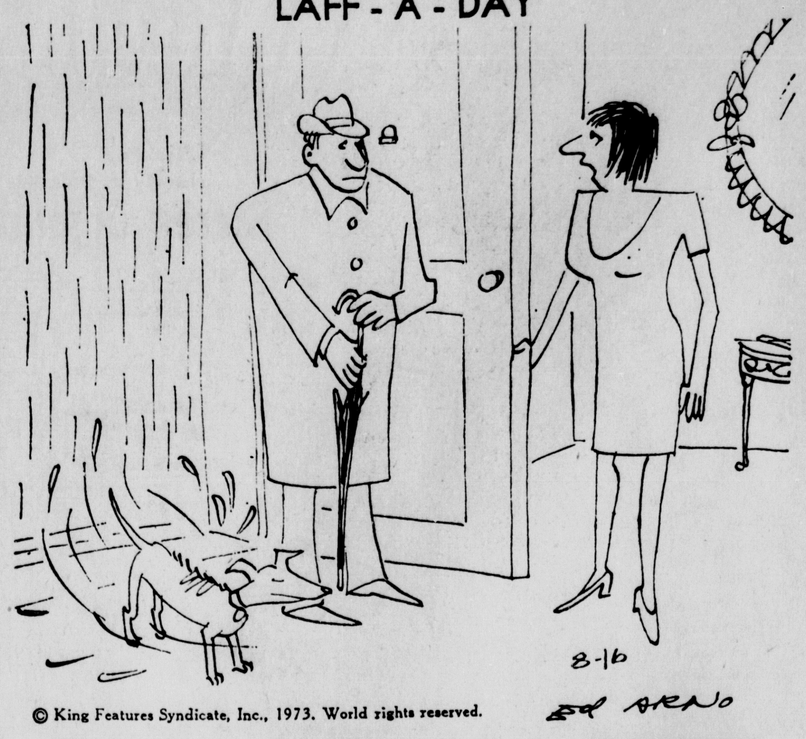

Prior to Detweiler's statement Wednesday on the new union proposal, Hughes said no progress has been made in the talks.

Teams meet Sunday at OSU

Cincy, Browns to renew rivalry

CINCINNATI — The Cincinnati Bengals and the Cleveland Browns renew their "Battle of Ohio" at 2 p.m. Sunday in a pre-season pro football game at Ohio Stadium on the Ohio State University campus at Columbus.

A near capacity crowd is expected for the second meeting between the Bengals and Browns at Ohio Stadium. Last year Cincinnati nipped Cleveland 27-21 in a thriller.

THE BENGALS will enter the game on the heels of an impressive 45-21 victory over the Philadelphia Eagles last Saturday at Riverfront Stadium.

"We showed a lot of consistency and I was very impressed with a number of young players," said Paul Brown, general manager and head coach of the Bengals, who saw Cincinnati bounce back from an opening pre-season loss to Miami (14-13) to even their record at 1-1.

"For a young man who has played tight end and linebacker in college the last two years I would say he did a pretty good job out there," Brown said with a smile. "He's big and a pretty darn good armful for any tackler."

"If we start Doug and Charles it gives us a couple of big running backs and then enables us to bring Essex Johnson in off the bench and allows him to utilize his exceptional speed," Brown said.

The Browns, who suffered an opening pre-season loss to San Francisco, fought the Los Angeles Rams to a 21-21 tie last week.

CLEVELAND, coached by Nick Skorich, finished second in the American Football Conference's Central Division last year and won a "wild card" playoff berth.

The Browns are quarterbacked by Mike Phipps and his main receivers are veterans Fair Hooker and Frank Pitts and tight end Milt Morin. Veterans Leroy Kelly and Bo Scott and rookie Greg Pruitt, a second round draft choice from Oklahoma, are the top runners.

Cincinnati and Cleveland have met twice in the pre-season with the Bengals winning both games. The Browns hold a 5-1 edge in regular season play.

Billingham, Morgan spell Pirates doom

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Joe Morgan, do-it-all second baseman, and Jack Billingham, a pitcher who has caught up with his potential, spelled the difference in Cincinnati's 1-0 win over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Morgan rapped two singles, stole two bases and made two key defensive plays, in addition to scoring the decisive run in the final inning of the Wednesday night game.

Billingham, who tied a Cincinnati record with his seventh shutout of the year, made Morgan's run stand by outlasting Pirate starter Dock Ellis, even though both pitchers allowed six hits each. The game was scoreless until the Cincinnati ninth when Morgan singled, stole second and scored on a single by reliable Tony Perez.

"Morgan has got to be in the top five in all of baseball as far as value to a ball club," said Cincinnati Manager Sparky Anderson.

"He has great range in the field; he hits close to .300; and he steals 50 bases," Anderson added. "What else can you say about a guy who does all those things?"

Billingham, who pushed his record to 16-8, yielded a single to Richie Hebner to open the Pirate ninth. However, he retired Manny Sanguillen on an infield out, and pinchhitter Milt May hit into a double play to end the game.

Despite Billingham's effectiveness, Anderson ordered him to walk Pirate slugger Willie Stargell intentionally with two outs and nobody on base in the eighth inning.

The unusual move paid off when Richie Zisk grounded out, but Billingham acknowledged that he had misgivings.

"My wife's got a thing," he explained. "She tells me that when I intentionally walk someone they usually score, so when I walked Stargell I thought about my wife sitting home in Cincinnati."

He made a diving, one-handed catch of a line drive by Rennie Stennett in the eighth, and he robbed Stargell on a hard-hit grounder in the sixth.

"He goes when he wants to," Anderson said of Morgan. "He knows a heck of a lot more about base stealing than I do."

"They walked him to get to me," Perez said, "so I said I'd better get a hit."

Dodgers 7, Expos 2

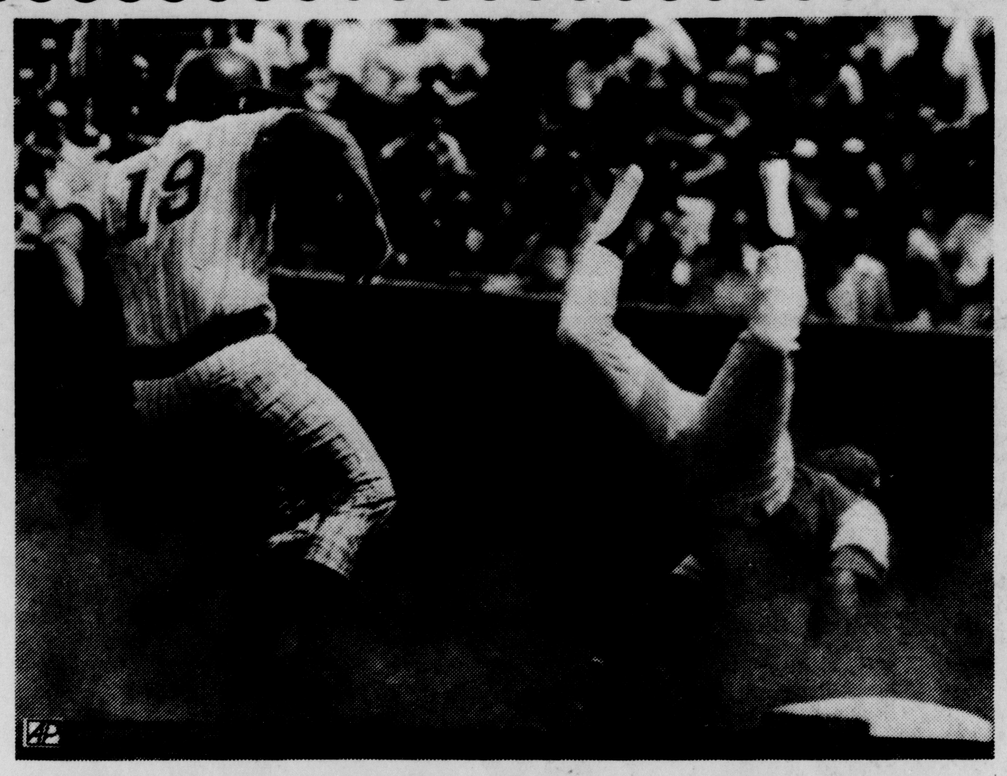

Bill Buckner homered, doubled and singled, scored two runs and led Los Angeles over Montreal. Don Sutton and Jim Brewer combined to help the Dodgers maintain their 2½game lead over the Reds in the League's Western Division.

Kidron Merchants win softball championship

FINDLAY, Ohio (AP)—Cordell Boss tossed a no-hitter Wednesday night as the Kidron Merchants breezed past defending champion Columbus Ramada Inn 5-0 to capture the Ohio Fast Pitch Softball Tournament title.

Boss hurled seven hitless innings and received enough aid from the bat of third baseman Jake Miller. Miller blasted two solo home runs deep into the left field.

Sherman White ready for clash with Browns

WILMINGTON, Ohio (AP) — Sherman White, now recovered from knee surgery will play at offensive tackle Sunday for the Cincinnati Bengals in a pre-season game with the Cleveland Browns at Columbus, Ohio.

White, Cincinnati's first round draft choice last year from the University of California, donned full uniform Wednesday for his first full practice at the Bengals' camp.

Doubtful starts, who have suffered minor injuries, are guard Pat Matson, receiver Isaac Curtis, defensive linemen Bill Petersen and Ken Johnson and Dan Kratzler.

Full-scale contact Friday

County grid teams to don pads today

Fayette County's high school football teams donned practice jersies and pads for the first time today after whisking through Wednesday workouts.

The Ohio High School Athletic Association permits the high school gridders to wear pads following three of days of physical conditioning. But full-scale contact will not be allowed until Friday's drills, as per order of the OHSAA.

WEDNESDAY'S workouts were the first since practice officially opened on Monday that rain didn't appear at the local training camps.

The Washington C.H. coaching staff installed a new running series in addition to perfecting the passing attack. Pfeifer was espcially pleased with the passing performances of senior Alan Coppock, Jeff Brown and sophomore Randy Gardner and had praise for the receiving of seniors Larry Howell and Kevin Terry and sophomore Randy Sparkman.

The Blue Lion gridders also worked on the kicking game during Wednesday's drills, Pfeifer said all phases of the game were practiced with the exception of the onside kick, which became so popular during Washington C.H.'s campaign a year ago.

Three more Washington C.H. players completed the mandatory six-minute mile requirement Wednesday, leaving only six players to complete the task before the summer drills are completed. Forty-three Blue Lion players have already completed the running requirement.

In the Miami Trace camp, new head coach Fred Zechman's players are still confused over the new brand of football being installed. However, Zechman says the players should have the mistakes and minor bugs of the new offense and defense ironed out within the next few practice sessions.

Zechman pointed out that his players continue to miss their assignments, but the Capital University product has not panicked. He said the mental mistakes can be expected and in addition the accent is on youth in the Miami Trace camp.

FOUR PLAYERS are involved in a strong battle for two vacant inside linebacking positions. Zechman said Kevin Blair, Jim Pendegraft, Bill Brundage and Donald Dunton are all hoping for starting berths and have all impressed the new Panther boss in their quest.

Wednesday's practice session was the first this summer for Dunton, a 200-pound junior, who has been sidelined with a pulled thigh muscle.

Offensively, Zechman was impressed with the performances of senior fullback Doug Ford, a returning starter, and senior halfback Doug Baker, who is playing football for the first time since being injured during his sophomore year.

Washington C.H. and Miami Trace have nearly a week and half of the vigorous two-a-day practice sessions remaining before they plunge into their first interscholastic scrimmages of the summer.

The Blue Lions will travel to Kettering Fairmont West while the Panthers will struggle with Waverly. Both scrimmages are scheduled Saturday, Aug. 25.

Staffs, Titleists leap in golf race

The Tourneys held their lead in the Wednesday Night Golf League, but the Staffs and Titleists leaped in the standings following last night's action at the Washington Country Club.

Irvin Reeves shot a 47 and Ralph Hyer and Clyde Palmer gained four points each on the basis of forfeits as the Tourneys scored an 11½ to 8½ win over the Dots.

In other action, the Staffs, in fourth place last week, got a 39 from Everett Rudolph to post a 14-6 win over Maxfli, and the Titleists, in fifth place a week ago, got a 40 from substitute Sam Parrett to whip the Reds, 15-5.

THE RESULTS

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — David "Salt" Walther, a race car and hydroplane driver who nearly died in the Indianapolis 500, stepped into the sunshine for the first time in 2½ months Wednesday.

The 26-year-old Walther has recovered sufficiently to go home for recuperation, doctors at the University of Michigan Burn Center said. He left immediately for his home in Dayton, Ohio.

Walther suffered burns over 34 per cent of his body when his racer crashed in the first lap of the Indy 500 on May 28. His car hit the outside retaining wall, exploding into falmes and flipping down the track several times. The flames also injured several spectators.

He was transferred to the university burn center from an Indianapolis hospital. Doctors said Walther needed numerous skin grafts and underwent surgery to reconstruct his left hand.

Two other drivers, Swede Savage and Art Pollard, were involved in fatal crashes at the Indy track. Pollard was killed practicing for time trials, and Savage died several weeks ago from injuries suffered during the finish of the race May 30. A pit crewman also was killed when hit by a fire truck rushing to the scene of Walther's wreck.

In a recent interview with The Associated Press, Walther said the fingertips of both hands had been removed but "that won't stop me from racing cars or boats."

Walther said at that time he had been trying to determine the cause of his accident which occurred 10 seconds after the rain-delayed race got underway. However, he said he would not make any public statements for awhile.

Asked about the accident, Walther said:

"I don't think there's any doubt I'm lucky to be alive. I don't think anybody would dispute that."

U.S.-Soviet clash seen at games

MOSCOW (AP) — The recurring battle for sports supremacy between the United States and Russia was on again today as the seventh World University Games began.

The Americans have sent their largest contingent—well over 300 men and women—to compete in eight sports. Of these, many were swinging into action on the first full day of competition.

Kathy Schmidt, a 19-year-old six-footer from Long Beach, Calif., who has been chasing the women's world javelin record, looked like America's brightest hope in Lenin Stadium today.

Kathy's best throw is 208 feet, 1 inch, less than six feet short of the world mark.

The most spectacular track event of the day's program was the gruelling 10,000-meter run. Two Americans—Richard Bowerman of Indiana University and Charles maguire of Penn State—were trying to hold off the strong challenge of the East Europeans.

Gold medals were to be decided in these two events and in the men's shot put. The Americans had two shot putters—Dana La Duc of the University of Texas and Jesse Stuart of Western Kentucky University—in the field.

Other medals to be decided Thursday were in men's foil fencing and the women's team gymnastics in optional exercises.

Pin loops gird for new season

Tony Capuana, proprietor, said some of the leagues will open their season late this month, but most of the teams will open action Sept. 4. The junior bowling league will also open play in September.

There are a total of 14 bowling leagues at Bowland Lanes this fall, including six men's leagues, seven women's and a mixed couples loop.

Capuana said there are spots open in all of the 14 leagues and interested teams or individual bowlers can obtain more information by calling Bowland Lanes at 335-2580.

Tom Vrettos and Verna Williams, secretaries of the Washington C.H. bowling associations, urge all league officers to hold their annual organization meetings so that enough ABC materials can be ordered for the season.

Ohio perspective

Assembly passes fewer bills

By ROBERT E. MILLER
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — For a long time a lot of people have believed the adage that says, "When the legislature passes a law someone loses some freedom."

Believers may take some comfort from the downward trend in the number of bills passed by Ohio's general assemblies.

Output of bills has dropped the past two sessions. At the present rate it will be even lower when the 110th General Assembly closes shop in 1974.

Figures may mislead. The legislature has a knack for putting a lot of action into a single measure. Classic example was the state's $9.9 billion appropriations bill for 1973-1975. It was an all-time high, up from $8.1 billion in the last biennium, and a volume of new spending laws in itself.

The lawmakers use the device of an omnibus bill, a catchall that can rewrite pages of statutes.

Thus far this year, the legislature has sent about 170 bills to Gov. John J. Gilligan. Few vetoes are expected.

A total of 996 bills has been introduced in the House. The Senate received 403 for a 1973 total of 1,399. The legislature may receive more this year, and is certain to do so next year when the 110th General Assembly convenes in January for its second regular session.

The 109th General Assembly received a total of 1,842 bills, of which 360 were enacted into law. The 108th received 1,833 and 498 became law.

The high output during the 108th — 1969 and 1970 — may have been partly due to Republican domination of both houses while the executive branch was headed by GOP Gov. James Rhodes.

During the first two years of Democratic Gov. Gilligan's administration he had a legislature with both houses under Republican control. In the current session the House is controlled, 58-41, by the governor's party, but Republicans hold a 17-16 margin in the Senate.

In spite of the political makeup of the last two legislatures, there have been surprisingly few vetoes. Rhodes vetoed only one measure during the 108th. Gilligan rejected only four measures during 1971 and 1972 but let 10 bills become law without his signature.

The legislature has not overriden a gubernatorial veto in the current session, or in the last several sessions.

It takes a three-fifths vote — 60 in the House and 20 in the Senature — to override a veto, the kind of majority neither party can put together without help from the opposing side.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FRIDAY, AUG 17

ARIES
(March 21 to April 20)

Be especially cooperative with associates now. Good teamwork will produce better results than lone-wolf action.

TAURUS
(April 21 to May 21)

Planetary restrictions lift now and you have the "go ahead" sign to make important decisions, launch new projects, conclude pending agreements.

GEMINI
(May 22 to June 21)

Curb your natural inclination toward unconventionality. Indiscretion now could lead to trouble later.

CANCER
(June 22 to July 23)

Your imagination highly stimulated and, while you may not capitalize on new ideas immediately, they should prove happily productive in the future.

LEO
(July 24 to Aug. 23)

Sometimes your impulsiveness gets you into trouble but some spur-of-the-moment activities launched now could have surprisingly good results.

VIRGO
(Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)

Your judgment vindicated. A message from someone "in the know" will confirm your own beliefs and consequent decisions.

LIBRA
(Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)

A family problem? Don't close your eyes to it. Open and frank discussion will help clear things up.

SCORPIO
(Oct. 24 to Nov. 22)

SAGITTARIUS
(Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)

Some restrictions where personal relationships are concerned. Don't try to force issues. Associates won't play along.

CAPRICORN
(Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)

Opportunities in a new field will interest you considerably. Study well — if only to grasp as an avocation.

AQUARIUS
(Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)

PISCES
(Feb. 20 to March 20)

Don't let your sympathies run away with you. There are some who would take advantage of your generosity.

YOU BORN TODAY are one of the most efficient and practical of all Leoites. You have an unusual sense of values, tremendous organizing ability and an outstanding gift of leadership. You would make an excellent executive and, if you do go into business, could well wind up as company president or general director of policy. If you choose another career, however, you'll probably still land on the top, through sheer force of will and determination, coupled with good management. Other outlets for your talents: the theater, the law, banking and building.

Abernathy back as SCLC leader

Abernathy, who announced his resignation July 9 as SCLC president, was swept back into office Wednesday and given a free hand to guide the civil rights organization by a unanimous vote of the SCLC board of directors.

The announcement of the rejection of Abernathy's resignation and his later acceptance of the presidency were greeted by cheers and applause from the 1,000 delegates attending the SCLC's 16th annual convention at St. John's Missinary Baptist Church here.

Abernathy, the successor to Martin Luther King Jr. as SCLC president, said he would serve for at least one more year and told delegates now is a "time for unity."

He hugged Vernon E. Jordan Jr., president of the National Urban League, who on behalf of the League pledged $1,000 to the financially troubled SCLC.

Among the SCLC directors who attended the meeting were Walt Bellamy, a former Indiana University All-American, now with Atlanta of the National Basketball Association.

Dr. Joseph B. Lowery, SCLC board chairman, said the decision to reject Abernathy's resignation was made "after we left ourselves open to the guidance of the Holy Spirit."

He said more full time staff will be hired for the national office, and five regional offices will be set up around the country to relieve Abernathy of many daily details of running the organization.

Vienna mayor is only 43

VIENNA (AP) — Vienna's new Mayor, Leopold Gratz, at age 43, is the youngest chief executive of the Austrian capital since 1774. He is also only the third mayor in Vienna's more than 2,000-year history to have Leopold for a first name.

Among the first tt congratulate Gratz were the chimney sweeps, who came from all over Austria in their working clothes.

SOUTH BASS ISLAND, Ohio (AP) — Progress, changing public taste, even Prohibition — none of these has left much of a mark on the old Heineman family winery on this rocky Lake Erie island.

Heineman's customers like it that way. At least, they seem to. It's one of a handful of American wineries which refuses to sell wholesale, and customers must come to the island for the wine.

Nestled into South Bass Island, bottom-most of the handful of rocky Lake Erie islands which trail up from Marblehead Peninsula, the winery is in a strategic spot to bypass change.

ONLY THE TOURIST — during four summer months — means more to the island than grapes. And for months at a time, when winter surrounds the island with broken ice and the ferries stop running, only airplanes keep the resident in contact with the rest of the world.

Gustav brought the winery from Germany because of the growing season, not the isolation. Heineman said the growing season is 20 days longer than it should be, that grapes grow here for nearly a month longer than as far south as Cincinnati.

Moreover, Heineman said, the brisk lake winds, the rocky soil and the humid air are perfect for grapes.

Progress came to South Bass Island in the form of automated presses that smash the grape more surely and cleanly than hand presses or islanders' feet.

AT MOST, the winery has an annual production of 25,000 gallons, Heineman said. It has never processed more than is grown on the island's few acres of vineyards.

Prohibition, which came next, "was great," he said. "All we did was process grape juice and sell it to people. A few days of work a year."

Public taste began to change after World War II, Heineman said, with the return of soldiers used to drinking wine in Europe.

"Now, more people are drinking wine every day," Heineman said. It has pushed Heineman's toward offering more sweet wines, since that seems to be the direction of public taste, he said.

Zoners nix apartment plan; approve assembly operation

Plans for building a pair of 2½ story apartment buildings at the corner of Leesburg and McKinley Avenues were scotched Wednesday night by the Zoning Board of Appeals. The Board did clare the way for establishment of an assembly facility of West Oak Street.

Meeting in the city office building, the Board denied a request that restrictions placed on lots 61 and 62 of the Elmwood Addition be lifted, ending plans for the apartment buildings. Joseph C. Del Tedesco, Arlington, Va., had sought the variance.

Dan Wolford, Board secretary, said the request was denied because City Council only recently imposed restrictions referred to and the Board felt there was insufficient cause for lifting them.

Robert J. Lee and Hugh Patton, operators of Fayette Supply Co., were granted a variance to allow them to install a cardboard products assembly operation at 310 W. Oak St.

The Board, in approving the request, limited the facility to two work shifts, with now work to be done there after 11 p.m. It also said the plant will be limited to cardboard products.

Minor damage is reported in mishaps

Two minor traffic mishaps were investigated in the Washington C.H. area Wednesday by police and sheriff's departments.

Two dump trucks were involved in a slight mishap on Ohio 41 at the Sugar Creek Bridge, four miles south of Washington C.H., Wednesday morning. Officers said the trucks, driven by John W. Gosney. 20, of 608 High St., and Michael T. Murphy, 19, of 605 Albin Ave., sideswiped each other as they passed through the bridge in opposite directions.

Mirrors on the trucks were damaged.

Cars driven by Norma L. Null, 41, Washington C.H., and Jaquelin R. McCormick, 17, Rt. 2, were involved in a slight collision at the intersection of Market and Forest Streets at 2:15 p.m. Only minor damage was listed to both cars.

Heart specialist has 2nd stroke

BOSTON (AP) — Heart specialist Paul Dudley White is reported in fair condition at Massachusetts General Hospital where he is recovering from a minor stroke — his second in less than three months.

Spokesmen for Massachusetts General said that the87-year-olddoctor, who was stricken Monday, was alert and talking with hospital personnel on Wednesday.

White suffered a similar stroke in June and a heart attack two years ago. While hospitalized in June, he got out of bed to treat a patient who had traveled a long way to see him.

Richard Tregaskis dead

HONOLULU (AP) — Richard Tregaskis, 56, author and journalist best known for his World War II book "Guadalcanal Diary," died Wednesday, an apparent drowning victim at a Honolulu beach park. His other books included "Vietnam Diary" in 1963 and "China Bomb" in 1967.
